Into Battle ...

Bygone days, thousands of soldiers owe their lives to John Boyd Dunlop's invention in 1889 of the first practicable pneumatic tyre. In earlier centuries every soldier who was hit by the sharp heavy javelin from behind had to lose his life. Nowadays the wounded are borne swiftly and safely to a hospital, confined in a hospital or in the case of Dunlop Tyres from the demands of the ambulance services are less one part of a widespread and a combined content in a function of the time on Dunlop Tyres. NEXT WEEK AT THE EMPIRE

"You prefer them? So do I"

"Good to see you back to town. I know what you'd like - you must be dying for a smoke."

"Bliss you, what a thoughtful son you are! No Maurier, of course."

"You're quite right. After all, there's no other cigarette like them. The tobacco they use seems so much better."

"I know, it's good tobacco all right, but it takes the special filter tip to make them so smooth and cool. It stops all the loose little bits of tobacco as well."

"There the tips and spoil the pleasure, eh?"

S.E.C. in war—as in peace
 at the service of the Empire

S.E.C. electric traction equipment for railways, tramway and trolley-bus systems has proved to achieve, both in peace and war, many proud records of service by public transport undertakings in Great Britain and overseas. With the outbreak of war brought manifold problems of urgent and vital importance, the equipment accumulated in the days of peace proved itself to be an invaluable asset in helping to equip British industry. S.E.C.—the largest British electrical manufacturing organization in the world—has devoted its entire technical and manufacturing resources to the war effort. Important advances have been made in all applications of electricity, including the important one of electronics, and when peace comes these developments will be of the greatest value to all concerned with production in any part of the world.
