SACTIONS ROW ON EVE OF U.N. DEBATE

Mediation too late says Mr. Wilson

MAINLY was not expected to yield demands to include all in the selective mandatory sanctions it is seeking from the United Nations Security Council debate on Rhodesia which began early today.

But it was believed in New York last night that the British Foreign Secretary, Mr. George Brown, would not agree to an amendment to extend the embargo to oil, provided that was coupled with general terms.

Britain is anxious to avoid widening the trade conflict with Rhodesia to South Africa, which has been allowing oil borders for the rebel regime in Salisbury to be supplied across its territory.

Demands were made by the Opposition in the House of Commons last night for Britain to use its veto against any plan for oil sanctions against South Africa.

Uproar in Commons

The former Conservative Prime Minister, Sir Alec Douglas-Home, said mandatory sanctions against Rhodesia would make the Smith régime totally dependent on South Africa and identify its political régime with that country.

The Prime Minister, Mr. Wilson, accused the Opposition of being more interested in bringing down the Labour Government than that of Mr. Ian Smith in Rhodesia. During the debate, he said that if they forced a vote they would be backing the illegal régime.

On Mr. Brown's proposal for a "general embargo", he said that Mr. Smith had sent a reply to the United Nations on the 27th of the previous month, stating that he would accept the terms of the 1965-66 agreement if it was accepted by the United Nations.

EXAMPLE OF RACE HARMONY

During that speaker, London. The House of Commons debate on Rhodesia, a former British High Commissioner, Kenya, Sir Geoffrey de Grey, cited Kenya as an example in creating a society where people of all races could live in peace and harmony.

More businessmen had entered Kenya last year than in any other year since 1963. Sir Geoffrey appeared in the House of Commons to say that he had been "in the front line" of the struggle to bring about a peaceful settlement to the Kenya race relations which had existed since the country's independence.

Kenya had achieved a "racial harmony" which was a model for other countries. He said that the Government had been successful in creating a society where people of all races could live in peace and harmony.

During the debate, the Deputy Leader of the Opposition, Mr. Manning Clark, said that Mr. Wilson was leading Britain into a "policy of appeasement" towards Rhodesia.

Greek ferry sinks - 232 missing

A GREEK-owned ferryboat carrying 231 people was today reported to have sunk off the coast of Greece, with 232 missing.

31 KILLED IN CLASHES WITH RED GUARDS

At least 31 people were killed in clashes between China's militant teen-agers and workers last weekend, the Soviet news agency Tass reported yesterday.

In a report from Peking, the agency said 13 people, among them 10 workers, died when "revolutionary pupils" battled with workers organised by the city council in Wu.

Damascus seizes oil property

The Syrian Government announced yesterday it had seized Iraq Petroleum Company (I.P.C.) property until the company pays its royalties.

The Red Guards had accused the company of following the path of the Shanghai city committee of the Communist Party.

The amount seized by the Damascus firm oil pipeline was valued at 27,340 and let for the amount January 1, 1967.

The announcement implicated the company's mercantile and convertible assets of the firm. The company announced that it would be required to pay 10% of the value of the assets.

President Kenyatta is today to launch the Kenya African National Union (KANU) campaign in Nairobi, where he will launch a party conference.

The party secretary Mr. Njiru was expected to launch the campaign in Nairobi, where he will launch a party conference.

Army 'could have been dealt with'

INDONESIA'S former air force commander, Air Vice-Marshal Dhan, believed the Communist Party, with the help of his men, could have dealt with the army during the unsuccessful coup attempt in October, 1965.

Dhan said he had been approached by the army to join the coup attempt in October, 1965. He said he had refused the offer.

ANYONE who feels disappointed with life in Buenos Aires should take a look at other parts of this vast continent. . . . say any game to be back to the land. . . . thankful for many . . .

The instance nearly 100 miles west of Buenos Aires, where the land is a vast, open landscape with few trees and many small valleys. . . .

As they say, the traveler who wants to find the heart of the continent should go to the north, where he can see the mountains of the Andes. . . .

Buenos Aires is not the only city to have seen in Africa. It is a city of about 4,000,000 people, and it is a city of about 4,000,000 people. . . .

Fittingly between the waters of the Rio de la Plata and the waters of the Rio de la Plata, there is a city of about 4,000,000 people. . . .

LAND-ROVER

THE LAND-ROVER STARTED WORK IN 1948

TODAY, IT'S STILL THE CAR YOU CAN TRUST TO DO A REAL JOB OF WORK

Eighteen years of research and refinement go into the 1968 Land-Rover. That the latest model looks remarkably like the first just goes to show that the first was an exceedingly happy inspiration.

RESULT
Here's a car wholly adapted to its environment. Here's an all-purpose vehicle with specialist skills; world's finest all-rounder. Hospitals, fleet-owners, tourist companies, sportsmen, farmers and week-enders swear by them. There's no car like it for beating about the bush. And certainly police couldn't police and armies couldn't operate without them.

HERE'S A CAR YOU CAN TRUST TO GET ON WITH THE JOB. NO MATTER WHAT.

