GOVERNMENT ENDS GANGSTERS MASSACRE AFRICANS

Tied together and slashed
A railway gang of eight Africans were tied to a dead body in a group and flung to death by a gang estimated to be between 10 and 20 strong which was on the railway line near Makuyu in the Thika area in the night on Saturday. One man was killed, and two children were slain and injured but managed to escape.

The following security forces killed three of the gang members, two were made prisoners and robbery is believed to be the motive behind the attack, a police spokesman said yesterday. The railway workers had not received their wages when the attack took place.

Children escape

At 10 p.m. the gang attacked the ladies at a house living on the railway line, with the exception of one child who had fled, and reported to I.M.A.

The first victim was a Talior railway employee who was cut to death in a struggle. Two other children were slightly injured but managed to escape with an African woman who was taken to hospital with a broken leg and two other children were taken to hospital with broken legs and one child was killed.

The gang then searched the ladies at the house and found a small amount of money and a watch. The gang then fled towards the station and were followed by a police party.

Kiluya detained

Three Kiluya men were arrested at the railway station at the time of the attack. They were taken to the station and later detained at the police station.

One of the men was called out by the woman who was taken to hospital. She said she saw the man at the station on the night of the attack. She said she saw the man at the station on the night of the attack. She said she saw the man at the station on the night of the attack.

GOVERNMENT SURRENDER TALKS PLAN 'Gen. China' to begin life sentence

TWO MAU MAU CHIEFS NO LONGER HELD

The plan for the use of "General China," 32-year-old Kikuyu and former K.A.R. corporal, who became one of the leaders of the Mau Mau gangs, to induce the surrender of terrorists in the Mount Kenya area has been abandoned. The Acting Governor, Sir Frederick Crawford, stated yesterday that "China" was now on his way to prison to serve his life sentence.

It was also disclosed at a Press conference at Government House, attended by the Chief of Staff, East Africa, Sir George Erskine, his Chief of Staff, Maj-Gen G. D. G. Heyman, and the Chief Native Commissioner, Mr. E. H. Windley, that two other Mau Mau "Generals," "Tanganyika" and "Kalaba"—who were reported to have surrendered in response to "China" and the bloodless letters, are no longer in the hands of the authorities.

Troop operations intensified

They returned to the forest, in company with his Mau Mau "delegates," after parleys with the authorities on March 30 at Nyeri, and no further news of them or their confederates has been received. One theory is that on their return to the gangs in the forest they were arrested. The Acting Governor stated that the policy of using high-ranking Mau Mau terrorists to induce their surrender negotiations had been abandoned. Both "Tanganyika" and "Kalaba" were they would eventually lose their freedom, but while negotiations were in progress they had been allowed to "come and go."

With the troops still officially called out, troops yesterday were sent to the forest to search for the Mau Mau. Fighting sorties were carried out by the R.A.F. in the forest in the middle of last year, will still be accepted.

'LEADERS ARRESTED BY GANGS' THEORY

The official statement explaining the breakdown of the Government's surrender policy, which was announced at a meeting held in Nyeri with his Mau Mau representatives to which they could be informed of the terms. At that meeting the representatives appeared to have accepted the terms and left the forest. It is now understood that the representatives did not accept the terms and left the forest. It is now understood that the representatives did not accept the terms and left the forest.

Similarity in Comet injuries

LINK BETWEEN NAPLES AND ELBA CRASHES

THE bodies of five of the 21 victims of the Comet disaster were yesterday flown from Naples to where they had been brought ashore from the aircraft-carrier, Eagle, to Britain. It was learned that they bore injuries similar to those of the victims of the Comet on Elba three months ago.

Surgeon-General Ronald Russell, of the Eagle, said that all the bodies of three men and two women—had extensive injuries to the lower limbs but there was no mutilation and no sign of burning. He added that he could not say whether the injuries were caused by the impact on the water or by some sudden explosion in flight. He agreed that death must have been very rapid.

Three of the bodies were in a state of complete decomposition, but almost fully clothed and the legs, that of a man, without shoes and lower trousers. Facial expressions were peaceful.

The injuries were multiple bruises and fractures, especially in the lower limbs, a post-mortem would probably reveal internal injuries, Surgeon-General Russell added.

