

KINGSTON (frameless) ALUMINIUM HOUSES

Hundreds of these houses have been sold in East Africa by us and have proved to be very suitable for Site offices, Temporary housing, PERMANENT quarters, etc.

Here are some advantages:

Fireproof, Vermin-proof, always cool inside. Can be dismantled and re-erected on another site. 90% of the material can be used for other purposes (roofing, etc.) when the house is no longer required. "KINGSTON" HOUSES weigh you in one case which also contains erection instructions and requisite tools.

Added to this you will have NO MAINTENANCE COSTS and LOW INITIAL PRICE.

Britain leads Europe in production of wool
Britain now produces more wool than any other country in Europe — outside the Communist sphere — and has the third largest production in the world.
Marketing Board stated that for the third successive year the wool clip has increased in price and its marketing net weight is more than the year before. The Board said it is its annual report.

Assured pattern
The 1938 British wool clip totalled 77,500,000 lb. which was 2,000,000 lb. less per cent more than the 1937 clip. It was sold at an average of 54 1/2 pence. The total value of the clip was £4,200,000,000. The guarantee price paid to producers was 54 pence. The Board said it was pleased with the financial arrangements with the Government and the wool growers for the future. The Board said:

27 1/2 p.c. DUTY ON U.K. CARS SUGGESTED
The Associated Chamber of Manufacturers of motor cars in Great Britain has suggested a duty of 27 1/2 per cent on imported cars imported from Britain when a tariff board inquiry into car imports begins on October, the assistant director, Mr. R. W. Anderson, said today.

...but Doctor, why does 'Disprin' relieve pain so quickly?

SEE—IT DISSOLVES!
This is Disprin. This is salt.
Disprin does more dissolving of every breaking up of most pain. Because Disprin dissolves, it is more easily absorbed by your body, and releases pain quicker. No undissolved particles are left behind to irritate the stomach.

Retired of show jumping?
A RECORD 'GATE' AT ANNUAL SHOW
Emergency's effect on the standard of performances

'Standard' Special Correspondent
THIS fifth annual show of the Show Jumping Association of Kenya was held over the weekend at Mitchell Park and the two-day event was a pronounced success. The weather was good, the entries excellent and public interest reflected in a record attendance of spectators. The main arena was divided into two sections, the first for dressage and the remainder for show jumping and the show classes.
The dressage was alive with colour and action, and so well as to give the spectators a most interesting and profitable afternoon. The standard of performances was high, and the result of the event was a most successful one.
One serious spill
The only serious spill during the show was that of the chestnut horse, White, who was ridden by Miss Ann Petherton. The horse was thrown by a sudden movement of the rider's legs, and fell on to the ground. The rider was unhurt, and the horse was quickly brought to its feet. The incident was a most unfortunate one, but it did not detract from the success of the show.

Fresh enthusiasm

But the Mitchell Park show undoubtedly did a great deal to rekindle the enthusiasm necessary for a prolonged performance. The weather was good, the entries excellent and public interest reflected in a record attendance of spectators. Shell MULTIGRADE X-100 MOTOR OIL 10W/30

In recent years in the U.S.A. the use of low-viscosity engine oils in passenger cars has increased considerably and SAE 10W oils have for some time been recommended for use in cold weather by most American manufacturers.

However, whilst such oils give excellent starting and rapid circulation on starting in cold weather, there is always a danger that if a car runs into hot weather, the rate of oil consumption may rise suddenly to an extent which may lead to a dangerously low oil level and mechanical trouble. In the U.S.A. where long distances are habitually covered, such relative sudden changes from cold to hot weather, are by no means unusual.

An answer to this problem lies in an oil which has a much faster viscosity curve than normal motor oils - one which is as fluid as a winter grade oil at low temperatures, and as thick as a winter grade oil at high temperatures, and as thick as a winter grade oil at high temperatures.

