MORE JOIN IN U.N. SANCTIONS Kennedy plot inquiry 'a vote stunt'

Commons row on Rhodesia costs

SEVEN more countries have imposed economic sanctions against Rhodesia, the United Nations announced yesterday. This brings the number of countries complying with a Security Council resolution to 122.

Among the Notes informing the Secretary-General, U Thant, of the measures taken was one from Kenya which said that it had effectively cut off all trade with Rhodesia.

West Germany, which is not a member of the U.N., said it had prohibited any imports being lifted for the commodities mentioned in the Council resolution, and also banned.

In the British House of Commons yesterday there was a clash between the Prime Minister, Mr. Wilson, and the Conservative Party's main critic on the Government's Rhodesia policy, Mr. Duncan Sandys.

PAPERS ON LINK-UP TALKS ARE SECRET

IRISH Minister for External Affairs, Mr. O'Donnell, has announced that the National Assembly papers relating to the link-up talks between the British and the Irish Governments are secret.

Bribes alleged

Mr. Sandys accused Mr. Wilson of concealing facts about the cost to Britain's balance of payments of the Rhodesia sanctions policy against Rhodesia. "How can you go on pretending that no reliable estimate is available when you have given to the Commonwealth an estimate of around £100,000,000?" Mr. Sandys asked.

Mr. Wilson alleged that officials from Rhodesia House in London were going around the country trying to bribe members of the Commonwealth delegations to let them have a set of Commonwealth documents relating to sanctions. If there had been no sanctions Britain would still have had to give aid to Rhodesia, he said.

Mr. Wilson said the cost of Rhodesia was estimated at about £100,000,000, but this included the cost of the sanctions which he estimated cost the country £100,000,000.

'RESERVOIR' OF BLACK RHINO FOR KENYA GAME PARKS

KENYA'S National Parks and game reserves are to have a "reservoir" of black rhino they can draw on to increase or replenish their stocks as part of a scheme to make sure that it is preserved in sufficient numbers to allow it to be taken of the danger list of threatened species.

The man behind the scheme is Dr. John King, director of the Game Department, Kenya's Ministry of Lands and Natural Resources. He is planning to establish a "reservoir" of black rhino in the Masai Mara National Park, which has retained 18 rhino for protection in national parks.

STORY BY Peter Mardouni PICTURES BY Emil Jeases

Of late rhino for the both local area. Dr. King and West, one of the rhino experts, will be following to see what the situation is like in the park.

The actual catching occupied six days of that and which resulted in 18 rhino being captured. The rhino were then transported from the East African Wildlife Society by the Masai Mara Park company to the East African Wildlife Society.

Two rhinos died in the process of being captured. Dr. King said that having a "reservoir" of rhino in the park would be a great help in the event of a major outbreak of poaching.

RARE MANAALS

The area has a large rhino population and sufficient to supply the needs of the park. The black rhino is on the list of rare and threatened animals.

Dr. King said that having a "reservoir" of rhino in the park would be a great help in the event of a major outbreak of poaching.

The start of a long journey to safety — this rhino, once former home is threatened by poaching, was taken by Dr. John King from a hillside near Hone by Mr. David Woodhead. Between rhino are here protected a technique of aerial hunting and has been possible. The capture of large numbers of rhino.

Not all rhino captures and captives get to know each other and most of the rhino become quite friendly with the humans — especially when it is a matter of going to a cooling shower bath in the heat of the day.

He was told they were good. And he sure paid enough. So what's wrng with his sunglasses?

They're doing only half the job. That's what's wrong. It's glare that bothers his eyes and ordinary dark glasses just can't help. Only the remarkable Polaroid sunglasses can, not just by darkening glass, but by wiping it out by means of a unique optical principle called polarization. Polarizing lenses contain invisible vertical bars and because reflecting glare vibrates horizontally, its rays can't get through. Polaroid sunglasses, with the famous little tag come in many fashionable styles, all scratch-resistant, shatterproof, optically correct, and so lightweight you'll probably forget they're on.

NO ORDINARY SUNGLASSES ELIMINATE GLARE AS DO Polaroid Sunglasses.