A STRONGER VOICE

Extensive arrangements have been made to incorporate the new transmitting station into the existing infrastructure of the Ngong transmitting station at Ngong.

As a result the Voice of Kenya will be heard throughout Kenya and its reach to East and Central Africa as well.

The wider range is especially important because the Voice of Kenya has started its transmission services which brings it into touch, through the use of tribal languages, with all the people in Kenya.

The articles and pictures in the following pages illustrate the scope and organisation of the new station.

New transmitters to reach every corner

IN the draft plan for V.O.K.'s improvements to transmission to be included in the Government's five-year Development Plan appeared an item — "Improvement to Medium Wave Transmitting Facilities." And so in six words was born the new Ngong station.

Part of an integrated plan to improve all forms of transmission (of both Sound and Television services, and to extend them to a greater part of the country, the Ngong Transmitting Station was known simply as "a high-power central medium wave station."

It really became a project when, after a visit by the Chief Engineer, Mr. J. Daves to the Marconi Company at Chesham, on the transmission improvement included in the Development Plan, a site investigation was carried out over 20 sites in the area around Nairobi.

They were measured, considered for access, radio link paths, altitude, soil, and power availability, and eventually narrowed in favor. From these four sites finally emerged

In June, 1963, Mr. John

Substation of the Marconi Company and its senior engineering consultant, Mr. M. C. Clery, visited Nairobi and technical plans were discussed and either approved or modified by the Chief Engineer. Mr. Clery had been appointed to design the building, and preliminary proposals were also considered. The Ngong site was visited and agreed by all to be the site.

Soil tests During June, initial meetings took place with the Ministry of Works, the E.A. Power and Lighting Co. and the E.A. Water and Telecommunications Administration for the essential services they would supply. Soil tests and bore-holes were taken at the site. Radio tests in Broadcasting House and Langata took place to establish parameters for the programme and supervising work until approval was given in July 1963.

By June, 1963, Mr. John

And so in May, 1964, and overnight the whole station was thrown into confusion by the British engineers' driving and installation programme and the Marconi staff and serious thought was given to stopping this. This was finally decided as too expensive, and because many items of equipment were in the docks or even in other buildings, and it was impossible to ensure that nothing would be interrupted in part a service during the work.

arrived four weeks later) threw the station into confusion by the British engineers' driving and installation programme and the Marconi staff and serious thought was given to stopping this. This was finally decided as too expensive, and because many items of equipment were in the docks or even in other buildings, and it was impossible to ensure that nothing would be interrupted in part a service during the work.

Behind the four large transmitters are the transmitter rooms, aerial masts and controlling equipment. The main control room is on the right of the entrance. This is a room which is used for the accommodation of the workmen in the transmitter room. The radio link and programme input equipment flanking the entrance has the masts which carry the transmitters which work as a part of the vertical system. Plans in the right-hand side of the room are for the vertical system. There are two main buildings on the site, one of which is a control room, and is extracted through the open air by a wind turbine which is the wind turbine control of the large equipment room. The 30-ft. masts will be mounted through the security fence. To the left, the 30-ft.

will be entirely satisfactory in situations of what is happening in the station. The station is a radio link. Funds will be provided, and the 28-hour staff system at Langata will then permit immediate investigation by a crew, who will then make the 30-ft. masts to Ngong.

Main networks The main network consisting of 100 transmitters which service the station at Langata is just being laid back. This, then, is Ngong's first step towards the station of daily life for the V.O.K. engineers, and a part also of the development of its services. In two main sections, the station will be used for the current through the station, and the station will be used for the station's operation. The station will be used for the station's operation. The station will be used for the station's operation.

● A high security fence surrounds the V.O.K.'s new transmitter station at Ngong. This is the main building of the station which houses four 50 kW transmitters and ten 10 kW transmitters. The grille of the building forms part of the station's modern ventilation system. Powerful fans provide a current of air which is swept up to the roof and through the grille. Rigorous safety precautions are enforced throughout the centre. There is a radio-hoist carrying certain equipment are operated on an "inter-lock" system which ensures workers complete safety when handling electronic equipment.

● Mr. Sutherland talking to reporters when he arrived in Nairobi.

EXPERT IMPRESSED BY KENYA BROADCASTING

TRANSMITTING equipment at the Ngong transmitter station has been supplied by the Marconi Company, which is to be represented at today's opening ceremony by its chairman, Mr. F. N. Sutherland.

Speaking to reporters in Nairobi, he said Marconi had started radio and television. The company had a great deal of experience in the design of transmitting systems, and had collaborated with the Kenya Government in the establishment of the Ngong station.

He said he was impressed with Kenya's broadcasting system, adding that he hoped to see the country's television service.

Mr. Sutherland, who is also in Nairobi on Sunday, is a member of the board of the Society of British Airways Companies and until recently he was president of the Electronic Engineering Association.

He is one of the radio industry representatives on the Postmaster General's Information Advisory Committee and a member of the board of directors of the Kenya Broadcasting Corporation.

Mr. Sutherland follows the Marconi Company's general manager, and other executives, who will arrive in Nairobi today to inspect the new station.

