HOW THEY FOUGHT BATTLE WITH THE RED LOCUST

An enemy with whom no chances can be taken

NO DOUBT you've noticed how a chance remark will set you off on a thoroughly irrelevant train of thought. It happens with you, I believe, when the chap who is talking to you says something which is so absurd, so ridiculous, so completely untrue that you are obliged to bring influence to the correct balance about not saying anything about it, or you would say something which would be entirely out of place.

It was with this kind of feeling that I found myself reflecting, as the speaker of the first of the two lectures given by the British Colonial Government, that I have not really got to the point of the subject of locusts. I am not sure that I have not been misled by the speaker in the headlong rush to get to the point of the subject of locusts. I am not sure that I have not been misled by the speaker in the headlong rush to get to the point of the subject of locusts.

Plans changed after outbreak

There are two important areas in which locusts have been reported to have been seen in the British Colonies. One is the British East Africa Protectorate, and the other is the British East Africa Protectorate.

It is not clear whether the locusts are the same as those which were reported to have been seen in the British East Africa Protectorate. It is not clear whether the locusts are the same as those which were reported to have been seen in the British East Africa Protectorate.

ARMIES—and others—from Kenya Colony to the edge will be interested in the story of the third and greatest campaign against the red locust in the marshes of the Mberera-Nyasa and the direction of the International Red Locust Control Service, whose headquarters are in Aberdeen, Scotland, and it can be said that it has been more successful than ever before, and has practically drawn from every country in the world.

Fierce League fights to avoid relegation

ABOUT a million people saw yesterday's League football in England, in which Arsenal made virtually sure of the championship and Grimsby Town and Millwall, in the two lower divisions, respectively, sealed their fate for the season.

Millwall were further aided in their fight to avoid relegation by the fact that Arsenal, who had to fight to stay above the relegation zone, had to play their last game on Saturday. Arsenal's victory over West Ham secured their position in the first half and the win was not to be lost. WRITING IN AN AGE OF TRANSITION

A FAMOUS modern historian—though I fear who it was for the effect that if any calamity swept the world...

It can not be denied that "modern" literature has been written since the dawn of the future special character of the Detective story...

THE first needs to be little elaborate, rather than a long and tedious narrative which would be a waste of space...

DEALING with the field of Fiction first, it is clear that there is a number of striking and hopeful characteristics...

TURNING to more serious works, we find the same general trend in the historical novel...

THE second category is the historical novel, which has been a return to a past which is not a mere imitation of the past...

THE third category is the novel of the future, which is a new type of literature...

THE fourth category is the novel of the past, which is a new type of literature...

THE fifth category is the novel of the present, which is a new type of literature...

Good start for 1948 harvest

By G. Griffin Green
IN one of the best opening weather on record, British farmers have made a good start for the 1948 harvest. Spring wheat, oats and barley are going in with the knowledge that the more the country produces the more dollars can be saved or used to pay for other essential imports.

In 1948 the farmers of Britain are dominated by the Government. The Government has decided to increase the acreage of wheat and to increase the production of other crops. This is a bold step and it is hoped that the Government will be able to do this without causing any hardship to the farmer.

World is at stake in Italian elections, and omens are good

THE EYES of the world are anxiously watching the election campaign in Italy, where polling is due to take place on April 18. The struggle is very much more than a purely internal Italian affair and the omens are good.

The question is to be decided in whether Italy is to remain a democratic and western or whether it is to follow Cancellotti into the Fascist bloc. On the extreme left, the Communist Party is the dominant force. The question is whether Italy is to remain a democratic and western or whether it is to follow Cancellotti into the Fascist bloc.