Shell X-100 10W/30 is a multigrade oil covering the viscosity limits prescribed in each of the SAE categories 10W, 20W and 30. It has the same basic properties as all the other Shell X-100 grade oils in respect of -

Reduction in wear Protection from corrosion Engine cleanliness
In all these properties which affect the life and health of any engine in which Shell X-100 Motor Oil stands superior.

The extra properties that we claim for the new 10W/30 grade are essentially related to its special viscosity characteristics and the extra properties are -
(1) LUBRICATION
Due to the free-flowing qualities of the oil when it is cold, almost instantaneous and optimum supply of oil to the cylinder bore is assured on starting, the oil film on the cylinder wall is maintained more effectively. Thus there is less wear than with normal Shell X-100 grades can therefore be expected. Nevertheless, at high engine temperatures the oil has a viscosity similar to that of the most commonly recommended summer grade and it therefore ensures a maximum margin of lubrication safety under high-speed conditions.

a 30 oil consumption up to 15 per cent in fuel consumption have been reported in temperate climates under warm-up conditions. In warm climates and under steady high-speed conditions, the saving in fuel will be much less, say, of the order of 5 per cent when compared with a 30 oil.

(2) OIL CONSUMPTION
Because of the oil film on the point of view behaviour the oil is so fluid and so thick when it is so hot, the oil will be about half the oil. Engines vary in their sensitiveness to the viscosity characteristics of the oil depending on the grade of oil usually used and the characteristics of the engine.

(3) WARM UP STARTING
In warm countries starting difficulties due to inability to turn the engine over fast enough are not common where the recommended grade of oil is in use. In cold countries, however, the battery is adequately charged. Nevertheless starting will, of course, tend to be much easier with a 20 grade.

(4) REDUCED CARBON DEPOSITS
With some high compression-ratio engines, even on premium fuels, there may be a tendency to detonation after combustion of the oil, due to the fact that the carbon deposits, chiefly originating from combustion of the lubricating oil, have built up on the combustion chamber.

With normal motor oils such deposits from the oil are due largely to the heavy lubricating fractions used in blending oils. In multigrade oils, and even in some motor oils 20 grade, the carbon deposits are reduced by the use of special polymeric substances which are substantially non-polymerising.

All these properties of the multigrade oil in the engine is much reduced and it is never so difficult to produce detonation.

Shell Oil 10W/30 has had a very great success in the U.S.A. and it is now being marketed in many other countries. Shell X-100 10W/30 is a multigrade oil covering the viscosity limits prescribed in each of the SAE categories 10W, 20W and 30. It has the same basic properties as all the other Shell X-100 grade oils in respect of -

JAPANESE SEAMEN FEAR THE 'DEVIL'S SEA'

SUPERSTITIOUS Japanese seamen believe that a evil spirit is responsible for the loss of men and boats in the South Pacific Ocean.

The 'Devil's Sea' is a Japanese name for the waters around Australia's north-western development in January.

On 12 days when the sailor was seen to be in a state of extreme nervousness, he was taken to the hospital and treated for a nervous breakdown.

No wreckage

Survivors of men disappeared in the 'Devil's Sea' were never seen. No wreckage was washed up. All the boats were reported to be in the same area.

On 12 days when the sailor was seen to be in a state of extreme nervousness, he was taken to the hospital and treated for a nervous breakdown.

Nobody ever found out for the Chikuzen Maru disappeared without trace.

The No. 2, Kairo Maru, a 1,000-ton cargo ship, was the last to be seen. It was reported to have sunk on September 24, 1952, by the Kuroki fleet, an ocean liner.

THE MYSTERY OF RIO'S TAXIS

By Alex Valentini

PRACTICALLY every taxi driver in Rio de Janeiro has a tale to tell of a fugitive from Rio de Janeiro who has been seen in the Brazilian capital, the story of the 'Devil's Sea' is already circulating again and already creating a new mystery.

Conspicuous officials have put forward a theory that the 'Devil's Sea' is a mystery which is still something of a mystery. On September 12, 1952, a Japanese fishing boat was reported to have disappeared in the 'Devil's Sea'.

