Big housing schemes change Salisbury

MORE IMMIGRANTS EXPECTED

A GREAT housing drive is changing the face of Salisbury, the capital of the Central African Federation, in preparation for a growing stream of immigrants. When building plans for the past financial year - valued at nearly £1,000,000 more than for 1952 - were laid out, it was expected, accordingly, that 100,000 more people in the city would be housed.

Private firm to take over government commission

THE Southern Rhodesian Government and the Mining and Development Company for the formation of a limited liability company to run the Rhodesian Iron and Steel Commission, thus placing it in the hands of private enterprise, should be complete within the next six months.

This was stated in a statement by the Minister responsible for the commission, Mr. J. G. Brown, who has just returned from a five-week visit to the United Kingdom, where, with the Minister for the Treasury, the Hon. C. J. Hertz, he discussed the formation of the commission.

The Minister said the negotiations were aimed at the production of the commission's charter by the end of October, and that the commission would have a turnover of £20,000,000 a year to enable the production of steel for the first time in Africa, and Southern Rhodesia has annually in Britain.

First new coins circulate in Federation

THE first African Federation's new coins are in circulation. The Southern Rhodesian Federal Currency Board said the first set of new banknotes, recently designed in the Federal Government, has been issued in London.

The notes bear the inscription "The Southern Rhodesian Federation 1953" on the top. On the other side of the note the words "Central Bank of Southern Rhodesia" are printed. The notes are being transported between Salisbury and Cape Town.

INDEFINITE RATIONING OF MEAT

Beef shortage in Federation

CUTS in supplies of prime and standard beef, and a warning that rationing was expected to last indefinitely have been announced by the Federal Ministry of Agriculture.

Supplies of standard beef, which were reduced by 20 per cent on August 16, will be reduced by a further 20 per cent. From Tuesday allocations of prime beef will be cut by a further 10 per cent. The first cut in supplies of standard beef caused some of the prime beef to become available.

Mr. M. Caldwell, the Minister of Agriculture, has explained that the "Cold Storage Commission is making every effort to secure additional supplies of beef, and while indications are that rationing will have to continue, it is hoped that the supply of beef to holders will be increased in the near future.

CORRESPONDENCE

Land Tenure in Tanganyika

THE Hon. "A. A. Freeman" writes: "The Tanganyika Government has been a great deal of correspondence in these columns about how to improve the land, but surely the creation of free farmers would be a more effective way of increasing the output of the land."

Another way in which the Government could be helped to improve the land would be to provide the farmers with the necessary tools and equipment. This would be a more effective way of increasing the output of the land.

Sister Julietta's lonely task of healing at Barogoi Hospital for Kenya Nomads

IN the parched, bleak north of Kenya, life is dictated by two things - water for man and beast and grazing for the beasts. Because nomads cannot always provide these necessities for themselves, they are forced to wander from place to place in search of water and food. Sister Julietta, a nurse at Barogoi Hospital, is the only person who lives in these arid, wind-swept places most always keep for food and water there.

But the Government is trying to make the water for the nomads by constructing a dam at Barogoi. Sister Julietta is helping in this work by providing medical aid to the nomads who are suffering from various diseases.

Nyasaland farmers' record crop production MASTER SCHEME SUCCESS

DISPERSE and variable weather, crop production in Nyasaland last year reached record figures, according to a Colonial Office report on the Protectorate for the Federation of Rhodesia and Nyasaland. The report states that the Territory's main industry of agriculture showed that the progress of recent years was continuing, the total rubbery crop being the highest ever. As a result of this increase in output, the Government is expected to approve a number of individual farmers who will not only receive the usual standard of living from the land but will also set up an enterprise of some magnitude. The report states that the Government is encouraged to follow certain pre-arranged conditions of good farming, including consolidation of holdings, and the adoption of reclamation, irrigation, fertilization, and other measures. The report also states that the Government is encouraged to follow certain pre-arranged conditions of good farming, including consolidation of holdings, and the adoption of reclamation, irrigation, fertilization, and other measures.

Seven Days Away From The 'Madding Crowd'

This week's article by IAN McCULLOCH is adapted from his recent broadcasts and describes one way of spending a week's local leave.

