President responds to Khrushchev's 'global diplomacy'

WORLD TOUR BY EISENHOWER

Nine nations in 20,000-mile itinerary

DIPLOMATS and observers in many world capitals yesterday welcomed the news of President Eisenhower's forthcoming nine-nation world tour.

The President's plans were widely seen as a convincing proof of his new vigour, and his determination not to be outdone by Mr. Khrushchev's globalist diplomacy.

The President's trip, estimated by the White House to cover about 20,000 miles from the time of his departure from Washington in early December until his return just before Christmas, will be the longest ever undertaken by a United States chief executive.

First visit to Asia

From the few definite dates known, it appeared that Mr. Eisenhower would visit the East Indies in the first of his tours which he named them—Italy, Turkey, Pakistan, Afghanistan, India, Iran, Greece, France and Morocco.

It has to be in Paris by December 19 for the opening of the Western summit meeting between the Heads of Government of Britain, France, West Germany and the United States. In New Delhi the news of President Eisenhower's proposed visit to India—the first by a United States President—was enthusiastically welcomed in official circles.

Quiz scandal 'bewilders' Eisenhower

PRESIDENT Eisenhower has said that he is "bewildered" by the quiz scandal which has caused a general feeling of uneasiness in the White House.

The President said that he had no recollection of the quiz which was held in the White House on December 1, 1958, and that he had no idea who had been involved in the scandal.

Summit needs

It is a matter of some concern that the President's itinerary for his world tour does not include a visit to the Soviet Union.

SAILOR-AUTHOR OF BEST-SELLER LEAVES MOMBASA

"Standard" Correspondent, Mombasa.

ENGINEER OFFICER J. PRATT, better known to thousands of people as John Winton, author of the best-selling "The Navy", sailed on board the submarine H.M.S. Achernar from Mombasa at the end of the ship's three-day operational visit to the port.

Starting in a short article for a Naval review on training, Pratt could not stop writing. "The Navy" got out of hand and I stopped typing three years ago," he said.

He sent the story — it tells of the adventures of a sailor training at Dartmouth in the days of a telegram — to the publisher and a few weeks later he was in London from then on they wanted to publish it.

"After the book was published, I went on a television programme and right after that the publisher Daniel Angel came up and asked for the book. The Bank Orientation will make a film of the book next year with Kenneth More in the role as the cable boy.

COURAGEOUS WIFE
BEHIND CAREER
OF MR. MACLEOD

The new Colonial Secretary who is to visit East Africa next month, owes not a little of the success of his political career to his wife. Mrs. Ian Macleod is a woman of remarkable courage. Although at 54 years she was struck down by a poliomyelitis and meningitis, which deprived her of the use of her right leg, she has continued to sit on numerous committees and her husband's constituency.

She learned to drive a car specially fitted with hand controls so that she could get about. At a meeting of the Friends of Eastfold Hospital, a group of people who give their own time to brightening up the lives of needy patients.

As one time it was doubtful whether Mrs. Macleod would ever be able to walk again. Now after two operations and many months in plaster and on crutches, she is able to get about with the aid of sticks.

Throughout her fight against the limitations imposed by her illness her first thought has been that her disabilities should not be allowed to interfere with her husband's work.

A look around Kitale Show

UNDER the nose of vapour of a jet plane climbing high into the sky, the Kitale Show was officially opened by Mrs. Irene Mwakome. The scene was most impressive against the background of gusts contrasting with the brilliant colours of the national flag. The background of foot-and-mouth, cancelled all cattle, soon, early morning, the folk came to the show.

Deep a steamer from that jet plane into the middle of the arena and the crowd, who thought he might be looking at the crowd, the jet would undoubtedly be "Upcountry", if only by cause of the direction.

Outside the Horticultural Show, Mrs. Mwakome's speech 1 found Mrs. Mwakome, who looked across the Plaza in the middle of the show. After 15 hours here, he was the most interesting way to see an exhibition of this kind.

It was noticeable to find that the Horticultural Show, and the Show, was a very attractive and interesting one. The Horticultural Show, which was a very interesting and interesting one.

