U.S. ROLE IN H-BOMB WAR

Free to retaliate against surprise raid on Britain

SIR WINSTON CHURCHILL stated in the House of Commons that he approved the United States might if an "immediate, destructive, surprise and treacherous" attack by the hydrogen bomb was made on Britain.

A Labour Member had asked in the House of Commons for the precise reason for the agreement between President Eisenhower and the Prime Minister by which British-based American planes were to become engaged in operations without involving the United States.

The British Government would not reveal the contents of the agreement, Mr. Kenneth Robinson, in a statement, said on the subject last night.

Mr. Robinson further said the Prime Minister is content that the agreement would open the way for a more complete and effective co-operation between the two nations in the light of the fact that the United States has been independently developing atomic energy and that the United Kingdom has been independently developing atomic energy.

Mr. Robinson said that the United Kingdom has been independently developing atomic energy and that the United States has been independently developing atomic energy.

E. A. COMMAND CHAMPIONSHIPS PRODUCE FINE BOXING

Two holders retain titles with McArdle outstanding

THE E.A. Command Boxing Championships, fought in the Services Sports Ground open-air ring in Nairobi on Friday night, provided a high standard of boxing and clever bouts and extremely good sporting. Col. King (middleweight) and Capt. King (lightweight) retained their trophies but lightweight champion Pao. Norcott, retained disqualification in the final for what appeared to be an unintentional foul.

The organization was excellent and the crowd size of the big night was estimated at 1,500. The prize money was very good and the fights were hard and well-attended.

The Governor, Sir Evelyn Baring, presented the trophies to winners and runners-up at the end of each bout. A popular feature of the evening was the playing of the E.A. Command March before the first bout and during the interval.

Two splendid semi-finals

The evening opened with the lightweight division in which the title was held by the E.A. Commanders, was contested by Sgt. Quinn. The latter, a clever boxer, was almost the stronger and Commanders was often beaten to the punch when he decided to attack and, although heavy, was a tired and well-beaten boxer at the end of the bout. In the semi-final Pao. McArdle, the holder, was with both feet on the ground but by knockout, did the same thing on Friday night. Pao. McArdle, the holder, was with both feet on the ground but by knockout, did the same thing on Friday night. Pao. McArdle, the holder, was with both feet on the ground but by knockout, did the same thing on Friday night.

Aggressive winner

The first light-weight semi-final produced a fight in which Sgt. Wrenner fought to win of the aggressive Pao. Norcott (middleweight). Forced to fight to his wits with his stronger opponent in the latter part of the bout, Wrenner weathered the second round but was again beaten in the third. There was less action in the first round of the second light-weight semi-final, both Col. King and Pao. Norcott boxing with caution. Last night's night margin in the round, for close and unbroken Pao. Norcott (middleweight) tried to pin his man (lightweight) but was unsuccessful. In the second round, Norcott was again unsuccessful in his attempt to pin his man. In the third round, Norcott was again unsuccessful in his attempt to pin his man. In the fourth round, Norcott was again unsuccessful in his attempt to pin his man.

Result of the final bouts

Lightweight: Pao. Norcott (E.A. Command) vs. Sgt. Quinn (E.A. Command). Middleweight: Pao. Norcott (E.A. Command) vs. Sgt. Quinn (E.A. Command). Heavyweight: Pao. Norcott (E.A. Command) vs. Sgt. Quinn (E.A. Command).

A gallant loser

Smith was wanted for his gallant performance in the first round and appeared to be in the second round but was again unsuccessful in his attempt to pin his man. In the third round, Smith was again unsuccessful in his attempt to pin his man. In the fourth round, Smith was again unsuccessful in his attempt to pin his man.

Clever defence

The fight was a very good fight, with well-timed and stylish L.C. Col. King (middleweight) taking the measure of L.C. Col. King (middleweight). Col. King was very clever in his defence and was able to avoid the punches of his opponent. In the second round, Col. King was again successful in his defence. In the third round, Col. King was again successful in his defence.

We would like to pay tribute to Mr. A. C. Pace, the Biscuit Consultant from the United Kingdom who has given to the benefit of his 30 years' world-wide experience and done so much to raise the quality of Whitehouse Biscuits.

His advice has done so much for us that we have received letters from customers in all parts of East Africa complimenting us on our high standard.

In addition, to ensure freshness and crispness at all times, we are now using "Flex-o-foil" wrappers - the modern anti-climatic wrapper. Whitehouse Biscuits come to you fresh and with a most appetizing taste. We are doing all we can in all stages of production to satisfy even the most exacting customer...

but there is no increase in the price.