TEA DRINKING HABIT

ONE OF THE OUTSTANDING successes on the African continent in recent years has been tea from African smallholders in Kenya. The consistent quality of their "cut" has been a major factor in its success, and a steady demand at reasonably good prices.

Great faith, backed by the outlay of considerable investment, is being pinned in the success of tea planting. The interests of smallholders and large plantations alike were discussed at the F.A.O. conference on tea leafy tea production, currently sitting in London, at which the three East African countries are represented.

Delegates from 23 countries, producers East Africa, India, Pakistan and Ceylon, and consumers like the United Kingdom, are attending the conference, which has been to examine the industry's prospects over the next ten years against a background of the background of a worldwide campaign to promote tea drinking to increase sales and forestall a collapse in prices caused by a tea over-production.

Initially, the success of a sales campaign could be hampered by opposite effects on coffee, tea, and citrus and one of the mainstays of East African exports has been the coffee. The coffee industry has been a major factor in the coffee's precarious position and, particularly in Kenya, is considered to have a bright future. The success of the combination of development on the big plantations and the extensive new smallholding schemes, Kenya's tea exports have shown spectacular increases in the past five years. In 1960, they were worth £4,900,000 but had risen to £6,000,000 in 1962. Last year's exports climbed over eight figures; they are not available for the last quarter, but total standing at £7,015,000. Kenya's tea may not enjoy the reputation for consistent quality which was coffee's least until recent years (Kaffey, there is now an upward trend, but top-class standards have been maintained outside for brands having more than average appeal).

American demand for 'instant' teas

Will tea eventually share the fate of coffee, with production pegged back by quotas under international agreement, in order to avoid the disaster of massive over-production? The answer is not clear, but there are signs of anxiety. Some sources are urging rationalization of world production against estimated demands.

Last year's experience was not encouraging, with frozen drinking water production, excluding Russia and Chinese, rose by rather more than two per cent. The shortage of the U.S.S.R. and China from the London conference adds two perplexing factors to the proceedings and planning.

The conference has been named by a U.N. expert that present market trends could lead to over-production of between 100,000 and 200,000 tons a year by 1975, hence the importance of the "drink more tea" campaign. It may also prompt remedial for the resultant fall in prices must during countries themselves, especially India, Pakistan and Ceylon. There has been a remarkable increase in Indian domestic consumption, absorbing nearly half of the total production of 800,000 tons, but the potential market there as in Pakistan, South-East Asia and East Africa has been explained last three quarters.

Britain, with its traditional tea drinking habit, accounts for almost half of the world's total tea imports and one-third of its consumption. A serious excess of production would not mean a "copper" but a substantial loss of foreign exchange earnings.

With three of the world's foremost producers, India, Pakistan and Ceylon, joining the conference to sponsor a campaign for drinking coffee first to place as the chief non-alcoholic drink in many of the tea-bearing lands, East Africa has a twofold interest. In the U.S., an abysmal target, the market is expanding relatively slowly. If the Americans could be persuaded to buy a little more drink more tea, the industry would have a very sound foundation, though possibly at the expense of coffee. But tea and coffee have been enjoying a vogue and 22 per cent of imports last year were for "instant teas" where promotional prospects are bright.

KENYAN EXPORTS HIT BY TROUBLE ON RAILWAYS

Nairobi's vital air port trade is still seriously threatened by the crippling of the country's regional railway system, as a result of communal fighting in 1962.

Under a recently announced Federal Ministry Government, the Kenya Railway Corporation has been set up to take over the railway system from the Government. The new corporation is to be a public body responsible for the railway system, and is to be financed by the Government and the public. He was a member of the scientific panel which advised the Government leaders on whether or not to drop the bomb on Japan without warning. But a few years later he was denied access to secret documents because of alleged associations with Communists.

A NEW PATTERN OF GAMBLING IS NEEDED FOR KENYA

POLLING BLOW TO Mrs. GANDHI

Communists and Jan Sangh rock Congress

Only one year after taking office, India's first woman Prime Minister, Mrs. Indira Gandhi, suffered a major political setback yesterday as sweeping triumphs by Communist and Right-wing opposition factions ended her ruling Congress Party in the country's fourth General Election.