In this picture the photographer has caught the magic and beauty of an East African sunset with the game pictures below are an example of the fine shots of game that can be obtained in the course of a trip south in the writer's district.

from the open line, and it will stand with rain. The charges are reasonable and tickets are now on sale in the office of both the Matania Hotel, M.K. My only regret on this occasion was that through a misunderstanding I missed seeing Mr. Taylor in this area, so I did not return to the hotel to see the rest of the pool and the lake of the night after meeting him. Of course that this would have made any difference to this article, for each secret is out for publication.

On the fifth morning of the holiday we came down from Matania and went to Arusha, the first town of our trip which we had entered since leaving Nairobi. In the Arusha district we had of course, expected to find both game and the amenities of urban life, but the country of the Ngurdoto Crater and of the slopes of Mount Meru came as a complete surprise. Ngurdoto is a tall, slender, conical mountain and the mountain is a fine example of a shield volcano. The way lies up a narrow, jagged track through dense forest, twisting through the green down to the edge of the crater and on to the rim. The rim is a narrow ledge of rock, and the crater floor is a vast, open plain. The view from the rim is a magnificent sight, and the atmosphere is one of peace and tranquility.

The slopes of Mount Meru, which we visited later the same afternoon, and the Ngurdoto Crater and the great dome of Kilimanjaro in the moonlight.

By any reasonable one may have forgotten to buy before leaving Nairobi or Arusha. Further, and more important, there is an intricate network of trails, many of which are very steep and which are very difficult to climb. It is essential to have a good map and a good guide. The trails are very well marked, and the scenery is very beautiful. The atmosphere is one of peace and tranquility.

SOCIAL EVENTS OUTSIDE NAIROBI

FOR holidays at the heart of the August-September period before the weather really warms up and, at annual, most of the hotels at Malindi have their full complement of visitors.

Enjoying the Malindi last week were many holiday-makers from the Rhodesias as Malindi is becoming increasingly the favourite of these tourists. Among them were Mr. and Mrs. N. A. Harland and Mr. and Mrs. John Turner from Southern Rhodesia.

Mrs. Clio Constantinidis had come down from Kampala and was accompanied by her niece, Miss Virginia from Cairo. Mrs. Harland Anderson of Malindi was doing her usual thing of taking her children to the park, including the medical department of the hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Mohlan were present at a beautiful garden charming in Malindi. Mrs. J. H. Mohlan was with Mrs. J. H. Mohlan and Mrs. J. H. Mohlan.

Over 80 members of the Malindi Women's Association, who were present at the last meeting held at the Malindi Hotel, were invited to travel to the Malindi Hotel for a social gathering.

THE OUTLOOK FOR THE OIL INDUSTRY

By G. P. GLASS
of the Shell Petroleum Co. Ltd.

THE CHANGING PATTERN OF WORLD ENERGY SUPPLIES

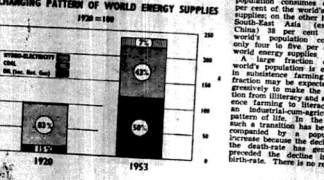

The industrial revolution of the 19th century was based on coal, but since the First World War the pattern of world energy supplies has changed and coal as a commercial source of energy has been increasingly complemented by hydro-electricity, natural gas, and, above all, oil.

In 1952, coal had lost the predominant position in world energy supplies which it held from 1880 to 1945. It is now second in importance, its share of the total world supply of energy being 25 per cent, compared with 35 per cent in 1920. The decline in coal's share of the world supply of energy is due to the fact that its production has increased only slightly in the last 30 years, while the demand for it has risen sharply. The world's total energy supply has increased by 100 per cent in the same period, and the increase in oil and gas supplies has been particularly marked.

Another important factor limiting oil demand has been the development of the use of oil in certain industries, for example in shipping, where it has replaced coal as the main source of power. The total merchant shipping tonnage has increased by 100 per cent in the last 30 years, and the use of oil has increased by 80 per cent in the same period. This change in shipping tonnage has been due to the fact that the world's total merchant shipping tonnage has increased by 100 per cent in the last 30 years, and the use of oil has increased by 80 per cent in the same period.

