MANIFESTOES

We are about to enter a period in Kenya of election activity—the process through which the general public is expected to express its approval of policies and its choice of representatives. On this occasion we are not witnessing the ordinary electoral process of four years for which a Constituency has been elected. The present Constituent Assembly was elected only two years ago. The present Government has been in office for only two years. The exercise by its Excellency of supplementary powers established by the present Government within his discretion. It is not the present Government that is to be elected, but the people who will be entrusted with the task of governing Kenya for the next four years. It is not a question of the academic interest only. After a long period of preoccupation, with the anxieties created by war, threats upon our freedom and the consequential needs of a nation that has been largely maintained from local sources, there came an interval of peace. We are once again the Colony's political and economic progress. The Government of political activity found expression in a desire to have formulated a constructive policy in keeping with the times. Political bodies have been set up in different constituencies designed as a forum for the expression of public opinion, and as a means of forwarding policies approved by its members. The Government has accordingly subscribed to its expenses were in earnest of the public and a period of political stagnation. We are now faced with the introduction of this initiative.

The retiring members of Constituencies have a joint statement, either of their achievements or of their proposals for the future. Elections will be held on a franchise limited by individuals. There are no signs of grouping on party lines. Much of the value of the Elected Member-Organization has been lost by known disagreement among its members, and it will be necessary to bring to the newly-elected members responsible for new terms of office the duties of the past will be overcome. Lack of organization and inadequate consultation are weaknesses to be remedied.

We hope that as a contrast to many manifestos that have appeared in the past, prospective candidates will, for this occasion, substitute reason and common sense for the usual adjectives, they do not ignore the practical. This is not to say that the political principles of the candidates are not welcome, but that any such statements should be supported by practical objectives. Although it may be said that a minority's duty in a legislative assembly is to criticize, there are peculiar circumstances which make it desirable for producers of the Colony's welfare of other constructive proposals. There is little doubt that the House of Representatives recognized that a larger measure of increased responsibility cannot be entrusted to those who are already entrusted with the task of governing Kenya for the next four years. It is not a question of the academic interest only. After a long period of preoccupation, with the anxieties created by war, threats upon our freedom and the consequential needs of a nation that has been largely maintained from local sources, there came an interval of peace. We are once again the Colony's political and economic progress. The Government of political activity found expression in a desire to have formulated a constructive policy in keeping with the times. QUESTIONS of the standard of military driving in Kenya have been under review by the British Army authorities. Some of the most interesting facts emerge from the report that the average number of War Department vehicles on the roads in Kenya at the end of a working day is over 500, or 150,000. During the first three months of the year, some 200,000 vehicles were driven, which passed through the 100,000 miles of roads in Kenya.

CORRESPONDENCE

THE COFFEE INDUSTRY

To the Editor, "E.A. Standard." Sir—As I ask you for the courtesy of your columns to express my views on the present position of the Coffee Industry in this country, I particularly want the marketing of coffee to be represented in full on the subject, and I am quite sure of two things...

past and present—and of voicing their opinions in the light of the unfolding curves of the world economy of the future, when power and production will be the order of the day. The Central Bank is a source of information, and it is not reasonable to expect it to be a source of information, but it is not reasonable to expect it to be a source of information...

It was invariably made manifest to me when I saw the same case past I have attacked too ferociously. The fact is that the Government, the light of the abominations of the Government, the fact is that I ought to prevent more the Government for his last... I have not been able to get them closer to the cross of Christ; I have not been able to get them closer to the cross of Christ...

DR. KRASP'S BIRTHDAY

To the Editor, "E.A. Standard." Sir—As we are celebrating Dr. Krasp's birthday, I would like to express my admiration for his work in the field of medicine...

It is necessary to make such a decision in the present time. Any other course would mean a loss of the coffee position, and this is a matter of life and death for the industry...

ANNIVERSARY

Today is the anniversary of the starting of the campaign which the French Government, in 1940, waged against the German invader. THE WORLD FOLLOWS BRITAIN'S LEAD

RAILWAY TRANSPORT

Railway locomotives, which have halved the major portion of the world's land traffic for the last part of a century, were invented and developed in Britain, and British steam trains are still the fastest and safest in the world. Not less among the many other inventions and inventions for which the world owes a debt to Britain, is the development of railways by the firm of Courtness. It is almost entirely due to the development of railways by Courtness that the world has advanced with such giant strides. The pioneer work done by this British firm has been the means of creating a vast railway system in England, the United States and other countries.

Today, railways have universal acceptance and admiration. As a factor in raising the standards of life and comfort Courtness railway cars, and the lovely factory made from it, deserve a prominent place in the regard of all nations. The necessities of the war have restricted the available supply of Courtness railway cars. But when victory is won, the results of increasing peace and experiment during the war years can be translated into even more beautiful and more versatile railway passenger cars.

In the post-war years the British Commonwealth will demonstrate that in the future, as in the past, British trains and industry can guide the world towards fresh achievements for the well-being and happiness of the human race. To this great ideal the firm of Courtness dedicates its vast new technical staff and experience.

