ANIMALS THREATEN NATION'S ECONOMY

Heavy losses each year

UNLESS the "grave battle" against animal pests was fought with every weapon at the disposal of the country would be seriously imperilled, a Government official said in Wellington. He was speaking at the drive against animals, which are causing heavy losses every year.

That New Zealand has no natural enemy on these islands, the trouble was so marked that early settlers believed they would be unable to cope.

But to become a major pest was the rabbit, which was introduced to the country to attract tourists and deer were introduced into the country to attract tourists and deer were introduced into the country to attract tourists.

But they multiplied rapidly and the rabbit, because of its voracity, became a pest. The deer were introduced into the country to attract tourists and deer were introduced into the country to attract tourists.

BRITISH ECONOMY IN 'MORTAL DANGER'

Sir Anthony warns of further curbs

EXPORT FEARS AS COSTS OUTPACE PRODUCTION

SIR ANTHONY EDEN gave a warning that Britain was in "mortal danger" of being pushed out of world markets when he spoke at a garden party in his Warwickshire constituency on Saturday.

"Our greatest danger is to be priced out of the markets because our productivity does not rise as fast as our costs," he said. Further restraints might have to be exercised to meet the nation's economic position.

The Prime Minister said he feared that in some cases the measures which the Government had taken, and might have to take, could be painful. The might mean curbing individual and national wages and plans. Britain was not having her way, however, and only her production could justify higher wages and higher profits.

Export markets were vital, he continued. "That is why we must not be priced out of the markets during the summer months. It is important as it is the only way to get the goods we need for our own use." He said that the Government was doing its best to get the economy back on its feet.