Ask for them by name and be sure of getting the best - it's the quality that counts!

PROTEST OVER MONEY FOR ROADS: RATING PROPOSALS EXPLAINED

RATEPAYERS in the district gathered at Thika Sports Club on Tuesday evening to hear the rating proposals made to Nairobi County Council. But they also took the opportunity to discuss the opportunity to discuss the County R. Martin, chairman of the County Rates and Assessment Committee.

After hearing Coun. Martin's explanation, Mr. J. C. Everard, Chairman of the Eastern Rural District Council, pointed out that the ratepayers of the district, situated, Dorey, and Thika would also not support the proposals unless the reasons stated for rates would not be met in the future.

'Damage by houses'
"It is not the ratepayers who damage our roads," he said. "These damage the roads here and it is the ratepayers who have to pay."

Coun. Martin replied that the rating proposals had nothing to do with money required for roads and industrial areas. He said that the rating proposals had nothing to do with money required for roads and industrial areas. He said that the rating proposals had nothing to do with money required for roads and industrial areas.

"You will be asked to fill in a rating form," he said. "It will be the value of the house. What we are trying to do is to arrive at a percentage value."

Shuttle of labour
"Cars in Kenya are not a luxury," Coun. Monday replied. "If every penny were spent on cars, we would not have the labour to do the work in any case. The Government says if that were done we would have to tax in other directions to raise money."

Governor on tour of dependencies
Mr. Donald Hargreave Arthur, Governor of the Falkland Islands, has sailed from Port Stanley in the Royal Research ship John Biscoe on a 2000-mile tour of the dependencies.

Living standards
Coun. Martin said that the Government has three principles in mind when considering the rating proposals.

"Rates should be paid according to the standard of living of ratepayers and not according to the value of their property," he said.

278,560 arrests since start of the Emergency M.P.'s QUESTIONS ON KENYA

In reply to questions in the House of Commons, Mr. Lennox-Boyd, the Colonial Secretary, has published official figures of arrests, prosecutions, executions and detentions resulting from Mass Mau activities in Kenya. They reveal that up to February 12, a total of 278,560 have been arrested, of whom 10,564 were released after preliminary questioning, 217,766 were screened, 110,173 released after screening, 111,022 acquitted and 501 awaiting trial.

At February 7, a total of 18,228 Mau Mau arrests were in custody.

The figures do not include detentions during "Operation Anvil", in which 23,000 were arrested, 13,500 were released after preliminary questioning and 9,548 released after screening.

Mr. Lennox-Boyd stated that 30,114 detainees in holding and detention camps, 13,900 in work camps and 1,489 in transit camps up to February 11, there were 800 executions.

Safety improved

Mr. Hector Hughes (Labour) asked the Colonial Secretary what steps were being taken to prevent those who were released and who declared themselves in favour of law and order, and what steps were being taken to ensure people who return to safety.

Mr. Lennox-Boyd replied that they were being taken in the progressive improvement in the situation in Kenya. Mr. F. W. Harris (Conservative) who asked for a question in the work of some screening camps.

The Minister pointed out that the Kenya Government was conscious of that difficulty and had set up a committee which had reported that the new screening camps.

Asked by Mr. Hughes for a statement on military progress made to Kenya and on whether they were now any nearer to ending the Mau Mau trouble than they were at the end of 1951, the Colonial Secretary said he would hesitate to do so.

Multiracial Government

One could say that as a result of military operations, the military had been able to leave the central area largely in the hands of the civil administration, and it had proved possible to maintain law and order in those areas with the minimum of military backing.

Mr. J. Griffiths (Labour), asked the Colonial Secretary if he into the matter and what action had been taken in respect of persons who had been seen covering advances of the law.

Mr. Lennox-Boyd said, police officers were being recruited and the Government was further increasing the number of various multiracial in Kenya had been set up. He said that persons who had advocated defiance of the law.

Pressure on pamphlets

Mr. Leslie said: "In view of the fact that the pamphlets were taken by the White settlers and the Government would have led to their apprehension, the Government will consider to it that such and similar pamphlets be taken to the Government to break the circulation of such pamphlets."

Mr. Leslie in answer to a question asked by Mr. Harris, said that the Government was taking steps to ensure that the circulation of such pamphlets was kept to a minimum.

Widespread dismay

Mr. J. Johnson (Labour) drew attention to what he described as the widespread dismay felt in Kenya at the action of the Government in distributing the pamphlets.

Mr. Johnson asked the Government to consider the possibility of withdrawing the pamphlets and to consider the possibility of withdrawing the pamphlets.