Despite the setbacks in the early results, the Congress Party, which has ruled India since independence in 1947, was still certain to be returned to power. But in the Southern States Kerala Communists and their supporters climbed back to power after nine years out of office. And in Delhi, in the North, the Right-wing nationalist capturing three of the city's seven Parliamentary seats.

Mrs. Gandhi, 49, who became the world's only woman Prime Minister when she succeeded Mr. Shastri, has lost her Works and Housing Minister and her Deputy Railway Minister, both defeated by the Jan Sangh.

For Mrs. Gandhi, the calm, graceful widow who fought the elections campaign with skill and courage even a broken nose from a stone flung by a heckler opponent's death last night — yesterday's shocks might be a bitter disappointment.

Big majority in Kerala

The Kerala results virtually wiped out the Congress party representation in the State Assembly. With 56 seats still to be declared, Communists and supporters had an absolute majority of 57 in the 113-seat Assembly.

The Communists were victorious in Kerala in the 1956 elections, but the State Cabinet they set up was dissolved in the Congress Government's second term.

On the grounds that it had dissolved the Congress Government in 1962, the President's rule was imposed in Kerala in 1966 pending new elections in 1967.

In the Delhi Metropolitan area, the Congress Party lost 20 of the 26 seats to the Communist Party of India (CPI) and the Jan Sangh.

A Jan Sangh victory in the Delhi Metropolitan area would mean that the party would have a majority in the Delhi Legislative Assembly.

Army leader ousts Dr. Sukarno

PRESIDENT Sukarno of Indonesia yesterday handed over power to the military leader, Gen. Suharto, a confirmed anti-Communist. The President, who had been under massive pressure for months to step down, ruled Indonesia for 22 years.

Dr. Sukarno still retains the Presidency, but yesterday's move strips him of all executive powers. However, the People's Consultative Congress, the supreme policy-making body, is expected to dismiss him completely at a session due to begin on March 7. He may still be used in a trial for instigating the 1965-66 riots.

Nairobi park will soon have £1,000 super-playground

THE International President of the Lions Club, Mr. E. M. Lindsay, yesterday laid the foundation stone for a £1,000 children's playground in Nairobi's Central Park.

The club started in Nairobi City Council in March, 1956, for permission to raise funds and build a playground for the children of the area. The playground was ready for use in the summer of 1957 and the first children and their parents came to the park. It is now being expanded and the playground will be ready in a few months.

Mr. Lindsay is an architect as well as a member of the club. He is in charge of the project. The idea was first set up in his office and they had to show the committee of the Council that the playground was needed in a few months.

Courtesy calls

Mr. Lindsay yesterday paid a courtesy call on Mr. J. M. Njiru, Vice-Chairman of the Nairobi City Council, at the Deputy Mayor's Office, Nairobi. He also called on Mr. J. M. ### How a Mercedes-Benz truck came that star

A Mercedes-Benz on the "shake-up" run in Stuttgart-Unterhohem.

Mercedes-Benz trucks can stand this torture test for months.

The test drivers, unfortunately, can't

Mercedes-Benz can test the durability of their trucks on normal routes, but this takes too long. Keeping abreast of modern transport requires harder, faster testing. So... we get rough. Our specialists have devised "torture runs"... mudholes, water puddles, "shake-up" runs, skid pads, and a lot of other unpleasant things.

Speaking of that "shake-up" run, each new Mercedes-Benz truck is driven 10,000 kilometres over it, fully loaded. The vibration is unbelievable, but the trucks stand up to it. The drivers do not... understandably... and have to be replaced every half hour.

The end result is, of course, trucks which are afraid of nothing... sturdy, economical to run, dependable.

Is this the sort of truck you've been looking for?

The L 1618 with 205 hp HP/DAE, wheel base 20472 mm, permissible total weight 26,200 lbs., truck and trailer weight up to 71,600 lbs. Suitable for trailer operations giving up to 22 tons payload.