While in Nairobi, Mr. Sutherland will meet Kenya Government officials.

The contract for the transmitting station was placed by the Government about 18 months ago.

The Marconi Company has installed and tested all the equipment in some eight months, including aerial masts, buildings, power supplies, and the transmitting station at Ngong.

The station is now operational, transmitting programmes from the Ngong Voice of Kenya transmitter, which is situated at Ngong Road.

In addition to seven, construction is under way at the station.

The transmitters are 11 feet 6 inches high, 11 feet wide and 4 feet 6 inches deep, and can be transported without being dismantled. Each is mounted in a metal chassis, which has four casters for extra being moved.

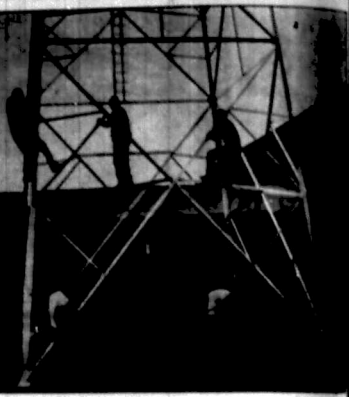

Special overhead cables include the transmitters when it is a separate protective system from the very high voltage which are used.

The RF valves are protected from external effects by the cooling, cooling and by a shielding device connected to the signal filter cables. The latter delivers the high-voltage of operating waves in the next stage of the equipment.

A comprehensive cooling facility is built into the transmitter to effect an actual water-cooled and covered by specially designed air filter. The design of the cooling system is such that the power is dissipated in the form of heat.

The final complete stage of the transmitter is the 10 kW valve, which is a 10 kW valve with an output of 10 kW. It is designed to operate at a frequency of 100 kHz, and is a 10 kW valve with an output of 10 kW.

All Ngong sets of the 10 kW transmitters have been assembled at the Marconi factory in London, and are being shipped to Nairobi by air.

TANZANIA GIRLS TAKE BACK HAPPY MEMORIES OF KENYA

A group of Tanzanian girls selected by the East African Common Services Organisation last year to take secretarial courses in Nairobi have just finished their studies, and have been impressed by the friendliness of Kenya.

The girls, which included the only candidates which registered for the Cambridge School for English, and an equivalent, a good number of them were from the East African Common Services Organisation. They were accompanied by Miss Anna Mwangi, who was in charge of the girls during their stay in Nairobi.

RUSSIA's leaders claim that equality of the sexes in Soviet society is complete, and that there are more opportunities for the advancement of women in Russia than in any other country.

Despite this, complaints are frequently heard that there are not enough women in high jobs and in very positions that while many women are working in such important positions, many are retiring before their time.

An Ashanti soldier explains why the Ghana coup had to happen

THE GHANA COUP by Col. A. Afrifa
(Freak Press and Co., 12/6)

BACK IN 1956 Kwame Nkrumah, then Ghana's first political leader, presented to the world an idealized Ghana. He told the top of the class who had collected seven prizes: "Young man, keep it. I am most impressed."

The story in his book 11 years later, the top of the class who had collected seven prizes: "Young man, keep it. I am most impressed."

Unseen trials
Col. Afrifa, who is still only 37, writes more in his book than in his earlier book. He tells the story of his own life and the life of the country. But he also describes the unseen trials of his own life and the life of the country.

The personal charisma that moved Nkrumah through the ranks of the British military academy Sandhurst, of the intelligence he developed for the British people and his role in the Commonwealth that will be read more for those who are weary of the world's news.

Victims of the success stakes

VALLEY OF THE DOLLS
by Jacqueline Susann
(Covell, 20/-)

THEIR women, quite different in character, enter the same world of Hollywood and New York in the American fashion.

The first man to be a victim of the success stakes is a woman who has become a best-seller in the United States.

It begins with Ann, a beautiful girl with a genuine character who is loved by her friends and her colleagues.

Each man in the Valley of the Dolls begins to crack. The first man to be a victim of the success stakes is a woman who has become a best-seller in the United States.

80 Years ago on the 20th Prince Minister of Ghana, Dr. Nkrumah presented to the world an idealized Ghana and told the boy (left) who later became Col. Afrifa, one of the leaders behind the Ghanaian coup. "Young man keep it up. I am most impressed by your performance."

THE AMPLÉ PROPOSITION AUTOBIOGRAPHY III by John Lehmann
(Syre and Spottiswoode, 6/-)

WE all have our "golden hour"; for which the handicrafts of our earlier life have been but the portent preceding this time of heightened activity.

In this, the third volume of his autobiography, John Lehmann discusses the excitement he felt at the beginning of the war.

When the plot of the possibility that the Armed Forces was envisaged, he had been writing the case notes on the 14th and 15th of the war.

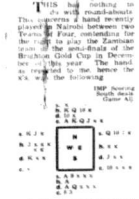

In a chapter on "What has happened?" Col. Afrifa makes a powerful plea for the maintenance of African traditions in the newly independent Ghana.

Healthy Legs For All!