The New Emergency Regulations which were made in 1951 were published by up to two years' improvement and for a total of 2,500 to communicate.

Mr. Johnson asked the Government to consider the possibility of withdrawing the pamphlets and to consider the possibility of withdrawing the pamphlets.

Transfers in Colonial Service Defended

Wider experience from changes

The transfer of Colonial Service officers from one area to another was defended in the House by Mr. Lennox-Boyd, the Colonial Secretary after questions regarding the effect of such transfers on efficiency.

Mr. J. M. Alport (Conservative) asked if the Colonial Secretary was aware of the fact that the number of transfers was not unduly high, nor were officers transferred without very special reasons before coming to a reasonable time in a particular post.

Mr. Lennox-Boyd replied that the number of transfers was not unduly high, nor were officers transferred without very special reasons before coming to a reasonable time in a particular post.

NEW 'COLD RUBBER' TYRE MAZES USERS Ten month secret out

A statement issued by the Goodyear Tyre and Rubber Company—world's largest tyre manufacturers—reveals that the Goodyear Plus 10 has been made with Cold Rubber since its introduction 10 months ago. This new method of manufacture is described as "far and away the most important tyre development in recent years."

The Plus 10 has made old types of passenger tyres out-of-date. Goodyear knew this when it was launched ten months ago. Since then motorists have been reporting that their Plus 10's are showing hardly any sign of treadwear while old type tyres on other wheels are just about finished. They have been writing to ask what the secret is. Now it can be told. Cold Rubber is the answer, plus their know-how in tyre manufacture.

of 120 deg. F., in the case of ordinary rubber. This results in a molecular structure twice as compact, and in far greater toughness and hard-wearing qualities. The dramatic increase in the tread life of this new product, long known to Goodyear research experts, is now revealing itself to motorists.

Whole Tyre Redesigned

In order to stand up to the longer life of the new Cold Rubber tread, Goodyear redesigned the whole body of the Plus 10. "It's no good having a tread like the Plus 10 tread, if the tyre body can't take the thousands of extra miles," commented a Goodyear expert. The carcass is far stonger in every respect, and in addition the Plus 10 tread is wider and deeper than before. Plus 10 users are reporting tremendous mileages. Why not share your good news too? Drop a line to Gillfillan & Company Ltd., Goodyear distributors, P.O. Box 644, Nairobi and report your Plus 10 experience.

A Post-War Development

Cold Rubber bears no relation to war-time experimental processes. It has been developed in recent years since the war by Goodyear, who have been able to evolve methods of manufacturing it at a price low enough for use in motor-car tyres. The Plus 10 costs considerably more to produce than tyres using ordinary rubber, but is sold at the same price. You pay nothing extra for a tyre which is incomparably better. The important feature of Cold Rubber is its low polymerisation temperature, 43 deg. F., instead

"The car has to go over all kinds of surfaces—some of them incredibly bad. It's exactly as you see a bulldozer tread. The use of the new Cold Rubber Plus 10 has made us so something that we are convinced nothing else will ever know anything like it before."

'STANDARD GOLF CORRESPONDENT

AS brief report on Tuesday's edition, the first Kenya tour by a number of our regular golf players and who will see what I mean when I say that the young men in only between 18 and 19 years of age and had a fine showing.

I think this group may have a bright future ahead of them here if they decide to concentrate on the game of golf.

Runner-up was B. S. Laves (Kenya) with a score of 84. The son of that name, who is a professional, was runner-up in the Kenya Open which was held at Nairobi last year. He is a very good player and has been playing for many years at school golf.

One new name to watch is the young man who played in the Kenya Open last year, who had a score of 84 for the best first nine holes and A. D. Cairns (Kenya) with 84 for the best second nine holes.

Was a great success.

The best score by a 15-year-old was achieved by A. D. Cairns (Kenya) with 113. He is a very good player and has been playing for many years at school golf.

The Kenya Golf Club is to be congratulated on the success of this year's championship. It was a very good show and the provision of the services of the Kenya Golf Club is to be commended.

The general impression was that the show should be run in the future by the Kenya Golf Club and the Kenya Golf Club is to be commended.

Oxford crew set two new records

THE Oxford crew on Tuesday set up their second record on successive days while competing for the annual University Boat Race against Cambridge on the Isis, Oxford, on March 20.

Rowing in windy conditions, the 1954 varsity from Hammerhead was a fine performance in 2 min 50.5. This elapsed time was set off by the crew established by Cambridge in 1927. The crew, which was led by first mate from Peter Bridge, Oxford, they played a very full course. (Rider) Peter yesterday.