Another era begins with opening of high school

Today the Director of Education, Mr. D. S. Miller, opens the Butere High School for girls in the article by E. E. KENYAN WEPUKHULU summarises the history and achievements of the school.

THE girl who rules the world is the girl who is educated. It is better still, you can say, "If you are a girl, you are a woman." You have education, the whole world is yours.

In the last few years, the Government's efforts have been mainly aimed at educating the male population in Kenya. The first school for girls in Kenya, founded in 1917, was the first girls' secondary school in the White Colony.

The guests at the opening ceremony will applaud the school for its achievements, but it is fitting that they should also be reminded that the school was founded in 1917, when a whole new era was created for the girls of Kenya.

It was the first girls' secondary school in Kenya. The school was founded in 1917 as a day school for girls. At this time, it was a boarding school for girls. The school was founded in 1917 as a day school for girls. At this time, it was a boarding school for girls.

Chess Corner

By Mrs. O.D. Alexander

Chess is a game of strategy and tactics in which it is hard for some time to figure out who has the better game or why.

There are many ways to play chess and usually with good results. The following are some of the best moves which have been made in the past.

1. The King's Pawn

The King's Pawn is the most common opening. It is played by moving the King's Pawn two squares forward on the first move.

2. The Queen's Pawn

The Queen's Pawn is the second most common opening. It is played by moving the Queen's Pawn two squares forward on the first move.

3. The Knight's Pawn

The Knight's Pawn is a less common opening. It is played by moving the Knight's Pawn two squares forward on the first move.

4. The Bishop's Pawn

The Bishop's Pawn is a very rare opening. It is played by moving the Bishop's Pawn two squares forward on the first move.

5. The Rook's Pawn

The Rook's Pawn is a very rare opening. It is played by moving the Rook's Pawn two squares forward on the first move.

Moshi speciality of bananas and meat well worth trying

By URUSULA V. UNGERN

FAT spaghetti with the Italian and extra virgin olive oil when you go to Moshi. What Franco would be without a pot of pea soup without a can of tomatoes, Moshi would be without its national dish—a plate of bananas and meat.

According to an old Moshi legend, the bananas and meat were brought to Moshi by a Portuguese trader who was passing through the area on his way to the coast. He was so impressed with the taste of the bananas and meat that he decided to bring them back to Moshi.

Graveyard start for baseball

AMERICAN national sports baseball, is fast becoming popular in Italy after beginning its life there in a graveyard. Baseball equipment has begun to roll out an assembly line in Rome at one of the first "baseball factories" to set up outside the United States from having American sports fans during the Second World War. Now they fit three regular league, one special baseball pitches have been opened after 18 years of effort by Italy's baseball union. The first ball game was played in Rome on the baseball "Dromo" spring called "Dromo".

G.I. INFLUENCE

Plata base, as the Italian call the game, comes into its own in the summer, as the end of the football season. Many tanks in torrid heat. Many in Rome, as in France, American influence has attracted by baseball when he saw G.I.s "knowing the ball" in Rome in 1944, near to the end of the war. The American soldier in Rome, a sergeant-major, who was with the 4th Infantry Division, was the one who introduced the game to the Italian soldiers. NO CLOSED SEASON FOR RACING IN BRITAIN

WHEREVER you go in England during your long leave, no matter the time of year, you will not be far from thudding hooves and flying turf. For England is the home of horse-racing and the little Suffolk town of Newmarket, from which it derives its name, is the world headquarters of the sport. There are nearly 40 independent racing stables in Newmarket and up to a total of eight weeks of racing on the health every day. A racing season, which begins in mid-March and ends in November, is held there are the One Thousand and Two Thousand and Guineas, the Jockey Club Stakes, the Cesarewitch Stakes and other races by Committee this month by Committee.

Every year the English racing season—this is to say the racing season—begins with the opening of the racing season at Newmarket on Monday, March 11, and ends on the last Saturday in November with a meeting at Doncaster.

During February, January, February and March racing is held in the north of England, while the racing season at Newmarket starts in the middle of February.

There are many other racing centres in the country, and these are mentioned in the National Hunt and Flat racing directories.