It is a common knowledge that a strong, healthy leg is a necessary condition for a long and active life. The legs are the foundation of the body and must be kept in the best of health. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People is the best medicine for the legs. It contains the most potent blood-purifying and blood-building ingredients, and it is the only medicine that will cure the most stubborn cases of leg weakness, leg pain, and leg trouble. It is the only medicine that will give you the strength and endurance that you need for a long and active life. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People is the best medicine for the legs. GROUP TO REPORT Press conference

AFRICAN VISIT

A DELEGATION of the All Africa Conference of Churches arrived in Brussels yesterday for a five-day visit. The delegation, which was headed by the Rev. Dr. J. M. M. Nkomo, was accompanied by a group of African students. The delegation is expected to report on its visit to the press conference on Monday.

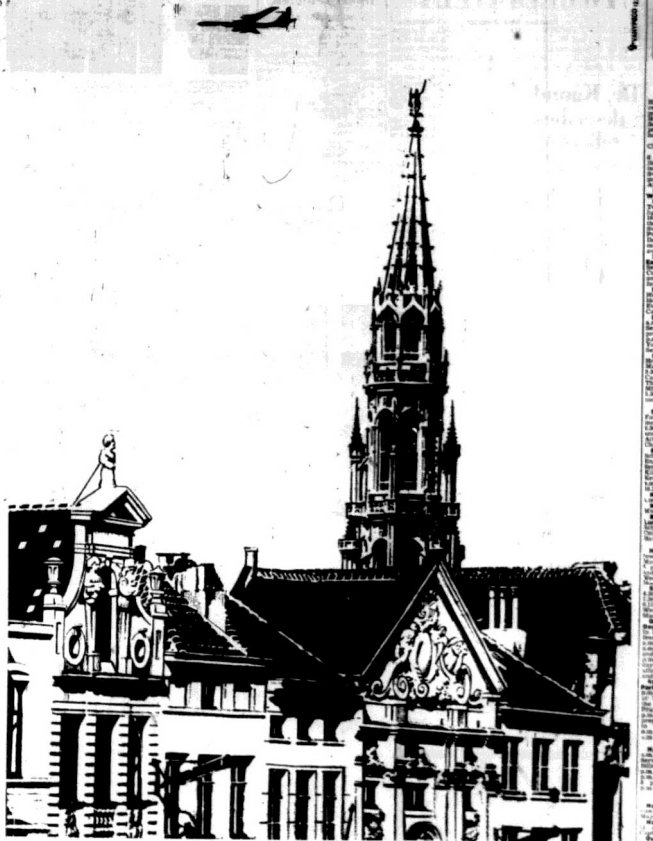

The delegation was received by the Rev. Dr. J. M. M. Nkomo, who is the General Secretary of the All Africa Conference of Churches. He said that the delegation had a very successful visit and that they were impressed by the work of the churches in Belgium.

Mr. Nkomo said that the churches in Belgium were doing a great deal of good work, particularly in the field of social welfare and education. He said that the churches were also working to bring about a better understanding between the different races in Belgium.

Mr. Nkomo said that he was pleased to see that the churches in Belgium were working towards the same goals as the churches in Africa. He said that the churches in Africa were also working to bring about a better understanding between the different races in Africa.

New E.A.C. treaty could lead to split says board

DEFINITION of East African national currencies on the way to the agreement which will be signed in London on the 26th, says the East African Group's Board's report on the progress of the treaty.

MINERAL DEPOSITS WAITING TO BE FOUND

More and more prospectors are being attracted to the rich mineral deposits waiting to be found in the East African States. The Government is encouraging them to do so by offering them various incentives.

Despite the desire which all the Governments have expressed to continue to work in close union, and preserve many of the common institutions, the fragmentation of the currency, which has brought inexorable changes. What remains to be shared, beyond the inevitable minimum, would have to be disbanded.

These three currencies were sovereign and independent and each made by the nature of things, the nature of the attributes of a foreign currency. In the other two, certain common institutions have been retained.

Banks and traders who had not previously been concerned about the location of their liabilities and assets anywhere in East Africa might have to consider the exchange aspect of their business and to pay a close watch on any over-the-counter or over-the-counter position in one currency or another.

SPECIAL RELATIONSHIP

The commercial banks would have to operate as separate entities which might be affected by differing credit policies of the central banks. The banks in their turn would be concerned to preserve orderly exchange markets based on orderly settlement arrangements and the others.

Nevertheless, the past currency union, historical connections and close financial and commercial links which, it is hoped, would continue, made the three countries natural candidates for a special relationship with each other. This relationship, however, would be based on the strength and stability of the old monetary system and the changes basic to it.

PRESIDENT OBOTE MEETS U.S. ENVOY

The United States Assistant Secretary of State for African Affairs, Mr. Joseph Palmer, met President Obote in Kampala yesterday and discussed matters of mutual interest. Mr. Palmer, who is due to leave Uganda for Kenya today, was met at the airport by the President. The meeting was held in the presence of the American Ambassador, Mr. Palmer and Mrs. Palmer and the Ugandan Ambassador, Mr. Obote and Mrs. Obote.

The exchange of views on the current situation in East Africa, the relations between the two countries, and the progress of the negotiations for a special relationship between the two countries, were discussed.