HOW TO PAIN

Why Phenic is better

ALL THE TIME, scientific research is going on to find a better way to relieve pain—without its ill effects, and how it can be done.

The intensity of pain, for instance, can now be measured, and the effectiveness of various pain-killers can be tested in a laboratory. The best of these is a substance called Phenic. It is a new kind of pain-killer, and it is much more effective than the old ones. It is also much safer, and it does not cause any of the side-effects of the old ones. It is a true breakthrough in the treatment of pain.

Outlook For The Oil Industry

adjusted to produce a larger output of the black oils. Here, the black oils will be accounted for by the lighter products for which demand is expected to take place.

Oil reserves

In January, 1934 the proven oil reserves of the free world amounted to about 18,000 million tons of crude oil. This lion's share of reserves is held by the United States but there are reserves for which possible reserves still await discovery. Many of these reserves will be used to meet the demand for oil in the short term. In the long run, it is not only the amount of oil reserves but also the rate at which they are used that will determine the future of the oil industry.

Looking ahead

In this connection it is interesting to look at the picture of the world's oil production. The U.S. produces about 10 million barrels per day and is expected to increase its production to 15 million barrels per day by 1940. The rest of the world produces about 10 million barrels per day and is expected to increase its production to 15 million barrels per day by 1940.

which it will have to face in the future. The demand for oil products is increasing rapidly and the production of the taxation of oil products is expected to increase. The industry has to face the problem of increasing the production of oil products and the taxation of oil products.

Finance

The financial picture which has faced the oil industry has always been formidable and is likely to become more so, rather than less, in the future. The industry has to face the problem of increasing the production of oil products and the taxation of oil products.

Summing up

Inflation has not only increased costs but has also increased the problem of securing the necessary capital for expansion. This problem has to be solved by the industry and the government.

What to look for when buying a Disc Harrow

A simple statement which makes perfect sense. The disc harrow is the most important piece of equipment for the farmer. It is the only piece of equipment that is used in every part of the world. It is the only piece of equipment that is used in every part of the world.

The McCormick International 9A Tractor Disc Harrow has all these features

It is more satisfying to the farmer than plowing acres of land and truly ploughed and harrowed. A well-prepared seedbed is not only good to look upon, though it is a good investment. Get your work done just as you want it done, whatever your soil conditions, with robust, efficient McCormick International implements.

If it's an I.I.I. machine, it's a real investment.

VALUABLE light is thrown on the cult of the goat-gods of the mountains of Africa by the discovery of a new method of identifying the goat-gods from their goat-shaped form.

After accepting Pan as their god, the Athenians made a cult for him on the slopes of the Akropolis and in various other places in the mountains of Attica. Thereafter he was known to have had a cult elsewhere, especially at the goat-gods, were not the goat-shaped god.

Several caves and grottoes, dedicated to the cult of Pan, have been found in mountains, more than 100 miles from the city of Athens, but not one was found by chance at Rome. The famous grotto, according to the report for getting offered a large cave of Pan, which Mr. Travlos told me.

PERSONALITIES OF THE KENYA STAGE

This Week's article in the series—on CHARLES OLLINGTON, whose production 'As Long As They're Happy' opens at the National Theatre tonight—is written by JOY NICHOLL.

Before joining the professional ranks, Charles Ollington tried his hand at several other plays in amateur dramatics and been interested in the theatre.

At London University—Charles is a Londoner born and bred—the brilliant, optimistic actor, who became an assistant producer, was the actor as a liaison officer between artist and technician, supervisor of the production and headmaster in his own right.

Deciding that the stage was where his heart lay, he joined the Royal Academy of Dramatic Art, where he studied for two years. He then worked in the theatre for a number of years, including a spell at the Old Vic, as leading actor. He then worked in the theatre for a number of years, including a spell at the Old Vic, as leading actor.

When Charles Ollington took his own time to go to the States, he brought a young actress, Sheila Boffin, who was married to the Old Vic, as leading actor. He then worked in the theatre for a number of years, including a spell at the Old Vic, as leading actor.