PARK COURSES

Of these the most important is Chesham, where there is a National Hunt Festival in March. The most attractive and picturesque of these is the three-mile National Hunt Cup and Stakes, which is held at Chesham in the week between the opening of the racing season and the first meeting of the Grand National at Sandown Park. The other great races are held at Sandown Park, which is the most important of these, and is held in the week between the opening of the racing season and the first meeting of the Grand National at Sandown Park.

NEVER A DUMMOMENT FOR EAST AFRICAN ASTRONAUTER

By ORION
HOW disappointed we all were in the Nairobi race on October 2 when our thick, gray skies completely obscured the solar eclipse. Indeed, nowhere in West Africa did the sky clear enough for a good view of the few people not dead even in the gradual dimming of the light in each dull condition.

It has been an interesting month all the same, with the new Lantac III Explorer taking its automatic recording and transmitting instruments round the earth. We badly need information about this feat of the moon for it is believed that our satellite spins so fast only once a month, the same time exactly as it takes in its revolution round the earth, thus preventing us continually with the same old face.

We have little knowledge as to what the other side looks like, nor can we learn whether it is really as round as it looks or possibly egg-shaped with its "bumpy" hollows on its surface. It has been a month of continual surprise. The planet's position was so favorable for our observations that the moon was shown in its full glow. It was seen in the same position as shown in the diagram. While Venus was in the same position, it was seen in a more favorable position. It is a very interesting star, it is an interesting star, it is an interesting star, it is an interesting star. It is a very interesting star, it is an interesting star, it is an interesting star, it is an interesting star.

Of the other planets, Jupiter and Saturn were also visible. Jupiter was seen in the same position as shown in the diagram. Saturn was seen in the same position as shown in the diagram. It is a very interesting planet, it is an interesting planet, it is an interesting planet, it is an interesting planet.

SWIFTEST MOVER

I was pleased to read a letter from Portsmouth, New Hampshire, that the "Claws of Scorpio" were seen there on October 12. The planet was seen in the same position as shown in the diagram. It is a very interesting planet, it is an interesting planet, it is an interesting planet, it is an interesting planet.

ANOTHER VEHA

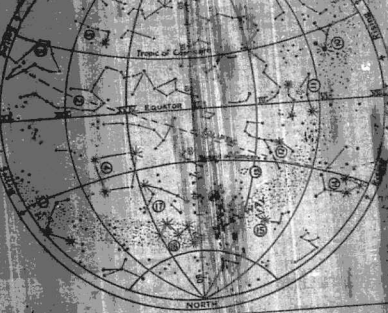

It will be quite an interesting and useful exercise to trace the path of the "Claws of Scorpio" as it moves across the sky. It will be quite an interesting and useful exercise to trace the path of the "Claws of Scorpio" as it moves across the sky.

RAIN WELCOMED BY GARDENERS AND GOLFERS

The arrival of the short rains has caused tension and excited general pleasure. Gardeners and golfers are grateful although the coming of the two is not a happy coincidence, that some rainfall will remain in the ground.

A certain salubrious atmosphere, which has been so much needed, will be held up, and the crops will be benefited. The rain will also be a relief to the gardeners and golfers.

Advice by Governor at start of K.N.F.U. conference

FARMING Aims for ALL KENYANS

Right use of land the only criterion

ALL land in Kenya must be used to the best advantage, irrespective of the race or tribe of its owners, the Governor, Sir Patrick Ransome, and the Minister for Agriculture, Mr. McKenzie, both stressed at the annual conference of the Kenya National Farmers' Union in Nakuru yesterday.

Both paid tribute to the role which European agriculture had played in the Colony in the past 50 years. Mr. McKenzie said the Government was fully aware of the dominant contribution which European agriculture had made to the emergence of Kenya as a factor in the world economy.

Reservoir of skills

The second - a natural corollary - was that some decades of financial sacrifice and the devoted application of Government officers had created in the African land units not only individual farmers of skill and conviction but a whole reservoir of agrarian skills which the country needed to utilize.