Ex-Uganda Army captain freed then rearrested

MINISTER GIVES WARNING ON TOURISM

Uganda Army captain was an appeal rejected in a three-year prison sentence for conspiring to arrest President Obote in February last year.

As he left the court building, however the ex-captain, Francis Erina, was rearrested by police. Authorities sources said he was held under emergency regulations in force in Buganda.

Another former army captain, Douglas Ongodia, led an appeal against a four-year sentence on the same charge. It was upheld, but the court found that his conviction for conspiracy was justified.

After Mr. Justice Bennett had read the finding of the three appeal judges, Mr. John Keroo, for Erina, asked Ongodia to make an order giving Erina 12 hours to leave Buganda before he could be rearrested. The judge said he had no power to make such an order.

CONSPIRACY TO ARREST MR. OBOTE

At the court martial, four charges were brought against Erina and Ongodia; they were convicted on the first two, which were that they joined a conspiracy to arrest Mr. Obote. The only other charge was that they were involved in a conspiracy to set up a road block and arrest the then Prime Minister, Mr. Obote.

They were also convicted on charges of 'obscenising' or 'slandering' the Government. Mr. Obote has been taken to the hospital and is expected to recover.

THEFT AS PREACHER SPOKE

A MAN who asked to be allowed into a workshop compound to listen to a preacher spoke a local language, a Nairobi magistrate said yesterday.

The magistrate, Mr. J. O. O'Connell, said that a man named John Mwangi had asked to be allowed into the workshop compound to listen to a preacher speak in a local language. The magistrate said that the man was not allowed to enter the compound because he was not a member of the church.

WATER rationing will start in Nairobi by the middle end of March unless the present drought comes to an end, a City Council spokesman said yesterday. Consumption of water has gone down from 13,000,000 gallons to 11,000,000 and it is feared that this will last until the middle of March.

The City Engineer, Mr. J. M. O'Connell, said that the present drought was the worst in the history of the city. He said that the water supply was being rationed by 10 per cent and that this was expected to be sufficient to last until the middle of March.

LEADERSHIP CRISIS IN INDIA Election blame likely to fall on Mrs. Gandhi

MEMBERS of India's ruling Congress Party began to discuss the party's future in New Delhi yesterday after the heavy General Election which has completely changed the country's political picture.

Petrol cuts in Rhodesia to continue

RHODESIA'S petrol rationing has been extended indefinitely, the Government has announced in Salisbury yesterday.

There is general agreement that India has political scene will never be the same again, even with a much reduced overall majority but Opposition parties are forming the Governments in several States.

Five Cabinet Ministers are resigning their portfolios, pushed out and some lesser Ministers have been dismissed.

Mr. Indira Gandhi had a great personal triumph but her position as Prime Minister has been badly undermined by the Congress debacle, for which she may later be held responsible.

Deprived of support

The election has deprived Mrs. Gandhi of sufficient Members of Parliament who would have supported her in a leadership struggle against the former Finance Minister, Mr. Morarji Deasai, finally backed by Northern M.P.s.

But Congress remains India's only really national party. Opposition parties have had local success but they have been localised and without any general pattern.

The right wing has found more than 100 seats in South India. In Madras the Dravida Munnetra Kazhagam, a regional Democratic Party of Northern, captured 100 seats in regional language.

THE VERDICT OF INDIA

IT WAS EXPECTED that the Congress Party would be retained with a reduced majority in the Indian General Elections but political forecasts forecast that it would be such a Pyrrhic victory. In the 20th year of independence it is clear that the honeymoon between the people and party is over.

The overwhelming 235-seat lead Congress held in the last General Election is expected to be reduced to about 100 seats by the time the final results are declared. Anything less is even heavier on the State polling. Here has Congress had lost control of half the Government.

What has gone wrong? One need look no further than the shock statements by the President, Dr. Bhabhaskar, in the last month, when, instead of the attitudes usually flourished on national days, he described 1946 as the "best year since independence, full of national pride and human failures". He condemned sectional interests, regional prejudices and other differences crippling the country.