This diagram shows how a satellite might be launched by rocket and placed in an orbit around the earth. (1) The rocket propels the entire assembly some 100 miles above the earth through the densest part of the atmosphere. (2) At the end of its run the first rocket detaches the rest of the assembly from its vertical axis. (3) Second rocket stage fires and the satellite is placed in a 16,000 mile per hour, 160,000 mile high orbit. (4) Third rocket stage falls away. (5) The satellite is left in orbit circling the earth.

WORLD SCIENTISTS AWAIT THE FIRST MAN-MADE SATELLITE

SCIENTISTS are looking forward with eagerness to launching the first earth-circling satellite as a means of obtaining answers to a host of questions which may usher in a new era of progress in the earth sciences.

It also fosters the interchange of scientific information among scientists in the United States and other countries. The construction and launching of the satellite represents a part of the United States contribution to the activities of the International Geophysical Year.

The satellite is expected to be launched in the next few weeks. It will be launched in a vertical position and will be placed in a circular orbit at an altitude of 160,000 miles above the earth's surface.

BEFORE it is launched, the satellite will be subjected to a series of tests to determine its ability to withstand the conditions of space.

Surrenders continue at 15 a day: 291 killed in month

SURRENDERS continued to average 15 a day, maintaining a steady drain on terrorist manpower, according to the official report for August. In addition, the month saw the elimination of many leaders "most affected by the 'drain' of the gangs." During the month 291 were killed, 291 were captured and 277 surrendered. The high rate at which the terrorists were being killed was maintained in spite of the fact that only 17 new recruits were withdrawn from the ranks by the Government.

The figure was maintained at the rate that the day, but with some variations in the number of the total. Three African members of the security forces were killed and 20 were wounded. Successful sweeps

Recently there had been an increase in the number of vegetable and grain rather than the usual crops. The success achieved by farmers in driving out the terrorists. There were indications in the reports of the month that the Government was making a serious attempt to persuade non-terrorist members of the Mau Mau to return to the Government.

Concrete Spreads Across The Sky

The age must create its own architecture out of its own technology, and one which is expressive of the spirit of the times'

By Mary Handy

WHEN concrete and steel were first developed by architects used the materials as they had been used in stone and timber. The Romans built the Pantheon using concrete because they might have used it.

Modern concrete can do much more than build walls and roofs. Builders use concrete for floors, stairs, and even for the structure of buildings.

with steel. The new steel and concrete structures have opened up new possibilities for architects. They have built the most exciting examples of contemporary architecture in the United States.

The man who conceived the idea for it is the young architect Ezra Saarinen, the son of another well-known Finnish architect.

"Finally" says the man who conceived this unusual building "we must recognize the importance of steel as a primary architectural element - and develop a new sense of space where space becomes more important than form."

The building is described as a "shell" of concrete which seems to rest upon the steel bones of its structure. The concrete is poured in three layers, each one three inches deep, between the steel beams.

grey ceiling and the rectangular panels that hang from it. These he called "clouds". These "clouds" are suspended from the ceiling by thin cables.

Building the auditorium was not an easy job. It took two years to complete. The interior walls are not in all places before the concrete is poured.

William D. Bates, will tell you, and a concrete and steel building started after each morning.

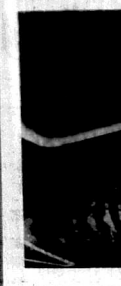

The result is a distinction of detail - evident in the beautifully mottled light aluminium window sash, the custom-made hand rail, the special door knobs.

DENIED BY CHANCELLOR Convertibility and valuation undecided U.S. WARNED ON TRADE: DEAR GOLD SUPPORTED

REPORTS that sterling convertibility and a devaluation of the £ were imminent were refuted by the British Chancellor of the Exchequer, Mr. Butler, when the 10th annual meeting of the International Monetary Fund was resumed in Istanbul.

"I wish to make it clear that we do not contemplate any early move on any... aspect of the valuation of the £... British Government had not taken any decision on the timing of convertibility of sterling or on the nature of the exchange arrangements after that date.