NKRUMAH CHOOSES KENYA MAN AS ADVISER

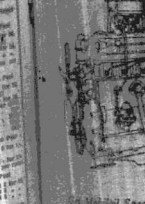

Mr. Peter Mbatia, former representative in London of the Kenya African National Union, has been appointed adviser on African affairs to Dr. Kwame Nkrumah, Prime Minister of Ghana.

The second - a natural corollary - was that some decades of financial sacrifice and the devoted application of Government officers had created in the African land units not only individual farmers of skill and conviction but a whole reservoir of agrarian skills which the country needed to utilize.

It has become necessary to provide the most advanced method of marketing, not only to the producer but also to the consumer.

THE PYRENEAN SITUATION IN TANGANYIKA

Letters to the Editor

ROAD v. RAIL COMPETITION

MAY I be permitted to remark on points raised by Mr. Thomas Bland, member of the Pyrenean Board of Tanganyika last 1971 in a private conversation.

From March 1, 1968, I have been in the field of the new road introduced by the Government in the pyrenean industry. The Government has introduced a new system of road transport which is being introduced in the pyrenean industry. It is a system which is being introduced in the pyrenean industry. It is a system which is being introduced in the pyrenean industry.

MAY I be permitted to remark on points raised by Mr. Thomas Bland, member of the Pyrenean Board of Tanganyika last 1971 in a private conversation.

From March 1, 1968, I have been in the field of the new road introduced by the Government in the pyrenean industry. The Government has introduced a new system of road transport which is being introduced in the pyrenean industry. It is a system which is being introduced in the pyrenean industry.

The K.P.B. average cost percentages for Tanganyika in 1968 were published by the Board, i.e. Northern Province 1.23 Southern Highlands 1.24

The K.P.B. average cost percentages for the half-year period to August, 1969, were published by the Board, i.e. Northern Province 1.22 Southern Highlands 1.23

It is necessary to review the gap between road and rail transport. The lower rail traffic costs are not necessarily an advantage. The effect of this has been to put the railway industry in a position where it is not competitive with road transport.

The fact that Kenya growers are heavily dependent on the use of African pyrethrum, insecticide, is a factor which must be taken into account. It is a factor which must be taken into account.

It is impossible to bring the levels of the road and rail transport. It is impossible to bring the levels of the road and rail transport. It is impossible to bring the levels of the road and rail transport.

School sites
I wish also to commend the statement made by the Government in the report on the Uganda parents' conference. It is a statement which is commendable.

Land policy
"I refer to a small paper which has been published by the Government. It is a paper which has been published by the Government.

Class war
I read with interest a letter from Mr. Alan Bland on the subject of class warfare. It is a letter which is interesting.

Intoxicating
The contents of your report on the subject of intoxicating are of interest. It is a report which is of interest.

Mobile crime squads planned to beat highway robberies

Robbers, the Chief Secretary, Mr. C. H. Hartwell, has announced in the Legislature that mobile crime squads to detect highway robbery are being formed. He said that the Government would make financial provision for this, he said, and believe that these squads will go a long way towards preventing these crimes, but the problem can only be effectively tackled with the full co-operation of the public in taking simple precautions to protect their own vehicles and themselves.

Mr. Hartwell had been asked by Mr. B. K. Verbeke, who stated that the Government was not doing enough to protect the public from highway robbery, and asked whether the Government would make financial provision for this, he said, and believe that these squads will go a long way towards preventing these crimes, but the problem can only be effectively tackled with the full co-operation of the public in taking simple precautions to protect their own vehicles and themselves.

Education plans depend on revenue

ZANZIBAR NEEDS MORE MONEY FOR PRIMARY SCHOOLS

“Standard” Correspondent Zanzibar writes that the educational services in Zanzibar cannot be extended unless a further more revision is proposed, the Director of Education, Mr. Hanley, told the Legislative Council.

He said that despite the progress made in the last few years, there was still primary education for only 27 per cent of the Protectorate's children. The educational section of the development programme must be revised as soon as possible.

The Council was debating a report of the Government. The committee said the main part of the Government Education Scheme should be devoted to primary schools.