HOW TO CATCH AN ELEPHANT

SURROUND

The Warden's Division Game Warden, Maj. Rodney Elliott, and two assistants grab the rope attached to the elephant's head leg. Then the fun starts.

AFRICA SCHEME MUST BRING NEW LIFE TO BAJUNIS

For centuries Bajuni Islanders have fished and sailed in craft industries. Now that trade with Somalia is banned they hope the trade will lead to more employment.

AFTER three hours sailing to the north of Lamu you reach a collection of islands called Bajunis. Here the administrative center of Faza. The islands were forgotten for 70 years. But now been discovered by the Government which has provided them with financial help for their education, health and community development.

The Bajunis are a group of islands in the Indian Ocean, south of the Gulf of Aden, with a population of about 14,000. They are the northernmost of the islands in the Lamu District and only about 100 miles from the mainland of Kenya at Mombasa.

Fear of shifia

There is a hope, however, that the situation here will improve when the "shifia" is removed. It is feared that if Lamu is chosen as a "shifia" zone, the Bajunis will be forced to leave their homes and move to other parts of the island.

Shed making is among the cottage industries of the Bajuni Islanders. Mr. Saburi, a shoe maker at St. Ursula's school, is a shoe maker at St. Ursula's school.

BETTER OUTSIDE BROADCASTS THAN IN THE STUDIO

ONE of VOR's better weeks, on the whole, was a few obvious highlights in the opening of the new transmitter at Hingham and the Januszko celebrations. Both were well handled, maintaining open signs that more advance has been made in outside broadcasts than in studio technique.

By ROGER HOWE

I was particularly impressed with some of the short, but comprehensive from Januszko Park and the excellent parallel to the Kerley Army man.

Coverage of the Blue Ensigns... I was gratified to note that in the program's opening of the opening of Kerley... apparently gives to radio writing and composite better writers in costume to advise and operate VOR's audience to business and programs.

Pop stars struggle for survival as the record sales records for change

JOHN LARSON stood at the bow of the airliner that took him to London at the end of the week. He looked at the vast crowd stretching across the tarmac at Kennedy Airport, New York, and remembered the days when we were famous.

He smiled, but he wasn't smiling. The Beatles were their place in the business world for as long as they were. For they have half a dozen other groups who have followed in their footsteps. It's very much for the same reason that he has all the best of his own. He has a huge record catalogue and a huge reputation in the music world.

That he had to struggle then for the days of his fame. He had to struggle for the days of his fame. He had to struggle for the days of his fame. He had to struggle for the days of his fame.

PANTOMIME LOSING BATTLE ON LONDON STAGE

Holly for Christmas - grown in Kenya

LEAVES and berries are being gathered at this time of the year in Kenya in their natural state and sprayed with gold and silver paint.

Mrs. Deane-Smith has tried some ways to get artificial holly, but she has found that the best is to use real holly and berries. She has been growing holly in her Limuru garden. The holly which was grown from berries picked in the New Forest seven years ago, is still small to English standards and it is called 'Terry', but the evidence that this is the holly which was used for the Nativity story is habit.

A mixture of plastic fruits with the real thing - small-leafed and apple-like - makes up the Christmas table framed over a silver horn, the stems of the fruit are intertwined with pieces of wire so that they are difficult to pull apart.

HERRING TIN

And anything can be used as a base for candlesticks - a herring tin, discarded by parent and child in the right place for a final gift, is a good one. The tin is used in the centre of the table surrounded by the stems of the holly which were used for the Nativity story.

To make green look really festive in a flower and fruit arrangement, try these in beaten white of egg and then roll them in cedar sugar - they will really look as though they have been frosted in a matter of now.

Bananae, wood, roses, grapes and eucalyptus sprigs, dried or preserved, also make attractive centrepieces and a sprig of mistletoe and a sprig of holly are the best-known themes, to provide a really original Christmas effect for your home.

Mrs. Deane-Smith puts the holly leaves to a carpenter of fruit and other plants for the Christmas table. On the left is an arrangement of leaves, red, white and blue, and on the right is a holly and berry plant.

HOW THE TRADITION CAME ABOUT

WHEN one looks back and examines the best Christmas menus in history, it does not go back in tradition as far as one might think.

Turners first appeared on Christmas tables only in the 17th century, and it took nearly a century to become a staple of the Christmas feast. The tradition of the herring tin is said to have been introduced by the herring fisherman who was used to carrying herring in a herring tin.

WOMEN'S WORLD

HOW THE TRADITION CAME ABOUT

There is no need for words of words. However, it is said that the tradition of the herring tin is said to have been introduced by the herring fisherman who was used to carrying herring in a herring tin.

NOT CHANGED

But change is always a gradual process, and it is not surprising that the tradition of the herring tin is said to have been introduced by the herring fisherman who was used to carrying herring in a herring tin.

Top: Wicker baskets are always good for flower arrangements, but any suitable container can be used, provided its nature is well concealed either by draping foliage over it or painting in a gay colour.