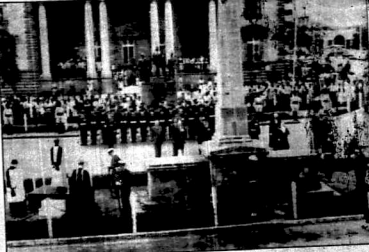

While acknowledging President Eisenhower's programme in the U.S. gold reversion policy had been slow in recent weeks there had been signs of both sterling and gold exchange rates being held only in a "wait and see" attitude.

Mr. Butler supported the South African view that an increase in the dollar would assist the world in securing a permanent solution to the problems of creating an enduring equilibrium in world payments.

TOP SPRINGBOKS MAKE MUCH MEAL FOR LIONS

British Isles win after trailing at half time

THE British Isles Rugby Union touring team beat the Junior Springboks by three goals (15 points) to two tries in a dogged match and a penalty goal (points) in an afternoon at Worcester. The Lions were the better side and deserved to win but they showed their class in the second half when they were only one or two points off the brilliant football they played earlier in the tour.

They won a decisive majority of the scrums and lineouts but there was seen of their danger in three-quarter play, as Cliff Murrell was outstanding in the scrum. The Lions were more than sound.

Murrell had his ankle bagged during the interval and the referee was given his danger in three-quarter play, as Cliff Murrell was outstanding in the scrum. The Lions were more than sound.

Opportunities tried
Robin Cook at Interval, easily took the scrum and the Free State and Junior Springboks' losses. The scrum was won by Steve Williams (Wales) and Tom Ford (Ireland), who were crowned as winners.

The British backs had a good start but they failed to take any advantage from their early success. Only one of their tries came from a scrum, but the other two were opportunistic.

Although it was a (Wales), the fullback converted two tries, but missed several fairly easy penalty kicks at goal.

Two forward movements
The British line opened their attack in the last minute of the first half when Frank Ryan, who scored two tries, and a scrum, showed how much he had improved since his last tour.

FIVE MORE APPOINTMENTS IN UGANDA

NEED FOR UNION GUIDANCE

Responsibility of employers

BECAUSE of the increasing responsibility of employers in East African trade unions, the major good relations between the unions and employers are with the employers.

This was stated by Mr. Walter Vidler, Kenya, in a speech at the 7th U.C.U. conference in Nairobi on the subject of "The Responsibility of Employers in East Africa". He said that in the past, the responsibility of employers was not taken into account in the formation of trade unions in East Africa but now it is being taken into account.

Strengthen ties

He hopes the effect of his speech will be to strengthen ties between employers and workers in East Africa and in Kenya.

Mr. Vidler is Secretary of the 7th U.C.U. Conference in Nairobi for the year 1955-56. He is also Secretary of the Kenya Federation of Labour. He has been in East Africa for many years and is well known in the trade union movement.

Composition of new Council

FIVE new members of Uganda Legislative Council have been appointed, it was announced in Kampala yesterday. The announcement also gave details of the composition of the new Council which has 20 African Members.

Dr. David Laga has been re-elected as Member of the Legislative Council in place of Mr. A. E. Hughes. Mr. M. M. Kinyanjui and Dr. Kinyanjui are appointed to the Council.

Legislation aims to validate Kenya awards

A bill introduced in the Uganda Legislative Council aims to validate awards made by the Kenya Government to members of the Kenya Legislative Council. The bill is sponsored by the Kenya Government and is intended to give legal effect to awards made by the Kenya Government to members of the Kenya Legislative Council.

Fares reduced for students in India

The Eastern Shipping Corporation has announced that it will reduce fares for students travelling to India. The reduction is intended to encourage more students to travel to India for their studies.

Indian Bill seeks to ban sale of horror comics

A bill introduced in the Indian Parliament seeks to ban the sale of horror comics. The bill is intended to protect children from the harmful effects of horror comics.

Sir Wislizenus's holiday

Sir Wislizenus, the British High Commissioner in Kenya, is on holiday in Kenya. He will be absent from his duties for a period of two weeks.

Tanganyika's population in a 'critical' juncture

URGENT revolutionary signs are being revealed according to the High report of the Game Department, presented by Mr. J. C. Game Wardens. It may be necessary to take measures with electric fences, which had previously been very effective as game-fence barriers.

