LAND POLICY

NATIONALISATION OF LAND: A REPLY TO CRITICS

The following has been received from Mr. G. L. P. Wood, recently writing to Mr. Crawford and Mr. Montagu, who criticised his recent articles on nationalisation of the land.

I wrote my original article more as an interest subject than as a definite policy to be adopted. But the support I have had has been so encouraging and the arguments against so easily answered that I am beginning to believe that it may be the solution to many of our problems.

Not that I want to force Nationalisation on anybody. This I hope the public and the Government will understand. I am only pointing out the reasons why it should be done.

It is not a question of power politics. It is a question of the future of the country. It is a question of the future of the people who live on the land.

BRITAIN'S INCREASED FLAX PRODUCTION

This speech, made by Lord de la Warr, Director of Home Flax, indicates the importance of the crop in war time, and the strides in production which have recently been made in Britain.

In 1930 Great Britain grew 1,043 acres of flax for fibre. In 1943 she grew over 52,000 acres, more than ten times as much.

It is a new crop in the country, but it is not the only one. The "Victory" were home-grown things the 18th century over. Farmers had to sow a certain acreage with flax.

OPINION

WATER SUPPLIES

To the Editor:—E.A. Standford writes: I was interested to see that the Government of Kenya had appointed a Commission to inquire into the water supply of the country. It is a very important matter and one which has long been a matter of concern to the people of Kenya. The Commission will be made up of representatives of the Government and the people. It is to be expected that the Commission will make a thorough investigation into the water supply of the country and will report to the Government on the results of its findings. It is to be hoped that the Government will take prompt action on the recommendations of the Commission and will improve the water supply of the country.

Colonial Secretary and whether the Commission will be a purely advisory body or whether it will have the power to recommend the Government to take certain steps. I am sure that the Commission will be a very valuable body and will make a thorough investigation into the water supply of the country. It is to be hoped that the Government will take prompt action on the recommendations of the Commission and will improve the water supply of the country.

GRASS FEVER

To the Editor:—E.A. Standford writes: I read with interest Mr. H. Nestor's letter in your issue of February 7th. Nestor is a very experienced and capable man and his views on the grass fever problem are well founded. It is to be hoped that the Government will take prompt action on the recommendations of Nestor and will improve the water supply of the country.

With reference to Mr. Nestor's letter, it is to be noted that the Government has already taken certain steps to improve the water supply of the country. It is to be hoped that the Government will continue to take prompt action on the recommendations of Nestor and will improve the water supply of the country.

FOOD AND WORK

To the Editor:—E.A. Standford writes: It is a well known fact that the present shortage of foodstuffs in Kenya is not due to any lack of rain, etc. but to the fact that labour is not available in sufficient quantities and also that it has deteriorated in quality. It is to be hoped that the Government will take prompt action on the recommendations of the Commission and will improve the water supply of the country.

It is to be noted that the Government has already taken certain steps to improve the water supply of the country. It is to be hoped that the Government will continue to take prompt action on the recommendations of the Commission and will improve the water supply of the country.

AGRICULTURAL LABOUR

The Kenya Labour Census conducted for a total labour force working on December 15, 1943, 232,422 will employ additional 220,000 to the tens of thousands of Africans in the various farms. Indeed the Military Authorities are themselves employing African civilians to the number of some 10,000 which is 2,000 more than the figure for 1942. In addition to this labour force of "registered" natives there are about 100,000 unregistered natives of whom more than 35,000 come within the agricultural labour force, as registered at the end of 1943. The total number of squatters, with their families, resident on agricultural land, and counted as an agricultural labour force, was estimated at the end of 1943 at 165,000. This figure is officially considered as the total labour force. It is estimated that 200,000 is suggested as being nearer the mark.

But so far the Government, leaving children out of it, 10,000 men squatters were not working and their families, resident on agricultural land, were not working on the farms. It may be that in December 1943 there were 100,000 men on the farms. For this reason, in assessing the needs of Agricultural labour we must take account the important fact that there are 100,000 men and their families also a small army of children (useful for light employment) and a large area of alienated agricultural land squatters. It is a labour shortage, it is necessary to see that the hidden labour force is being employed and whether it can be distributed or returned in part to the free labour market. After all, the matter is one of a million acres of the White Highlands.

There is also the question of leave, both legitimate for agricultural labour and illegitimate for agricultural labour. The Agricultural labour force, at the end of 1943, was 220,000. The minimum needs still to be met are more satisfactory. The total number of Africans on agricultural land was 232,422. More than 10,000 were illegally absent from the work—namely, those who are on leave. The age of the industry. Another factor which is important is the non-agricultural forces of employment and the Government Department. The Government has now nearly 2,000 men working in the agricultural industry without leave. In 1,000 were absent without leave. The Department and the P.W.D.

We have said that we provide a report for our contention that there is no real shortage of labour in agriculture. It is a labour shortage, it is necessary to see that the hidden labour force is being employed and whether it can be distributed or returned in part to the free labour market. After all, the matter is one of a million acres of the White Highlands.