In addition, for over the years into a sense of complacency, its members have basked in the reflected glory of Mr. Nehru and ignored the writing on the wall. Past triumphs do not mean much to a voter who wonders where he will get the next meal for his family. Politicians cannot be blamed for the drought but if they had achieved more for the ordinary people his effects on India's 500,000,000 people would not have been so tragic.

A recent article in The Times suggested that democracy in India was "government of the politician, by the politician, for the politician". A leading Indian writer commenting in the Indian Express on this comment says it touches the very heart of the matter. If the politician and not the people, he says, who have brought democracy there into disrepute.

The Congress leaders certainly cannot escape the masses of Indians. Until now they have remained loyal despite having little or no improvement in their standards of living. Some authorities, indeed, think it has deteriorated. A recent U.S. analysis said that while the per capita income of the Indian had risen from Rs. 250 to Rs. 300 in 1946 and 1948, the 1949 estimate at the rate of increased income was worth only Rs. 210. The politicians can not make up for these figures.

Part of the blame for the economic stagnation can be put on the wide powers given to the state governments. Often they can be observed pulling in different directions while the Central Government looks on powerlessly. Seen through Kanya eyes this is magnifying error. With Opposition parties likely to form governments in several States, problems of central and state relations will arise. Kerala, Delhi used emergency powers to force on the Central Government, there ten years ago but it will force some measure if it tries similar action in other areas. It seems that constitutional reform to give the Central Government greater powers will have to come.

Mr. Gandhi has had a great personal success in his own constituency, where she was returned with a 90,000 majority, and she has renewed her stature with her loyalty against violence during the election campaign and for abstention in face of the results. She has said that the people here proved their maturity and proved to the world that India has free and fair elections.

The voting time will come this week when the Congress Members meet in charge of the new Government. It may prove that a consensus will be sought, on which one of the Prime Minister will be Mr. Chaudhry or Mr. Chaudhry. This remains to be seen but with five key Ministers reported at the polls, the task of forming a Cabinet will be difficult.

It is a lighter mood that could be said that the election result is more of a golden age than a disaster. None of the Right-wing parties will have more than fifty Members and it is unlikely, despite that the only "Right" will probably combine, to get more than 100 Members and anti-Party elements. It may be the best Government since independence and will find solid ground with the people.

With Congress will be a different thing from the Congress and will try to recreate the unity that was India under the British. It is the only way to the new order of India, with a population of 200 million people.

SCOTTISH HOPES ARE DASHED

The Scots were held to a 10-0 draw in the first half, but they were unable to score in the second half.

The French were held to a 10-0 draw in the first half, but they were unable to score in the second half.

FRANCE overcame the hoodoo which has always marked their appearances at the Twickenham ground when they defeated the English in a highly international on Saturday by 16 points to 10. It was France's first win at Twickenham since 1924, and they had the better three-quarter line and generally combined far more effectively in a fast, very contented match.

All the scoring came in the first 45 minutes. Three tries from Bernard Laporte and Claude Bourdelle and two from Jean-Claude Boncompagni and Robert de Galarza secured a 10-0 lead for the French.

France's score was never in doubt, but they were held to a 10-0 draw in the first half, but they were unable to score in the second half.

DAR CALL FOR SELF-RELIANCE More Soviet aid sought by Emperor

Africa must go it alone—Dr. Nyerere

President back from Coast

Standard Staff Reporter Dar es Salaam.

SELF-RELIANCE was the key to Tanzania's new policies — not eradication of capitalism or expansion of public ownership — President Nyerere emphasised in Dar es Salaam yesterday. He was addressing 1,500 Tanz delegates on the Arusha Declaration.

It had been said there was "a lot of Mao" in the manifesto, but it was based on philosophies, he said.

Dr. Nyerere was opening a six-day extraordinary general conference of the Tanganyika African National Union to discuss the Arusha Declaration, which laid forth and has led to nationalisation of banks and several leading business concerns.

A surprise guest speaker at the conference was Foreign Minister of Zambia, Mr. Kapwepwe, who brought the greetings from President Kaunda and expressed Zambia's support for the Arusha Declaration.

Challenge to politicians

President Nyerere reiterated his belief that Africa must develop through its own efforts. He said that, like Russia, Europe, Africa could expect no real development from advanced nations.