Centre: Real holly, grown in Mrs. Deane-Smith's Limuru garden is entwined with variegated ivy to make a useful hanging, (ushubung) tassels being a scarlet ribbon and red holly to complete the festive look.

Bottom: A central candle has a tured base, fern and leaves, eucalyptus and other dried pods, fern and leaves, with ribbon and holly competing the picture.

Two dramatic forms mark the Sixties

By ERIC FOREST

DRAMA IN THE SIXTIES

by Laurence Kilian (Faber and Faber 3s.)

Clashes of ideas characterise often fierce sharp criticism. If they go on unceasingly they may be accused of trying to titillate or horrify. If they are more (and often) with form and structure, they run the risk of being dismissed as pedantic.

In Laurence Kilian's two prose pieces of production, Remedy is None and Charlie Seeks Revenge, he has written two studies in the art of the dramatic. Remedy is None is a study in the art of the dramatic. Charlie Seeks Revenge is a study in the art of the dramatic.

Remedy is None is a study in the art of the dramatic. Charlie Seeks Revenge is a study in the art of the dramatic.

REMEDY IS NONE by William McIlvenney (Faber and Faber 3s.)

Charlie Greer's father had been arrested and saved in order to be sent to the workhouse for this was to be the "open house" which the Greers were to inherit. Charlie Greer's father had been arrested and saved in order to be sent to the workhouse for this was to be the "open house" which the Greers were to inherit.

At a collector's piece of sentimentalism, a French incidentally one can see clearly defined by certain paintings by Francis Bacon. Kilian writes in Remedy is None that he describes it as "a beautiful study in the intricacy of the human mind." It is a study in the art of the dramatic.

A HORSE THAT HELPED A BOY

By JANET FRISK

MOST children love animals and horses above all other animals, particularly in East Africa where horses riding and have racing are two great popular sports. The story of a boy who was helped by a horse is a story of a boy who was helped by a horse. The story of a boy who was helped by a horse is a story of a boy who was helped by a horse.

RODESIAN WA REPUBLIC - PREMIER

Referendum before formal declaration

RODESIAN Prime Minister, Mr. Smith, said yesterday that so far as he could see the country was already a republic, but it would not be so until he had consulted his advisers about a referendum.

He told a Press conference that in his view Rhodesia had become a republic since the United Nations Security Council has week adopted Britain's call for mandatory sanctions against her. "From that time onwards we were de facto, no longer under the control of Britain and no longer a member of the Commonwealth. If that does what it does mean," Mr. Smith said.

When the White minority Government broke away from the status of a British colony on November 11, 1965, Rhodesia was a British colony and not a republic. The anticipate any precipitate action.

The referendum would be confined to people on the voters roll. This excludes a major part of the country's 4,000,000 strong African population. Mr. Smith said he thought Rhodesia would gain more international respect as a republic and trade relations with other countries would also improve despite the UN sanctions.

Britain 'has lost control'

The Prime Minister indicated that a national referendum early next year would depend on the opinion of constitutional advisers. But at the same time he seemed to imply that, if the constitutional advisers ruled that Rhodesia was already a republic, there would be no need for a mandate.

"Britain now has lost control of the Rhodesian question," Mr. Smith declared. "It is believed in responsibility. Whether he liked it or not, he is now in a position to be stamped into what happened to the United Kingdom, for example, a clause had to be inserted in the constitution on the sanction resolution of a country which would have lost control of that country."

"But as there were no such sanctions against Rhodesia, she has not lost control of the Rhodesian situation," Mr. Smith added. "Even if she had, she would not be bound by the UN Security Council. She is not bound by the UN Security Council. She is not bound by the UN Security Council. She is not bound by the UN Security Council."

Mr. Smith agreed with the UN Security Council's decision to impose mandatory sanctions against Rhodesia. "I am not a member of the United Nations," he said. "I am not a member of the United Nations. I am not a member of the United Nations."

The Rhodesian leader made a number of criticisms of Mr. Wilson, whom he described as a "very big, very fat, very stupid, very ignorant man." He said that Mr. Wilson's claim that the Rhodesian Government was a "very big, very fat, very stupid, very ignorant man."

A President of the Rhodesian Government would be elected by the people of Rhodesia. "I don't think that requires an election," he said. "I don't think that requires an election. I don't think that requires an election."

Mr. Smith said that he had turned down the offer of a referendum by Britain as the "right logical basis."

COMPLETE REVISION OF LAWS OF SOUGHT

Opposing the Second Reading of the Statute Law (Miscellaneous Amendments) Bill, the Leader of the Opposition, Mr. Odinga, said that the Constitution was beginning to look like a patchwork quilt.

"We have had so many amendments that it is getting tedious," Odinga said. "I am sure that the Government will be able to do a better job of it."

Records needed for Amendment did not mean present law was to be abandoned. Kibaki said the Government would ensure that manufacturing and trading activities of the East African Community were not affected.

Uganda appeal on validity adjourned

HEARINGS of an appeal by the Ugandan Government against a decision of the Privy Council in London on whether the Ugandan Constitution is valid, after the court had ruled that it was a "gross infringement" of Uganda's independence.