A new and worthy page has been written in Iceland's own magazine with the signing of the ancient constitution as one of the world's Republics. The late King of Iceland has most recently reigned to this form of constitution, she was perhaps the first in ancient times to achieve it. The late King of Iceland was crowned by Celtic Caidens, Iceland was first discovered by the Scandinavians in the year 980, she was a working Republic under the Althing or senate. In the 13th century she linked up with Norway and in 1550 with the Union of the Three Crowns the rule was virtually transferred to Denmark. Thereafter the rights were restored after the first Treaty was disregarded. The late King was the first to move into the position of a monarch under a democratic constitution. In 1918 the Danish Constitution a measure of independence was introduced and the Althing retrieved some of its powers in the matter of internal affairs. In 1940 the King overran Denmark; and very recently in consequence of the Althing pointed out that Denmark was no longer free to govern herself. This was the first time that Denmark was accordingly declared a Republic. The late King was appointed visited with the King's powers for the time being.  [FROM A CORRESPONDENT]
 The Germans are now so intent on scorched earth policy that they are ordering all communications to be cut off from their front army, according to accounts from a correspondent in Normandy.
 The Germans are carrying out these instructions to the letter. In the case of the communications in Tilly, which was the first town to be destroyed, the Germans have ordered that all communications be cut off from the town. This is being done by burning the telephone lines and cutting the cables. The Germans are also burning the houses and the shops in the town. This is being done to prevent the Allies from using the town as a base of operations.
 The American troops had to go into the town and find the final battle for Cherbourg was fought in the town. The Allies are now in possession of the town and are working to clear up the damage.

AT 56 SHE WORKS IN WAR FACTORY

And Does A.R.P. Job in Her Spare Time

THE unapproachable spirit of the women of Britain is well illustrated in this letter from Miss M. J. London, who, at the age of 56, is more than doing her bit.

"I am 56 and am working in a factory, serving home as it is in the morning and getting back again after 7 at night, and in my spare time at the work done do volunteer A.R.P. duties. Some of my fellow workers whom I have known for many years (some over 20 years) never had a job to do in the factory. My sister is in the same line of work as I am, and she is doing a very good job in her spare time. I hope you are going, and I am glad to have such an easy and pleasant evening."—J. Clifford.

Last week I received copies of the "East African Standard" and after the interval had the air-grip of the 100 and several. The R.N.A.S. were outplayed but had seen the object of their goal. The goalkeeper's nerve was not what it had been, and the object of their goal had passed him. None the less the game retained sufficient interest to keep the spectators in their places and the interest of the score was something for the fighting qualities of the players.

Healey has started again at the O.C.T.U. and the first match of the new term resulted in the United States of America being defeated by 4 goals to 0. Despite rain, the game was a very good one, proving too strong for the debutant. They pressed hard throughout and the score was only kept down by the excellent work of Healey. The School's goalkeeper, in a subsequent match against the United States, the United States was beaten by 2-1. It was a very fast game and a splendid effort and the Institute's goalkeeper, B. Frimman, was in excellent form. Capt. Griffith-Jones scored O.C.T.U.'s first goal, and Frimman and Leonard took up many dangerous moves. The Institute's centre-half, John Smith, was a great asset to the team and was responsible for many good forward moves leading to the Institute's three goals.

THE experience of the last twenty years has shown that it is not enough to plan education for the African on the current needs and demands of the European population, however often a function of the African attending schools can even be employed in a Government Department, commercial firm or even a factory.

This is our duty as a Christian society to the African, and to the African in East Africa will fit them for the life they are going to live, it is our duty to the African to provide the education which will give them a wide and varied education, the kind of education which will give them a wide and varied education, the kind of education which will give them a wide and varied education.

This is the first of a series of three articles prepared under the aegis of the Education Council of Kenya. Subsequent articles will deal with labour from the point of view of the African, and labour from the African point of view.

During the last few years, the African has a fairly easy view of his education, but he has not taken it to a great extent. He has not taken it to a great extent. He has not taken it to a great extent. He has not taken it to a great extent.

A General Educational Policy. The aim of any educational policy for the general mass of African youth (there must be special lines for the few who are not content with the general) should be to give a general education which will fit the pupil to take his place in his own society and make him able to support himself.

It is a policy the foundation of which would generally be the same but the practical side of the training would vary with the type of society which the boy can join. The practical and agricultural side of the training would vary with the type of society which the boy can join.

The African's Heritage. AYANS To the Editor, "E.A. Standard" Sir-I state that I am Nakuru District Commissioner and am personally responsible for establishing the office of the District Commissioner at Health for the Rift Valley Province with regard to the attendance of Ayans at the clinic in the district which is held at the B. L. Southern's unprovoked accusation of collusion against the Commissioner of Africa.

It was intended to assure members of the Local Branch, (who employ native women in our own capacity there as Ayans), that their longstanding request for a woman to attend to their women's medical requirements in this connection had at last been fulfilled. It was also designed to assist the Medical Officer of Health in his campaign, and to promote the welfare of the African employees.