He said the Arusha Declaration was a challenge not only to the Tanz people, but to the world.

INDIA SETS DATE TO ELECT PREMIER

INDIA'S 10th General Election will be held on April 10, 1957. The date for the election of a new government will be decided by the Government of India.

ZAMBIAN SUPPORT PLEDGED

Foreign Minister M. Kapwepwe rose to speak at the meeting. He commended the Arusha Declaration and pledged Zambia's support for the Tanz people.

WHEN THE ZAMBIAN

Foreign Minister M. Kapwepwe rose to speak at the meeting. He commended the Arusha Declaration and pledged Zambia's support for the Tanz people.

Mr. Kapwepwe said Zambia supported the Arusha Declaration and the (ongoing) spirit of the Arusha Declaration.

Political independence was not enough. It was necessary to build a strong and united African continent.

Dr. Nyerere said that Africa must go it alone. He said that Africa must be self-reliant.

Enter method baffles in espionage context

WHEN since the current craze for spy literature, prominent writers have tried to find some new dimensions, and the most successful have undoubtedly been those who have derived their inspiration from the world of espionage.

The novel, which is a most successful of its kind, is the one that has been written by the author, who is a member of the CIA. The novel is a masterpiece of the genre, and it is a must-read for anyone who is interested in the world of espionage.

GOOD OMEN FOR O.A.U.

AFRICAN FOREIGN MINISTERS

meeting at the eighth session of the O.A.U. Council of Ministers, in Addis Ababa, have a full agenda of domestic and external matters to consider. Their proceedings began in greater harmony than the ill-fated seventh session in Addis Ababa, which preceded the Heads of State meeting, neither of which were attended by any stretch of the imagination.

Their previous session was clouded by the diplomatic storm which blew up after the declaration in Sierra Leone of Guinea's Foreign Minister and his party on route to Addis Ababa. The current conference started well and was reminded by the Liberian delegate that African countries should not allow differences to become a source of mutual respect and hostility. Mr. Grimes emphasized that the O.A.U. is not a federation; its members can disagree, yet respect one another without interfering in one another's internal affairs.

They are sure to be united on questions of decolonization and their attitudes to Rhodesia, South Africa, the Portuguese Territories and the withdrawal of Israel from Sinai for S. W. Africa from South Africa.

In the absence of the Emperor of Ethiopia, which is visiting Moscow, the Crown Prince made an opening speech in the name of his father to overthrow the illegal régime in Rhodesia. In the belief that U.N. economic sanctions will not succeed in its purpose. An there is a unified O.A.U. military organization and command structure, and individual member States are as yet incapable of mounting a joint operation, demands for force cannot be met by the O.A.U. It is, the speaker said, the duty of the O.A.U. to demand for a settlement, believing in the long economic haul.

A special appeal is anticipated for the people of Dahomey, otherwise French Somaliland, to vote in their referendum on March 18, and to vote for independence. They are being asked by the French to choose between independence in their own and mutual association with France. If they choose the former, they will be expected to leave Benin, Somalia, and to form part of the policy of horizontal expansion which has led to trouble with both Belgium and Kenya.

When the conference takes its internal matters, some of the things will include a report on the progress of the 1966-67 budget, transmitted by the Secretary for Finance. A list of 1000 projects, a large one, are considered suitable for meeting all the money needs for their own development purposes. Moreover, some members have been historically in arrears.

The greatest share of the publicity will fall on resolutions passed about world peace, but this is by no means all the conference has been convened to do. Its most effective contribution to continental unity at present lies through economic, social, cultural and educational co-operation, which occupy most of the time in conference sessions.

TOWN AND COUNTRY

are inseparable communities. Neither can exist without the other. Their proper relation lies at the foundation of Kenya's prosperity.