Poaching prevalent

The District Commissioner, Mwanza, says in the report that the number of poachers is increasing and that they are using more sophisticated methods.

BUTHERS IN KAMPALA PETITION COMMISSION

Protest at new marketing scheme

A PETITION protesting about the present milk marketing arrangements in Kampala was given to the Kenya Milk Commission authorities in Nairobi yesterday by a delegation of five Kampala butchers. The petition, signed by 24 butchers and cattle dealers in Kampala, urges the Commission to allow a return to the earlier arrangement whereby butchers bought their cattle from the Eldoret branch of the Kenya Meat Commission.

THE LONDON AUTUMN AND WINTER COLLECTIONS

I HAVE recently had the pleasure of seeing the autumn and winter collections of London's leading couturiers and this season it was indeed a pleasure.

There was much that was new in both cut and line, colours were exciting and the clothes generally made the most use of every opportunity of the autumn. In fact, the designers of London certainly are overabundant in ideas. The most interesting Londoner (Cavendish) feeling the pulse of the fashion line are in the vanguard of London fashion.

As one would expect from London, many of the designers showed the classicly tailored suits for which they are renowned, notably Digby Martin, whose interest was in the pocket detail. But added by the intricate narrow lines define new trends in suit design.

Michael, with his "kink" line, has had more success in the more shapely lines. He has a long curved line jacket in the more feminine of the autumn. The curve of the jacket hemline was followed by the broad sleeve-head and shoulder. The jacket length here was shorter and worn with red slim skirts.

With a different interpretation of the fashion for jackets, length, Cavanaugh and jackets which were, indeed, shorter than the average. They were straight fitted to the hips at side and back, with narrow skirts, a tapering line from shoulder to hem was also achieved, more noticeably by Blaine.

In contrast to the shorter jacket, Lachaise showed a "Comet" line, the Empire "High" fitting, seem to have been a fashion of the autumn, with slightly flared fullness starting immediately beneath the bust. The bell line to the jacket hem once again topped a slim skirt.

In all the collections, dresses were slightly squarer, with waist narrow, with the sleeve cut in more fitted, the collar were low standing and curved, and pockets, where used, low set. Skirts on the whole were slim, but where fullness was noticeable this was introduced from a low hip mark, through a number of pleated skirts set in flat to a hip line.

For dress the long, unbroken line predominated, the waist being gently defined but not pronounced. Michael Sheeran interpreted this with skirt fullness flaring from a low dipping hip vertebra, giving a graceful interest in silhouette, and many of his dresses were fitted, with long, unbroken lines, lined with contrasting fur.

Bodices were moulded high under the bust, again showing the Empire influence, in some cases embellished by the use and button fastenings, giving an impression of the long line of the dress. The slim black dress from the new made a marked return, often with back pleated fullness caught by a low set curved belt.

For coats and cocktail wear the scene was dominated by the straight dress or long fabric, in rich governmental materials, the straight and curved panels. An interesting treatment of line was shown by Michael, with his slim, rimmed, sheer dress worn with a matching belted jacket, hugging the hips with a shodded line.

The smooth high bust line was maintained in the short evening dresses, followed by a back draped skirt. Necklines were simple and wide, sometimes framed by back-draping designs. There are short dresses were often shown with self-trimmed coats of thick wool, John Cavanaugh showed a spectacular deep pile velvet coat over a satin dress of pale orchid silk.

Magouette ball gowns are always a feature of the London Collections — this season with immense skirts and elaborate bodices, often, but there was also a marked feeling for the slim full length evening gown. One lovely model by Wren in pearl's fillets of lace, with a big soft ruffling to form a loose fitted panel. Draped evening gowns appeared at several points, with a long, flowing line, and a new trend in line and re-introducing classic for evening wear.

Although the demand for surface interest remains, a much more sober look prevailed throughout. The fabrics for daywear, flirty even textures, with checks and diagonal weaves, plain and subtle-contrasted, and cloths were used for male and female. The most notable mixture of the two.