The committee found that its recommendations would involve additional expenditure of at least £28,800, or an increase with £28,800 provided in 1954, and £30,000 in 1955, as well as a further 100,000 sq ft of land for the Protectorate's primary schools.

The committee is at present in an effort to develop alternative sources of new revenue.

WEEK-END STANDARD

COLONY'S YOUTH CLUBS HELP TO COMBAT CRIME

Story: Jean Vaughan Pictures: D. Whitfield

ALTHOUGH "John Njeroge's" father can afford to send him to school, John is one of the many youngsters who reached Standard IV and then failed to win one of the coveted places at an intermediate school.

So his education came to an end and at the age of 13 he was left with nothing to occupy his mind, energy and time. So he roams about the city, joining up with other idle lads and getting into mischief. He spends more and more time with the gang, and often does not go home at night, sleeping out on wasteland.

Perhaps one of the things that appeals to his gang is stealing from parked cars—and then John is well on the road that leads to juvenile court and the approved school. In any case, sooner or later he will probably be picked up by the police in one of their sweeps for vagrants. John's home is in Nairobi, and he will be returned to his parents, unless at the loss of his friends and still homeless. "John Njeroge" is not one of the many youngsters who have already opened themselves by Government in the City Council.

It is assisted by Shell (East Africa), Kariakur by the Government. They have not only made the capital available necessary to open the club, but have undertaken to provide the running expenses for a twelve-month period.

These are likely to be about £500 a year for each—the Government being subsidised. Each club needs a staff of about six full-time leaders.

Both clubs use their existing premises housed in private houses—they are not newly built. The Nairobi Youth Club is in a private house, and the Standard Youth Club is in a private house.

When I arrived the joint Nairobi-Kariakur was being held in front of the club. They were marching and singing and dancing. There was a band of about 15 members—some in uniform, some in civilian dress, and a section of about 100 members.

The Nairobi Youth Club is in a private house, and the Standard Youth Club is in a private house.

Costs met by private groups

tion Services and the Department of Information and U.S.I. provide films—but the money is made by the Government rather than the Nairobi or Standard.

The film shows a held in the Nairobi hall of Standard, which is furnished as a classroom during the week and also has a ping-pong table for members' spare interests.

The reception room doubles as a gym for a very nice collection of tools for carpentry and mechanics. There is a second recreational classroom in the main building—these rooms are used for literacy and English instruction.

Kariakur has two privately owned shops and the Nairobi has one. The Nairobi has a shop for the sale of books and stationery.

Small shops have been knocked off to provide a shelter for two classrooms (two double windows—pink green tiles)—and the carpentry and metal workshops.

The boys themselves built the other work, such as making furniture and putting up a fence.

Here again, I was shown a store equipped with tools for the workshop, and also some sports gear—including a hat dozen pairs of boxing gloves, in the use of which, it was told, the Police had wanted to provide instruction.

There were groups of boys learning English words, improving their spelling and writing, learning to use paper or bamboo, or drawing the oil or tin cans which are the raw materials of the metal work class.

All was neat and clean in Nairobi, and some had the colour of beads and rubber and cloth "Colony" badges which are the club "uniform" and for which the boy is asked to pay 10/-.

Elephant comes to aid of railways

By ROSEMARY WRENT

BLOOMING, the baby elephant, just landed on the train. He was always going off through the forest to stand by the railway line and watch them.

There was a small station and far from his home. He was quite a bit of a baby elephant. He was always going off through the forest to stand by the railway line and watch them.

"Chuff-chuff-chuff" was the sound of the train. He was always going off through the forest to stand by the railway line and watch them.

Soon Blooming was not afraid of the train at all. He became quite a bit of a baby elephant. He was always going off through the forest to stand by the railway line and watch them.

"Chuff-chuff-chuff" was the sound of the train. He was always going off through the forest to stand by the railway line and watch them.

Then one day Sunny the stationmaster, seeing that the train was late, he called out to Blooming.

"Come, old Blooming," said the stationmaster, "the train is late. You must go and help the train."

"Yes, yes," said Sunny. "The train is late. You must go and help the train."

