

U.K. buyers defend 'ridiculous prices'

STORM IN A TEACUP GROWS

The storm over the price of tea which was started by Sir John Kotelawala, the Prime Minister of Ceylon, flared up again on Saturday night when the British Tea Trade Commission issued a challenge to him. Sir John claimed last week that the British tea growers were selling tea at "ridiculous prices" and that the Commission returned tea to take into account the fact that the Government had to pay for the cost of the tea.

Jungle Behind The Geraniums

By ROBINA WRIGHT

In a recent article, Ely S. Wright remarked that nothing, save perhaps a farm, can take the place of a garden in a child's life. That is very true. But how many of us when planning a garden really take the children into account? Some say "Oh, it's no use trying to make a decent garden while the children are small," and resign themselves to a mass of loam for some years.

Others are afraid with their children that they will be at a glance that no handsome garden really endures year after year from amidst their grubbiness, nor intricate hedges, mostly along their immediate paths.

You can cater for this in a garden, and it is a good idea whatever you feel about the time of children, but youngsters will keep out of the vegetable patch and a few pot perennials if only they have a few corners there.

The Green parrot and his family take up their impetuous ways. Inevitably, there is a number of killing and pecking operations on the part of the birds when they are engaged in the work of digging the earth. It is a good idea to put a few "red" and "white" geraniums in a border, and these will be killed by the children's feet, but they will be replaced by new ones in a few weeks.

Another idea is to plant a few "red" and "white" geraniums in a border, and these will be killed by the children's feet, but they will be replaced by new ones in a few weeks.

I often hear the children referred to as "jungle" in our own minds, which is not far from the truth. A garden is a great path between the child and the world. It is a place where they can learn to love the earth and the things that grow in it.

A recipe for skewered lamb

HERE is a recipe from the Arabian Nights for a good lamb skewer. It is a recipe that has been used for at least one century, if not two. It is a recipe that is simple and easy to make, and it is a recipe that is sure to be enjoyed by all who eat it.

Take a few pounds of mutton, cut it into small pieces, and season it with salt and pepper. Then skewer it on small sticks, and grill it over a charcoal fire.

When you are ready to eat, brush the skewers with a mixture of oil and lemon juice, and serve them with a sauce of your own making.

MINISTERS FIRM OVER FUTURE OF HIGHLANDS

ELECTORS' UNION delegates meeting in Nairobi yesterday passed a resolution planning their faith in the "clear policy" of the British Government and the assurances by successive Colonial Secretaries on the future of the Highlands.

The resolution, which also deplored the attitude of the present Government, was adopted by Mr. C. J. M. Albert's suggestion that the Highlands were a "political and economic anachronism" underlined the firmness of the British Government's policy. That Ordinance would remain unaltered in both the spirit and letter of the law. It stressed that Europeans were not prepared to discuss the matter now or at any later date.

Mr. L. R. M. Welwood, Minister for Forest Development, yesterday said that he was sure that the British Government would remain firm in its policy. He said that the British Government would not be swayed by the pressure of the selectors to change the present policy. He said that the British Government would not be swayed by the pressure of the selectors to change the present policy.

TIME LIMIT TO 'SURRENDERS'

Statement by Government on final date expected today

THE Kenya Government is to give an indication in the Legislative Council today of the date on which the surrender offer to Mau Mau terrorists will end. Mr. Michael Buncick, Minister without Portfolio, said delegates to the Executive Union conference in Nairobi yesterday that it was not intended to make an announcement until the final date was known.

AFRICAN MIND

Mr. Buncick said the responsibility for the Mau Mau rebellion was not shared equally by the British and the Africans. He said that the British had a major role to play in the rebellion.

BLIZZARD RAGES OVER BRITAIN

Heavy snow and high winds were reported over the British Isles yesterday. The blizzard caused significant disruption to transport and communication.

Real issue

Mr. Buncick said that the real issue in the Mau Mau rebellion was the demand for self-government. He said that the British Government was committed to the principle of self-government for the African people.

Chamber of Commerce warning on parking problem CONGESTION INCREASES COSTS

NAIROBI'S parking facilities were attacked on Tuesday night when the Chamber of Commerce debated the City Council's proposals that shops should remain open longer to take advantage of goods out of peak traffic hours. No decision was taken on the committee's report. The whole question is for further investigation. Several speakers urged a stronger and firmer outlook towards all-day parking in busy streets. Suggestions on the included parking fees for parks, more car parks on the fringes of the city, better bus services and the provision of multi-storied parking buildings.

The debate began when Mr. A. letter was read from Mr. A. who said that the factor was not so important as the difficulty of a delivery of goods when many cars in the city were with market cars. Letters were being submitted for their having to wait until after 10 p.m. to get their parcels with packages.

As long as the congestion is there, more cars would be coming to the city. It was suggested that there be a few more parking spaces on the fringes of the city. It was also suggested that there be a few more parking spaces on the fringes of the city.