A State Department spokesman said that Dulles had arranged for an actual visit to the Geneva conference in South-East Asia. (Reuters)

HALF A.S. EXPORTS GO TO THE RHODESIAS

Lack of shipping space drawback

Half of South Africa's annual exports of £80,000,000 (excluding gold bullion) go to the Rhodesias, Mr. Bertram A. Keene, director of the South African Exporters' Association, said at the Rand Show this week.

Mr. Z. Babie, Trade Secretary for East Africa, said that the Union's exports to this territory had doubled since 1942. Last year it was worth £24,000,000. The Union could, however, export far more if shipping space were available. He said the success which the Union had with its export trade should in large measure be ascribed to the support given to South African exporters in their search for new markets in Africa by the Government.

Extending markets

The Minister of Economic Affairs, Mr. Eric Louw, who could not attend a luncheon of the Transvaal Chamber of Commerce as a result of a long absence from Cape Town, said the Government was bent upon extending the scope of the Union's economy as far as possible. He said the Secretary of the East Show, Secondary Industries, had advised him that the place in the Union's economy as far as possible.

Helicopters aid West African oil search

The first helicopters ever to be used by industry in this country. Employed for transporting personnel and light equipment between the oil company's base camp and the various areas in which exploration work is being undertaken, they are performing available work in a very efficient manner.

The search for oil in Nigeria has been going on for a long time. A preliminary geological exploration was carried out over a large area of the country in 1953. This was abandoned 12 months later, since when further exploratory drilling has continued.

The helicopters are two "Hiller" types, and are under contract to the Shell-DeLacy Development Company of Nigeria Ltd. (Jointly owned by Shell and DeLacy Exploration Co. Ltd.—the producing company of the Nigerian Oil Co. Ltd.) from West Africa, London, and operated by a Franchise Ltd. agent.

Whaling catch worth £2,000,000

WHEN the Abraham Lincoln factory ship for the South African whaling industry left the port of Cape Town for the South Atlantic whaling grounds last week, it was estimated that the whaling industry will produce this year a total of 17,250 barrels of whale and seal blubber worth approximately £2,000,000. All the products of the whaling industry have already been exported overseas.

The whaling whaling expedition, led by the industry's chief, Mr. J. C. van der Merwe, has arrived in Cape Town port. The ship is drawing 20 feet and requiring fuel and stores in Cape Town.

About £50,000 has been cashed from London to await the arrival of the expedition in Cape Town so that they can go on a shopping spree. These 300,000 pounds are available in Cape Town where there is a large store of the most modern of the whaling fleet, which includes a number of motorized whaling vessels.

Union demand for transfer of protectorates

U.K. CONTROL INTOLERABLE

DR. MALAN, the South African Prime Minister, told a packed House of Assembly at Cape Town that Britain's control of Bechuanaland, Basutoland and Swaziland was "an intolerable encroachment" on his country's natural rights and self respect. He asked the House to support his move for the transfer of the three territories, now administered as British protectorates, to the Union of South Africa.

South African Parliament, South Africa's legislature, Mr. Strauss declared, demanded more extensive negotiations. The question of method and procedure is of crucial importance," he said.

Mr. Strauss accused the Prime Minister of "handcuffing" the government from the platform and declared the Opposition Minister how far he was prepared to go in the name of what appeared to be the "best interests" of the Commonwealth.

He submitted an amendment almost completely rewriting Dr. Malan's speech. It urged the Government to take steps to re-consideration on a national level, but says it would be "ill advised and imprudent to attempt to reinforce diplomatic negotiations by legislative pressure." (Reuter)

TAKE-OVER PROSPECTS WORSE THAN IN 1939

Nationalist policy a bar

DR. MALAN made the headlines in Britain's newspapers with his statement on the transfer of protectorates. In an editorial, the prospects of such an agreement were much worse than in 1939 when the nationalist negotiations were suspended on the outbreak of war. It was the nationalist policy which had made them worse.

The British position has been from the start that the protectorates could be transferred only after consultation with their peoples, and it is hardly credible that the British Government would do otherwise. The South African Government's position is equally clear. It is not likely that the British Government will agree to such a transfer without the consent of the peoples of the territories, and it is hardly credible that the British Government would do otherwise.

Dr. Malan argues that such a transfer would be a half-century since the South African Government's position is equally clear. It is not likely that the British Government will agree to such a transfer without the consent of the peoples of the territories, and it is hardly credible that the British Government would do otherwise.

Dr. Malan makes a slow deliberate point when he says that the transfer of protectorates would be a half-century since the South African Government's position is equally clear. It is not likely that the British Government will agree to such a transfer without the consent of the peoples of the territories, and it is hardly credible that the British Government would do otherwise.