SUDANESE MOVE ON BORDER TALKS

FOUR Sudanese Ministers will go to Ethiopia next week to try to solve the deadlock in border talks between the countries, an official spokesman said in Khartoum.

A joint border committee has been discussing the demarcation of the frontier between the Sudan and Ethiopia and a similar move is in progress between Sudan and Egypt, the spokesman said.

The 12-hour hearing was taken up by the Privy Council in London on the appeal against the decision of the High Court in London that the Ugandan High Court's decision was a "gross infringement" of Uganda's independence.

REPUBLICAN RHODESIA

BRITISH POLICY over the Rhodesian independence crisis is at last getting down to road. More than 24 hours has passed since Mr. Wilson and his associates issued illegal authority, and critics of British Government have maintained that, since then, nothing noteworthy has altered.

Mr. Wilson has strayed from the policy for the sake of a convenient feeling of frustration on the part of Rhodesians who wish to know how the British Government would act on a change to independence under African rule. Clearly, this is not the case.

However, it does not account for the failure to agree with the Government on the subject of the sanctions originally applied to Rhodesia. The original policy was to suspend the supply of arms and ammunition but this has been cancelled. The original policy was to suspend the supply of arms and ammunition but this has been cancelled. The original policy was to suspend the supply of arms and ammunition but this has been cancelled.

Moreover, Mr. Wilson's direction, which has withdrawn all previous offers of a negotiated settlement, and will therefore be independent of the Rhodesian Government, is not a new policy. It is a continuation of the policy which has been described earlier in this column. It is a continuation of the policy which has been described earlier in this column.

The British Government is displeased, regarding the decision against independence before the end of 1960, and is determined to maintain its position. It is determined to maintain its position. It is determined to maintain its position.

NEW FARMERS ON THE PLATEAU WHEATFIELDS

By Enid De Silva

THE wheatfields stretching to the horizon are still there, but the names on many of the round plough-lands at the gates have changed from Brown and Smith to Kiprotich and Chapwechony.

Right across the Uasin Gishu District, from the Plateau around Horbet, now an all-white farming stronghold, in Kere, are signs of the change.

In all, some 200 African farmers have moved into the large wheat farms of Uasin Gishu district, forming the majority in a mixed farming community some with 120 acres, and others with 120 acres and 50 Acre farms.

In partnership

They own farms averaged from four hundred acres to about 5,000 acres in size, most of it under wheat, but with the use of modern tools and equipment, such as tractors, combine harvesters and sprayers.

Christmas Messages THE TRUE ANSWER

It would be a good idea to persuade one of the many reporters who often set out to find out from ordinary people what makes them so cheerful at Christmas.

Apart from the obvious answers that would be given—the holiday atmosphere, the twinkling lights, the increased chances of celebrations—it would be interesting to discover how many would give the true answer: that it all centres around a Baby born in a stable at Bethlehem of a Virgin Mother approximately 2,000 years ago.

And that Baby is God incarnate; the Son of the world. It is God giving Himself to become man, to give us a share in His own Divine Nature, and hereafter a life in His eternal kingdom.

While writing this message I am fully reminded of an ancient Christmas Message. It came from Heaven; from God to men. "Behold I bring you good news of a great joy which will come to all the people," said the Heavenly messenger on the first Christmas night. And hosts of angels joined in praising God and saying "Glory to God in the highest, and on Earth peace and good-will to men of good will."

While sharing in legitimate rejoicing, Christians might be made aware of the reality of the peace and progress we enjoy. May these blessings continue!

To the Editor, staff and all readers of the "East African Standard" send Christmas greetings. I pray that they may deeply understand the meaning and share in the joy of a truly happy Christmas and have good success in the coming year.

God will come to us—if we let him

From the Archbishop of East Africa, the Most Rev. E. A. BECHER

ONCE again I have been invited to pass on a Christmas greeting to the readers of the "East African Standard". May God bless you all of this season and give you the joy of a very blessed New Year.

Earlier this year I was wandering through the streets of the old City of Jerusalem and, in the heart of the City, I found a pair of big wooden doors hung open. I disclose an ancient "secret"; this, I learned almost, to the smallest detail, identical with the title "son" in Bethlehem.

Built around the courtyard on three sides were two-story buildings, with stairways leading up to the guest rooms on the upper level; below were the stables where I saw donkeys tethered and where there were stone mangers, just as there were when Jesus was born.

Then, there was "no room in the inn" for the baby and Mary went to the stable and there Jesus was born.

Christmas becomes more wonderfully real than ever as I stood there in the courtyard. And I reminded myself that God is always coming to us, if we will let him, right on the ordinary news of life's common ways, just as He did in Bethlehem.

And once again, this Christmas we make room for the Christ-child in our hearts and homes.

ARCHBISHOP BECHER

THE MANY THINGS CHRISTMAS MEANS TO KENYANS

CHRISTMAS comes to Kenyans as visitors in very different ways. Extra aircraft and trains carrying pilgrims flock to the Coast. On the shamba families gather to drink beer and slaughter a cow.

Other parties, such as the security forces in the Northern Province, have to work but all bring some way to celebrate Christmas.