Rhodesia seeks more European emigrants

PANEL'S AID TO BE ENLISTED

THE Federal Government of Rhodesia and Nyasaland is to seek membership of the Inter-Governmental Committee for European Migration, as part of the plan to increase the rate of immigration. This was announced at Lusitania on February 18 by Mr. J. M. Greenwood, the Federal Minister of Home Affairs, who said he hoped that the body would establish a representative in Central Africa. The Inter-Governmental Committee was set up to assist over-populated countries by arranging emigration to countries in need of a larger population.

Members of the committee will be drawn — one from the ten types of countries mentioned and from "representative" countries, such as the United States, which, while sending settlers, do not accept immigrants. Mr. Greenwood said that the view that the Federation was too big to Europe was not a reason for not accepting immigrants, and that more use was to be made of the organization and research which had been done in the past.

Mr. Greenwood referred to the Immigration Survey of the Federation and said that the survey was not merely descriptive, but also prescriptive. He said that the survey had shown that the early stages of settlement had become more and more dependent on the services of the Government, and that the Government was now in a position to take over the management of the early stages of settlement. He said that the Government was now in a position to take over the management of the early stages of settlement.

Mr. Greenwood said the last 100,000 acres of land in the Federation were now being used for agriculture. He said that the Government was now in a position to take over the management of the early stages of settlement.

Commission opposes Kenya lottery

STRICTER CONTROL OF GAMBLING ADVOCATED

The Commission on Betting and Lotteries, which in July 1952 reported its findings, that there should be no betting and lotteries in Kenya, has today published a preliminary report in which it has recommended that the Government should set up a commission to consider the possibility of introducing a lottery in Kenya. The report, which is the result of a year's work, has been presented to the Government and has been a subject of discussion in the House of Representatives. The Commission's findings are based on a study of the various forms of gambling and lotteries in other countries, and on the views of the public. It is of the opinion that the introduction of a lottery in Kenya would be a step towards the control of gambling, and that it would be a source of revenue for the Government. TRIBAL POLICE FIGHTING FIT FOR NEW ROLE

Battle courses at Kanda

KENYA'S Tribal Police recruits are being trained through battle courses to fit them for increased responsibilities in the maintenance of law and order in the African areas. These courses are being expanded to 4,000 and many of the new recruits will be drawn from the Kisumu Division of the Kenya Police.

A District Officer who came from the United Kingdom to the East African Police Force to study the 67 Tribal Police units has commented in a survey report which is being prepared by his headquarters.

400 short dead

When he is not flinging them into the air, the District Officer is busy in his study, but they spend a considerable part of their time in the field. The District Officer has commented in a survey report which is being prepared by his headquarters.

GLIDING COMES TO KENYA

GLIDING has come to Kenya. The new sport is being introduced by a party of five, including a pilot, through the efforts of young R.A.F. regulars who have given up all their spare time for the past three months to build the Colony's first trainer glider.

At the end of last year and early in this year, the R.A.F. men, flying every evening, have been working together to build a glider. The glider is a standard 'C.I.' glider, which will soon be ready for use. It is a simple glider, in which young pilots will soon be learning to fly. The glider is being built to cover the time when the pilot's first trainer glider, Colony's first trainer glider, is being built.

Two months

In a workshop of the R.A.F. Station at Malindi, the glider is being built. The glider is being built by a party of five, including a pilot, through the efforts of young R.A.F. regulars who have given up all their spare time for the past three months to build the Colony's first trainer glider.

Built his own

MEANWILE at Nairobi, a young R.A.F. pilot has built his own glider. The glider is being built by a party of five, including a pilot, through the efforts of young R.A.F. regulars who have given up all their spare time for the past three months to build the Colony's first trainer glider.

The cost

WITHOUT the R.A.F. help the glider's owners, who are all of them enthusiasts, will call themselves the Kenya Gliding Club. The club was formed by a party of five, including a pilot, through the efforts of young R.A.F. regulars who have given up all their spare time for the past three months to build the Colony's first trainer glider.

How it began

It was then, early in 1952, that the Aviation Officer of the Nairobi District, Mr. Post, was approached by a party of five, including a pilot, through the efforts of young R.A.F. regulars who have given up all their spare time for the past three months to build the Colony's first trainer glider.

General Crossan and crew on the wing glider, the most difficult part of a job on which he has been successful.

The club's prospects are bright. The glider is being built by a party of five, including a pilot, through the efforts of young R.A.F. regulars who have given up all their spare time for the past three months to build the Colony's first trainer glider.

BRC WELDED FABRIC FOR CONCRETE REINFORCEMENT

EVER since he was a boy in 1908, the late Mr. A. B. Crossan was a pianist. He was a pianist by profession, and he was a pianist by passion. He was a pianist by nature, and he was a pianist by habit. He was a pianist by choice, and he was a pianist by fate.