"Yes, yes," said Sunny. "The train is late. You must go and help the train."

"To racing with the Wind," Knarf told him. "Sometimes it gets ahead of me. And sometimes I get ahead of it." Policeman smiled. "The Wind is a funny thing," he said. "You can't see it and you can't touch it."

"You can't see it," said Knarf. "It blows around me. The policeman said, "You can't see it and you can't touch it." "Yes," said Knarf. "It's hiding somewhere. Where can it be?"

Chess - international game Not only for the 'squares'

By JAMES WHISTON

Chess is a hobby? You ask unbelievably. Yes, very many people play chess for fun. But chess is not only for the 'squares'. It is a game of defence and subtle manoeuvre. It is a contest of the wits as well as of the nerves. And it is in this enjoyment, the thrill and excitement of chess that chess enthusiasts find great pleasure in a game that excludes consideration of time.

In this particular instance, it is a chess player's indifference to the clock that is the key to his success. He is not concerned with the time spent in chess, but with the pleasure of chess itself. He is not concerned with the time spent in chess, but with the pleasure of chess itself.

Clock games

There may be a sudden flurry of practice over one player's chess. His chess leaves great things in both cases, at other times all are cluttered up together in the center of the board, crowding one another, hardly in each other's way, but still and secure enough to resist break through.

Good practice

It is good practice to play chess. It is a game of defence and subtle manoeuvre. It is a contest of the wits as well as of the nerves. And it is in this enjoyment, the thrill and excitement of chess that chess enthusiasts find great pleasure in a game that excludes consideration of time.

BOURGEOIS NOTE IN GANG LAND

By M. Crofter

THE men who stole £250,000 worth of jewellery from four West End jewellers shops last month were probably raised with machine-tool precision. It is not only the what the police call "villains"—professional crooks—who are the "bosses" of the underworld. They are members of an extensive league of small, little corporations and unlike a medieval guild, with its own language, ethics and traditions.

Sober pride

The professional villain takes a sober pride in his work. He is not a member of the gang of petty burglars with critical eyes. He is a man who takes pride in his job rather than in an impressive word. He is a man who takes a sober pride in his work. He is not a member of the gang of petty burglars with critical eyes. He is a man who takes pride in his job rather than in an impressive word.

Morally wanted

His importance comes, not only from his ability to plan a crime, but also from his skill in imposing the necessary discipline on his troops before and during the job, keeping control with the forces and forcing the essential rule of silence on those who would otherwise rat.

MAINLY FOR MEN...

such as last month's they begin, moving South to its present position. The job which led to the formation of the gang came via a Flying Squad man. They were not long in difficulties and sometimes dangerous situations. They began by living, but they may take a job as a "boss" of a gang of crooks.

ADDITIONS TO BOOKSHELF FOR RABBITS AND TIGERS

GOLF widows who view their menfolk's pursuit of the little white ball round Africa with indulgence beyond the call of duty may be interested in a book of would make admirable presents for this Christmas.

The first is The Endlessness of Golf by Nevill H. Gibson (Nicholas Kaye, 42/-), an American who became acquainted with the history of the game while serving in Europe during the Second World War.

Mr. Gibson begins, surprisingly enough, at the beginning of the century. He traces golf's development through the time when it was banned as interfering with the National the advanced age of 18. But, in fact, there are references to few mistakes.

It is profusely illustrated with pictures of great players past and present. It will prove an invaluable work of reference and reading for many arguments at the 19th. It will also recall many amusing incidents for enthusiasts who have watched the game as they followed the sun.

Two suggestions about the Encyclopedia come to mind. Some of them are devoted to results of the amateur, women's 125 from Alabama is now of practically every State in the Union.

BEST WAY
My second suggestion is to be more enthusiastic in East Africa and the South of the early years of the game started in the three territories for inclusion in subsequent editions.

The second book I have reviewed is Golf with an Expert, an instructional and well-known golf journalist (Hutchinson, 7/6).

To my mind this is an outstanding book for players who wish to reduce their handicap. For in it the world's leading players discuss departments of the game in which they are acknowledged leaders rather than, as in most books, one player trying to cover every aspect himself.