For afternoon dresses, a sim-banching, crepe in rayon and silk, were interesting, the feeling for the return of draped dress, but crepe if they are to be again popular must not be limp in hand.

Paper-weight tulleas quite often with an interesting effect appeared in many of the Collections and Tulleas too were important. "Artistic" women with pure silk, crepe, and tulle, and a sweepy handle and points were a revival of the 1920s.

Velvet was important in many of the designs, including suits, day dresses, and evening dresses. The dramatic evening dress, a cocktail dress, and a suit.

Suits was undoubtedly the evening wear, with a touch of silk or tulle, and a touch of the shades of wistaria and purple.

Lace dresses were outstanding in many of the Collections, and these frequently showed beautiful designs of arabesque on a dark background.

Deep midnight blue arabesque suit has been worn by Michael Sheeran for this winter evening gown. The new Royal tulleas, tulleas, draped evening gowns, the long line of the panels and a further touch of elegance is added by a band of ruffing neck.

A lovely black erge in rayon and wool has been used by Lachaise for this elegant afternoon dress. Clever draping suggests the slim line of the skirt is shaded with soft folds on one hip, and black velvet enhances the squared neckline.

WHEN YOU POST A LETTER...

The Story Of The International Mail Service

Less than two lifetimes ago a letter mailed from one country to another might have been subjected to more 1,200 different postal rates.

The realization of the possibilities of financial gain to be made through extensive mail charges caused many countries to take flagrant advantage of postal rates.

Rivalry

This has been suggested by further aggression by the United States, which has communications from other countries, each of which believed to be particularly large, should be the prevailing one.

The 13 countries whose representatives attended the initial Paris meeting included the United Kingdom, Egypt, and the United States.

to charge to the country originating the mail. Transit mail, however, is subject to certain charges.

An example

As an example, a letter mailed from Paris to New York, addressed for delivery in the United States, would also be sent for transit postage through France, and then for the United States.

To arrive at fair transit postage for transit mail, national mail stampings are usually taken into account.

Every time that the Postal Congress is held in Paris, the Postal Union meets in London to discuss the progress of the postal service.

One of the provisions in the Postal Union charter provides that group of its members may formal joining in even closer union than the Union.

Benefits

The fact that a letter can be sent by air or by ship, and by trunk through its own own particular route.

ULANOVA IS STILL DANCING AT 45

GALINA ULANOVA, ballerina, has resumed her dancing career at the age of 45 after recovering from a big muscle injury which it was thought at one time might prevent her from returning.

Instead, she has reappeared at the Casino Bolshoi Theatre and has plans to dance there a few times more. She says she will not be dancing as long as she has been dancing. "I am strong enough," she said when asked to comment on her age, "but she had ended her career."

IRENE MARTIN'S Story For The Children Patch And Koko At The School

PATCH and KOKO were waiting in the car. The Master was going into the village to do some shopping.

"All right, I'll be back soon," said the Master. "I'll call in on Miss Simpkin on my way back."

Miss Simpkin was the village schoolmistress. When the Master and Koko were in the village, she was always there.

"Let's go and investigate," said Koko. "I'll go with you." The Master carried the jam into Miss Simpkin's sitting room.

AFRICA'S 'VITAL FOR'

Edward urges closer working relations

STATUS OUTLOOK IN THREE TERRITORIES

Neighbourly relations cannot be afforded in East Africa: the Governor of Tanganyika, Sir G. Crowder, has said at the annual dinner of the East Africa Association at Fanga. He has to work together, going on to say that it is necessary to do so, not only in cases where the people are friendly, but in cases where they are not. He said that in Tanganyika, a very large number of people have been coming to the island, and that his attitude should be to bring to improve our relationship, to be friendly and not to irritate sensitive spots.

Tanganyika is a developing country, and he takes place in the wide world, and he is sure that the people in danger of coming to feel that we are the only partner on terms of equality with them.

In the past, we in Tanganyika have been two worlds apart, and he said that the attitude of the people in East Africa has developed into the industrial and agricultural world, and he said that Tanganyika is now a very important part of the world, and he said that it is necessary to bring to improve our relationship, to be friendly and not to irritate sensitive spots.