To break the long tradition of electing a farmer as President and an urbanite as Vice-President, the National Council has elected a farmer as President and an urbanite as Vice-President. # KENYA FOOTBALLERS GET DOWN TO TRAINING

No let-up in training after Sudan

KENYA's footballers, who arrived in Kampala from Khartoum on Tuesday evening, yesterday started training under their coach, Angus Gibbons. The squad have two key players, Jonathan Njira and Ali Samara, who are injured but Mr. Gibbons said yesterday that they were both responding to treatment and hoped they would be fit enough for the vital first leg Africa Cup match against Uganda on Sunday at Nakuru Stadium. Both players were injured in the Friendship Cup competition in which Kenya finished third in Sudan and Ethiopia.

Mr. Gibbons would make no comment on whether he had asked the Kenya Football Association for replacements, or whether any players were on their way to join the squad as possible reinforcements. Njira and Samara sustained injuries in Khartoum. Njira was injured in the opening match against Ethiopia, who were defeated. Samara was hurt in the match against Tanzania, which Kenya won 2-0. Mr. Gibbons said the Kenya team was confident and self-disciplined and he expected the team to do well after their improved form in Khartoum.

U.K. RECALLS UGANDA ENVOY

Allegations by Mr. Obote repudiated

BRITAIN yesterday recalled its High Commissioner in Uganda, Mr. Roland Hunt, for consultations. A few hours before leaving Kampala he had delivered to the Uganda Government a formal British statement of any implication in an alleged "South African-Rhodesian plot" referred to at a Press conference by President Obote last week.

It is not known how long Mr. Hunt will be in London. His wife has stayed behind in Kampala and Mr. P. M. Foster is in charge of the High Commissioner's office in his absence.

A Commonwealth Office statement in London yesterday said that the Commonwealth Secretary of State had asked Mr. Hunt to pass a message to the Uganda Government repudiating allegations recently made by the British Government of the activities of the British Government in Uganda. The statement emphasized that the British Government had full confidence in Mr. Hunt and that he had always acted with complete propriety.

It was made after official study of Mr. Hunt's advice to British citizens travelling on the Kampala road, where there had been incidents since the Uganda Army to exercise caution.

Accused persons

At his Press conference Mr. Obote accused a High Commissioner of conducting foreign relations through the South African-Rhodesian plot. He implied that the British Government was in a position to identify sufficient High Commissioner of Uganda as a man unqualified to be in that position.

METRIC REFORMATION

REFORMS TO INTRODUCE the metric system for weights and measures have been announced by the three East African Governments with scant publicity considering their wide importance. The Metric Dept. has been using Centigrade for Fahrenheit for some time. When the currencies were changed from East African to territorial issues, the basis of the decimal system related to centigrade was ten to the power of one making 1/10, but then veering away into 20/10 to the 4, at any rate for common use though not for official purposes, in which totals are added up to astronomical numbers of shillings.

The trend the world over is to join in the metric reformation; to adopt a system which is easier to master than the British or American. An intriguing thought — will there ever be comparable change accompanying the binary mathematics of the computer age?

Britain, the ancient home of the 'imperial part' which counts the ounces and the pound, will be the first to convert to the metric system in 1971, when £1 will be composed of 100 newpence and 100 newpence coin will replace the £1 note. The date of the change, it is hoped, will be under the £120,000,000 estimated by the investigating committee, but will fall most heavily on private industry.

Over the years, several organizations have recommended adoption of the metric system in East Africa. In 1963, the (then) Indian Chamber of Commerce supported a move by the (then) Tanganyika Government to introduce the metric system for weighing a range of edible oils and foodstuffs, pointing out that in quantities having similar weights in grams and kilograms, it is easier to measure and compare.

A year later, a commission was set up by EACSO to inquire into the possibilities of change. The merits of a common metric system are obvious, for it does away with having to master the tenuous tables of inches mounting to feet, feet into yards, pence and shillings, while ounces turn up in a pound, 14 lbs in the stone, 112 lbs to the cwt and other uncomprehended complications. Conversion of business machines, coin boxes, on the railways and so forth, to introduce the metric system constitutes a tremendous upheaval, costing a vast amount of money, and the Governments are now to adopt a phased programme. Changes in weighing measures will take place over four years from the date to be announced. But the public has been advised that the metric system is already legal for all trading purposes in East Africa, and that the public should use the metric methods intensively as the basis for transactions.