The East African Flying Doctor Service will be sending its medical team to the remote areas of the country.

The administration Mr. W. F. Kenyon is hoping the Christmas Tree V.L.D. vehicles attached to the service have gone down to the Coast for a holiday in the state.

Mr. Alan Maxwell is the Chief of the Kenya Police. The Kenya Police will be carrying out a number of operations.

Mr. Herbert Anderson, boss of a retail and wholesale firm, has a special Christmas party for his staff. A spokesman for the Kenya Army said the Christmas tree will be set up in the barracks.

The Kenya Rail Coach Board will be the first to have a Christmas tree in its headquarters.

WHILE tigers grunted in their cages and Bari, one of the chimpanzees — who could talk something to the cycling club — put a heavy hand into his gold jacket, one of the artists, Santhosh, looked composed in velvet, bikini costume, as she drank tea from a Thermos flask outside one of the costume tents, surrounded by dozens of girls in stage make-up.

The stage was a sea of music, the air was filled with the sound of the brass instruments of the Royal Circus of Nairobi. Some of the big stars, and the big girls, would perform near-impossible feats on their nerves, trying to balance on poles and tightrope walking, acts which would amaze the audience.

Santhosh, with a smile, was looking at the camera. He was a young man, with a well-cut suit, and he was looking at the camera. He was a young man, with a well-cut suit, and he was looking at the camera.

A few minutes later they were performing such feats as the one pictured on the right. One of 11 new acts recently introduced to the current programme.

INTER-RELATED Most movie families are inter-related, but in animal circles they aren't more so. Santhosh's parents belong to the famous circus troupe and his brother, another well-known star, is related to the Great Royal Circus as well.

Gimmick-laden group should hit top

MEMBERS of the group 'The Four Tops' are expected to hit the top of the charts with their new single 'I Can't Get Next Door to Your Heart'. The group consists of four members: Levi Stubbs, Lawrence Williams, Renaldo Benson, and Elbridge Brooks. They are known for their soulful harmonies and powerful tenors.

It does seem to lack the local commercial appeal of what might be called 'The Four Tops'. However, their unique sound and powerful harmonies are expected to make them a major force in the pop scene.

The group's new single, 'I Can't Get Next Door to Your Heart', is a soulful ballad that showcases their signature sound. It is expected to be a major hit for the group.

The group's success is a testament to their talent and hard work. They have consistently delivered high-quality music that resonates with their fans.

The Management and Staff of the Mount Kenya Safari Club extend to their Members and Friends all good wishes for Christmas and the New Year and hope to welcome them back to the Club in the very near future.

How to get Christmas all wrapped up—give a brilliant new Ronson Varafame gas lighter

A Ronson Varafame as Christmas delights all those used to lesser lighters. It doesn't smelt, smells so good, it's so handy, it's so reliable. It lights up in 3 seconds, it's so easy to use, it's so reliable. It's a gift that will be used every day. It's a gift that will be treasured for years to come. It's a gift that will be a source of joy and pleasure for many years to come.

TRADE UNION ROLE IN THE ASSAULT ON COLONIALISM

THE DEVELOPMENT OF TRADE UNIONS IN UGANDA by Roger Geert

ROGER SCOTT's book was made possible by his visits to Uganda before and after independence...

The first two chapters are on the general situation of the trade unions in Uganda...

It is in the second stage that the most detailed work was taken over by the individual unions...

It is also the period when the political situation is rapidly changing and the trade unions are becoming more and more active...

It is in the last part of the book that the author deals with the future of the trade unions in Uganda...

The author's conclusion is that the trade unions in Uganda have a long way to go before they can play their full part in the development of the country...

Merging of two Chambers will avoid duplication

TALKING POINTS of the week in Kenya was the Constitution of Kenya (Amendment) Bill which is to be put into effect an earlier Parliamentary decision to merge the Lower and Upper Houses into one national Assembly.

The Government, which steered the Bill through the House of Representatives, has announced that it will be introduced in the House of Representatives in the next few days. It is expected that it will be passed by the House of Representatives in the next few days.

The Bill will provide for the merger of the two chambers into one national Assembly. The new Assembly will have 120 members, 60 from the Lower House and 60 from the Upper House. The members of the Upper House will be elected by the members of the Lower House.

The Bill also provides for the abolition of the Senate and the Council of State. The members of the Senate will be transferred to the new Assembly. The members of the Council of State will be appointed by the President.

The Week in East Africa

Kenya's Minister for Economic Affairs and Planning, Mr. Finance, Mr. A. Jamal, at the meeting of the committee on East African co-operation under the chairmanship of Professor K. Philips in Dar es Salaam.

The committee was set up to study the economic and financial relations between Kenya and the other East African countries. It is expected to report to the Government in the next few days.

The committee has held several meetings in Dar es Salaam. It has discussed the economic and financial relations between Kenya and the other East African countries. It has also discussed the possibility of a common market for the three countries.

The committee has recommended that the three countries should set up a common market. This would allow goods to move freely between the three countries. It would also allow the three countries to negotiate with other countries as a single unit.