STRANGE BUT TRUE

The fabulous gold-mining town of Kalgotev in the north-western part of its airport paved with gold.

The gold-ore runways will be impregnated with £22,500 worth of gold when it is finished early next year.

Quartz ore from Kawana, a famous old gold-mining centre, will be used to pave the runways. It assays 18 grains of gold to the ton. This is low but is economically profitable with the present price of gold and it is considered workable.

Theories

On January 12, 1952, the disappearance of the Shiro Maru was a source of apprehension for Japanese seamen.

Theories were put forward that the 'Devil's Sea' was a mystery which is still something of a mystery. On September 12, 1952, a Japanese fishing boat was reported to have disappeared in the 'Devil's Sea'.

Significant

Even though the theories put forward are not completely explained, it is significant that all Japanese fishing boats are made of timber and wood boats. All one thing was lost in areas covered by the north equatorial current of the Japan Current.

RURAL WAGES 'ADEQUATE' TO MEET NEEDS

Minimum level opposed by Kenya Farmers' Union

KENYA National Farmers' Union, in a memorandum to the Government committee investigating rural wages, opposes statutory minimum wages in rural areas and states that at present wages were adequate in relation to the needs of the African rural worker and to the economic needs of the agricultural industry.

The memorandum, which answers the questionnaire of the Rural Wages Committee in the month of November 1954 from the organized agricultural industry, K.N.F.U. and other branches and district associations throughout Kenya. The K.N.F.U. considers that many farming districts there is a shortage of labour, and the law of supply and demand operates to the advantage of the worker.

Any sharp increase in rural wages would be to some extent operating with marginal results on a falling market, and should not be borne by the consumer, because the worker receives the cost of living, rather the cost of living.

Decline in costs
The K.N.F.U. comments that there seem to be a generally accepted and the erection of new factories were discussed in Nairobi this week. Two leading tea companies, both of which have extensive holdings in the Kenya tea area, are involved in the expansion.

The African Industries Produce Co., which began tea planting in Kenya in 1950 and already has planted more than 500 acres, plans to increase the tea area to 12,000 acres. The other tea company, planting at the rate of 600 to 700 acres a year.

The Kenya Tea Co. which was incorporated in 1952 and controls 3,000 acres in Kericho area, has planted 3,000 acres with tea during the next eight years, and is planning to increase the area to 300 to 500 acres a year.

'Head of family'

The average African farm worker did not expect a higher standard of living through increasing wages. He looked for an easy job which would give him a reasonable standard of living on a farm where he could be sure his family was provided for.

It is pointed out that the African farm worker, who had the means to support a family of four to five, was not a member of a family than an employer. Kenya farmers appreciated that the worker was a family man, and while there was no real relation between master and man, which would be jeopardized if statutory minimum wages were introduced.

African Leadership

In the letter, "A.A. Standard" writes that the majority of the African population is split between the African and the European. The African population is the African population.

rural wages were introduced, the K.N.F.U. favoured the introduction of a "minimum wage system" in favour of a "minimum wage system" in favour of a "minimum wage system".

Mr. R. A. Alexander, the Executive Director and chairman of an official Kenyan wage committee, is to visit Kenya to see the situation in regard to the rural wages. He is expected to arrive in Nairobi this week.

Tea industry expansion plan for Kenya

SIX NEW FACTORIES TO BE BUILT IN TEN YEARS

PLANS for developing tea growing in Kenya, involving the planting of thousands of acres during a ten-year period and the erection of six new factories were discussed in Nairobi this week. Two leading tea companies, both of which have extensive holdings in the Kenya tea area, are involved in the expansion.

The African Industries Produce Co., which began tea planting in Kenya in 1950 and already has planted more than 500 acres, plans to increase the tea area to 12,000 acres. The other tea company, planting at the rate of 600 to 700 acres a year.

CHIEFS AT WORK IN NAIROBI

AFRICANS wearing the Kenya Lion badge on their hats were seen a rare sight in busy streets of Nairobi — seen only when a Chief occasionally came to the Reserves capital from some official visit.