Study group on sisal

STATISTICAL FIGURES are gaining an ever increasing hold on the world's total fibre consumption. Expected to yield higher yields from the new hybrids, which mean heavier yields from the same acreage, and the fact that sisal is a perennial crop, it is being studied intensively. The successful advent of synthetics makes urgent needs for the sisal industry.

Recent years, however, have seen a decline in sisal production, especially in the case of the sisal plantations in the East African region. The Government has set up a study group to investigate the reasons for this decline and to recommend measures to increase production. The group will be headed by a senior official of the sisal industry and will include representatives of the sisal growers, the sisal processors, and the sisal traders.

The study group will be set up in the near future and will be given a mandate to investigate the reasons for the decline in sisal production and to recommend measures to increase production. The group will be headed by a senior official of the sisal industry and will include representatives of the sisal growers, the sisal processors, and the sisal traders.

CAUSES OF MILITARY COUPS IN AFRICA PUT UNDER SCRUTINY

A lecture on "Army Coups in Africa" was given by Prof. Rupert Emerson at the University of East Africa, Nairobi, on Tuesday evening. Here is a summary of his main points...

The use of the general concept of a coup in Africa is misleading. It is not a coup in the sense that it is a sudden seizure of power by a small group of individuals. It is a process which is the result of a long and complex process of social and economic change.

There are several factors which contribute to the occurrence of military coups in Africa. These include the weakness of the civilian government, the influence of the military, and the social and economic conditions of the country.

The military in Africa is often a product of the colonial system. It is trained and equipped by the colonial power and is loyal to the colonial power. This makes it difficult for the military to support a civilian government.

The social and economic conditions of the African continent are also a major factor in the occurrence of military coups. The continent is characterized by a large and growing population, a high rate of unemployment, and a low standard of living.

There is a need for a more realistic approach to the study of military coups in Africa. The current approach, which is based on the idea of a coup as a sudden seizure of power, is misleading and does not take account of the complex social and economic factors which contribute to the occurrence of such coups.

F.I.F.A. ruling against Baraza and Wabwayi

Basharat may play for county

BASHARAT Hassan, one of the finest cricketers produced by Kenya, almost sure to gain his first full game for Nottinghamshire in XI, the English County Cricket Club in the coming season.

Basharat, who played East African Test games in 1957, has been invited to play Nottinghamshire in the month that has already passed since he came with their annual cricket tour.

He was due to play against the England team in the first Test at Trent Bridge, but was unable to go because of a broken leg.

He was then invited to play for Nottinghamshire in the second Test at Trent Bridge, but was again unable to go because of a broken leg.

He was then invited to play for Nottinghamshire in the third Test at Trent Bridge, but was again unable to go because of a broken leg.

KENYA, with two of its stars already injured last week, yesterday confronted with an equally serious problem. According to a Federation of International Football Associations (F.I.F.A.) ruling last year, their key man in defence, Moses Wabwayi, and the forward, Moses Baraza, cannot represent Kenya in the final leg of the Africa Cup qualifying matches.

Stadium on Sunday.

Both Moses Baraza and Moses Wabwayi are former Kenya players and their eligibility to play for Kenya has been a doubtful issue.

They were excluded on appeal from the Kenya Football Association and the Kenya Football Association and the Kenya Football Association.

Sikh Union enter final after third replay

Sikh Union holders of the Kenya Hockey Cup have entered the final of the year's competition when they defeated the young Barotsi of Chikanda side by 3-1 in a final replay at Nairobi Park Stadium yesterday.

The match was a close one, with the Barotsi side showing some attacking spirit in the first half. However, the Sikh Union players were more composed and showed more control in the second half.

The final score was 3-1 in favor of the Sikh Union, who will now go on to play for the title against the winners of the other semi-final.

Defence baffled

The Sikh Union's defence was well organized and difficult to break down. The Barotsi side tried to play through the defence, but the Sikh Union players were quick to intercept and clear the ball.

The Sikh Union's goalkeeper was also very good, making several saves that kept the Barotsi side from scoring more goals.

The match was a tactical one, with the Sikh Union players using their experience to outplay the younger Barotsi side.