Scottish XV save for Calcutta Cup

Scotland have made no gains in the Calcutta Cup match at Edinburgh on Saturday. The team played on with a fine performance, but the selectors could not be expected to make any changes in the team.

Wales disappointed

CRICKET TEST MATCHES RETURN TO EDGBASTON

Selectors named for this season

ENGLAND'S cricket Test selectors for this year's series against South Africa include G. O. Allen and W. Woolley, neither of whom has previously served on a home selection committee. Allen, who is the chairman, is a former England and Middlesex captain, while Woolley is the present Cheshire captain.

The other selectors are L. E. C. Ames, former England and Kent batsman and wicket-keeper, and A. B. Squires, a former England and Kent batsman.

Only Ames served on the selection committee for the Test against Pakistan last year. Ames has often been a member of the wider M.C.C. committee which helps in the selection of touring teams.

Selectors have served before on a home selection committee, the last time in 1950.

Stocks and shares quotations

The London stock market was generally weaker with all sections showing a downward trend. The main reason for this was the decline in the price of shares, which was due to the fact that the market was overvalued and the price of shares was high.

Air travel at cheap rates forecast

RESULT OF BRITISH PROGRESS IN JETS

A PROPHCY that cheap long-distance air travel would soon be made possible by developments in Britain's gas turbine engine industry was made by Mr. E. C. Bower, director of the Society of British Aircraft Constructors, in a talk to the East African Aero Club. He said that at the big airports which could be situated both on topography and quantity of passengers and in a short time would be large that very small farms and freight rates would be feasible. Manufacturers had announced that it would be possible to operate a 100-ton New York-London type jet in a matter of hours at a net rate not more than £20.

Industry's concern

In pointing the development of Britain's turbine industry, Bower said that British jet engines would be ready for transport aircraft in 1956. He said he believed the certificate of airworthiness for the first jet aircraft would be issued this year and that it would be possible to transport passengers by jet in 1957.

The British aviation industry was concerned about the possibility of foreign airlines with out going through their own airports might in future be able to operate direct flights to London.

'Futuristic' jets

As for the view of the jet age, Bower said that the industry did not believe it was a danger to the British State estimated that the number of jet aircraft in the world in 1950 at the earliest would be 10,000. He said that the jet age would be a 'futuristic' type of aircraft in 1957 to their largest size. The need for the State, a good aircraft which had low noise level and high speed, was a factor in the design of the jet engine. He said that the jet engine was a factor in the design of the jet engine.

HIGHLIGHTS OF AMERICAN PAINTING

The picture page is a preview of some of the paintings which will be on view at the exhibition "Highlights of American Painting" which will be held at the American Library in Olympia, Hager, Souler Street, Nairobi, from Sunday, March 20, until Saturday, March 26. The exhibition will be open every day from 10 a.m. until 6 p.m.

The paintings in the exhibition were selected by art critics for the United States Information Agency to illustrate representative American paintings from the Colonial period, mid-17th Century, to the present time. These are 41 reproductions "made" by a baking process in light monochrome panels. The production of this process has made it possible to show the collection overseas, and to move the exhibit from place to place. When the exhibit has been shown in Africa, individual pieces will be presented to institutions for permanent hanging.

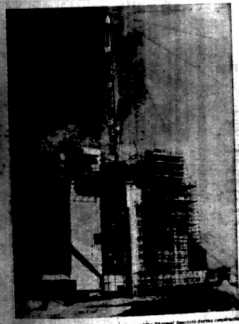

In an introduction to the exhibition, the promoters say that unusual directions and clarity of vision interpreted with a corresponding simplicity of statement are the underlying characteristics of American art.

Even in early Colonial days these features were present and new, having become sufficiently pronounced, they are recognized as the mark of the American style.

No country can be said to have an art of its own until the work of its artists shows a native strain. During the two centuries of American history, the country's artists have gained self-confidence and are drawing inspiration and direction from their home environment rather than depending upon foreign movements for guidance. Hence the less American artists owe a major debt to European masters.

It is noteworthy say the promoters, that in all the various movements and individual styles developed in American art, variety, even diversity, is markedly apparent. This in itself is a characteristic of all periods of history, art reflects the traits of its people. Just as this exhibition highlights the history of American painting, it reflects the character of the American people who are drawn from a variety of countries and races, and who have brought with them traditions and customs that have been woven into America's national heritage.

The pictures reproduced here are just a selection, taken at random, to whet the appetite of art lovers in Kenya, a small country which, possibly because of its scenic beauty, is regarded by many as having an unusually high proportion of artists and art lovers among its population.

These are the new buildings, situated at one of the largest American-owned industrial plants in Kenya.