Kikuyu with gun arrested in Nairobi

NAIROBI police arrested a Kikuyu gunman in Grogan Road. A loaded .22 Beretta automatic pistol was found in his possession. He was detained when the crew of a motor truck found he had no papers.

A wanted Mombasa Mau Mau terrorist was shot and wounded by African Home Guards in the industrial area of the city on Sunday night. He was wounded in the shoulder and detained under heavy military guard in the King George VI Memorial Hospital.

11 arrests in house

Eighteen Kikuyu were arrested in a house in Basati after police from Mombasa had reported that Africans were congregating in the house to discuss suspected Mau Mau activities.

Two Africans were arrested in the same location after a Home Guard had reported to his chief at Kileleshwa that an attempt had been made to strangle a Police from Karen who had been known African in the Daguerri Hotel.

An attempt by a gang to break into the Woolley Gate Stores was foiled by the owner, Mr. Gordon, who fired at the intruders. They had burst through a door and were making off with the cash box when followed the gang's tracks to Kilere, where they were lost.

FIREARMS CHARGE DROPPED

Kept in drawer for wife

ON the advice of the magistrate, Mr. E. D. Emley, proceedings against a European who had left a .38 revolver in a locked drawer — "for the security of his wife" — were withdrawn in the Nairobi District Commissioner's Court yesterday.

The European, Mr. C. S. Krieger, of Borng Valley, had been charged with failing to keep the revolver and 19 rounds of ammunition with failing to take all reasonable precautions to ensure they were not stolen.

"This gun," Mr. Emley said, "was left for the security of Krieger's wife. The Firearms Ordinance gives permission for a licence holder to leave a firearm with a member of his family for safe custody, within the house and no charge can be laid. Mr. Krieger was passed from his offence but it is not terribly material in this case."

In the rush

The Ordnance Station, however, that a gun can be handed over to another person for short periods, but that it must have a temporary certificate.

It is said that during the month with the rush to the Ordnance Station, Mrs. Krieger has been given a gun to protect herself. The gun was passed from her husband to her for that purpose.

Letter threat after raid

A threatening letter, written in pencil and purporting to be signed by a Mau Mau treasurer, was left behind by thieves who broke into the Devonian Made Studio Theatre in Nairobi. They first cut through a padlock and part of a steel gate. A new cutting machine, worth £40, was stolen from the theatre's dressing room.

The letter, left in the post, promised a £100 reward for the return of the stolen machine.

ARE YOU THINKING OF REFURNISHING?

By Betty Wilson
Look long over-look for the day-to-day.

The colour

MOST London furniture is probably a little more conservative than that which is being shown in the Duke of Edinburgh to cover seats and chairs in the Royal Yacht Britannia.

The Duke's choice of a smaller quantity of furniture is a line with a somewhat traditional note. The materials used for the furniture are of the highest quality and the ability to withstand climatic extremes and rough usage without losing their lustre or colour.

In the liners

PUBLIC notice is given that the Queen Mary, the Queen Elizabeth and the Mauretania have chairs and sofas covered by fabric made of 100 per cent. Irish wool. The fabric is a fine, soft, and comfortable material, and is known as "Irish wool".

Home-makers also recognize wool's hand-protecting qualities. Wool is a natural fibre and is therefore more resistant to wear and tear than other fibres. It is also more resistant to staining and discoloration.

Curtains

SOME London decorators are using felt to make curtains. This material is made of wool and is more durable than other materials. It is also more resistant to staining and discoloration.

MAKE IT YOURSELF...

If you are going to have a baby, now is the time to think seriously about your wardrobe. There is no reason why you should juggle the "bridesmaid" budget just because it is not yet time to add a smart maternity suit at a down-to-earth price.

Even fashion is not your side, and this McCall pattern 3214 is up to the minute with its slim skirt and long top swinging gracefully from a rounded yoke. The Peter Pan collar and buttoned bodice give the suit a youthful appearance and you can make it with short or three-quarter length sleeves.

You may wonder how a skirt with a pencil look can be managed. The secret is that the front can be adjusted with the use of a completely concealed system. A bag which buttons up on the waistband.

Contractors Machinery

Time is money to the contractor. He must be able to rely on the quality of his equipment with the assurance of after-sales service and an adequate supply of spares—some of the reasons why so many contractors depend on G. & R. with their organisation throughout East Africa.