By Alastair Matheson

Chief Evan Mwaia of Parklands.

But today the Chief in wide-brimmed headdress and white turban is to become more especially aware of the Kenya Government's interest in his administration.

As a result of this, Kenya has had many more administrative officers in the field to keep the Government in touch with the African population. Chief Evan Mwaia of Parklands is one of the African population in the setting of regional council with tribal members and their representatives. These chiefs, like their counterparts in the Reserves, are more closely in touch with the Government's administrative machinery and their respective responsibilities.

Although this new policy is a direct result of the Government's interest in the African population, it is a few months ago that the Government decided to set up a commission to study the situation in the city of Nairobi, where as much as 80 per cent of the population are living in slums. The commission was set up to study the situation in the Reserves.

Chief Mwaia takes a statement from a suspect.

For to them the Mau Mau gangster, were feeling it necessary to let the Government know of their activities in the Reserves. THE STORY OF THE BURIED PYRAMID

30 feet into the rubble which the bulldozer had piled up, another excavation was made. It was a small, rectangular structure, the size of a small house, and it was built of mud bricks. It was found in the middle of the rubble, and it was the only one of its kind.

SOME REFLECTIONS ON THE KENYA 1955 GOLF CHAMPIONSHIP

First Kitale winner plays brilliantly in final stage

THE holding of the 1955 Kenya amateur golf championship at Kitale this year was in the nature of a bold venture by the Kenya Golf Union. That it was successful is all the more pleasing. But it was mainly due to the tremendous amount of work put in by the hon. club officials that this was so. Prior to 1955, when the K.C.H. took over the administration of the event, it had been a Nairobi monopoly.

It was only in 1925 that the old Golf Union of E.A. was played at Nairobi in 1925 but for every practical purpose the championship of Kenya was established in 1928 and since then hundreds of times, having been held at Nakuru (1933-46-53) and most of Eldoret (1950) and Kisumu (1952). Nyeri (1953) and Kitale this year.

Second 'home' winner incidentally the only home club player among Nairobi and their own courses were the late George of Eldoret in 1926 and Dr. C. W. Marlowe at Kitale this year.

As has already been pointed out this year's championship was more than made up for the lack of members. It was a three-day event, the home club was at Kitale, Nairobi and Karen and the winners were, respectively, Kitale, Nairobi, Nairobi and Nairobi. Nairobi, Nairobi and Nairobi.

A notable absentee was Peter Talbot who has been playing most of his time in the U.K. and who has been the first time for many years that a foreigner has won the championship. Some 18 months of hard work.

Bantamweight title fight tomorrow. Willie Towler, South African bantamweight and featherweight champion, will attempt to wrest the world bantamweight title from Robert Cohen of France at Johannesburg tomorrow.

Towler is ranked second in the world and is the Italian champion. Cohen is the champion of France and Empire champion. He is the top contender for the world weight championship held by Paul Poirer of the Argentine.

Another African boxer, Robert South, is expected to fight in the U.K. in the near future.

6 REASONS

for using BP higher anti-knock

PLUS BP 08

• Quicker starting

• Better acceleration

• Smoother running

• More miles per gallon

• Prolonged engine life

• Longer periods between overhauls

BP motor spirit has now a new higher anti-knock value and contains a new additive—BPO8—developed by BP research to make more power available from your engine. Not only a powerful motor spirit but BPO8 as well! This new additive minimises combustion chamber deposits, keeps piston rings, valves and spark plugs in first-class order so maintaining full compression. As every motorist knows, this means more power — better all round performance.

A Uganda Loan

Underwriters in London were left with seventy per cent of the latest East African loan. Uganda sought to raise £2 million of its £7 per £100 of stock. The loan was for four and three quarters of interest at the rate of four per cent.

Celluloid Africa

There is no evidence at present that the recent report of political problems in East Africa is well founded. The nature of the report is, however, a serious one.