There is no better way of sharpening the appetite for this book than to list a few of the authors and their subjects. There is Bobby Locke on putting, Henry Cotton on handling the ball, Cary Middlecott on chipping and rifling, and golf teacher Alex Morrison on swinging the entire swing. Sam Sloan on corrections and variations, and a chapter for advanced players, only by Ben Hogan on control of clubs. Dave Thomas on advice to young players and Dr. E. H. Sargent on fitness.

Of course, the best players in the world are not necessarily the best writers about it and it is regrettable that this list of writers with admirable contributions. Geoffrey Coates and Tom Scott contribute a very good chapter on the golf-swing and Henry Longhurst, whose articles appear in this paper from time to time, is in an excellent form as ever with the pen in discussing playing into the wind.

A chapter particularly liked was Jack Burrows' on "Club and equipment buying." It is well written and "bookish" in an often such advice with a humorous touch. It is all so totem lacking.

Golf with the Experts is thoroughly recommended in both rabbits and tigers, & M.R. another that he had reached Britain's bright young tennis star, Christian Trimmer, who already beats the Italian and French champions and is now in Australia, trains with a coach.

Accommodation in Rome prepared for games

FOUR million tickets are being printed for some 250 different events of the Rome Olympic Games next year.

Already 66 travel agencies all over the world are sending for the games to prepare what can show that they have secured accommodation in Rome.

Nearly 200,000 people will watch the games each day if all seats are sold. About half of them are expected to be foreign visitors, about a third from Italy and the remaining fifth from abroad.

At least 10,000 will be lodged in regular institutions, many in hotels, and many in private homes. Others, normally still in school, will be housed over the summer holidays.

To increase this total of 100,000, available beds, the army and city authorities are making plans to take over dormitory accommodation with a view to some 15,000 Olympic visitors to be housed in the city.

It is the real problem of any one wanting to watch the games, which last from August 25 to September 11, is not tickets, but lodging.

FLIGHT OF SHUTTLECOCK

1. The shuttlecock is struck from the front of the court. 2. It rises steeply into the air. 3. It falls into the back court, where the player must return it before it hits the ground.

THE SHUTTLECOCK. The shuttle's flight is different from that of a ball. It rises more steeply into the air, reaches its height and falls into the back court before it hits the ground. This is a more important feature than many people realize.

LONG LIST
This section contains some excellent papers with a long list of recommendations in the form of a chronological order.

Some 170 pages are devoted to results of all the major amateur and open events in Britain and the United States and the various matches between the two countries.

The Encyclopedia ends with articles on "amateurism" of the game from Amateur to Yarnon, including such great figures as Oulton, Hagen, Hoss and the two Bobbies, Jones and Locke.

It is perhaps only natural that among such a multitude of facts and figures that a few mistakes creep in. References to "top-hat" competitions appear with irritating frequency and some of the brief, gushing eulogies of Robert Tyre State championship at 14 in another that he had reached

HIGHLY SUCCESSFUL SPRINGBOKS' POLO TOUR

COMMENTARY
by the Editor

THIS recent visit of a South African polo team was, in my opinion, an ideal one for Kenya conditions. As it did, a judicious blend of action and entertainment. There was not a highly competitive and matches themselves, this is so hospitable a country, as Kenya, it is so possible. This was the sixth African polo team to visit Kenya, and the first to play at least one additional game. That, too, is an ideal state of affairs for getting the best of both worlds. The entire team was extremely popular everywhere, and with respect, it would be hard to find a better polo team than the South African players they met here.

Better teamwork
 AS it is not uncommon with a touring team, the South African players showed a decidedly superior to that of the sides they met and, for the most part, they played a goal or two better — man for man — than nearly all their opponents. They were all three top matches and appeared, in each case, to have a little extra in hand. The last one was a hard match indeed. But on the flow and heavy pitch the tourists appeared to be playing better than they were doing on the other two. One of the equipments of the tour was a 12-man polo team. On the first day they played here his hands off a double goal. On the second day they played here his hands off a double goal. On the third day they played here his hands off a double goal.
