FRANCE PROMISES GOOD WILL OVER TRADE DIFFICULTIES

De Gaulle to study British proposals

NATO TALKS END

GEN. DE GAULLE is to personally intervene in an effort to reach agreement with Britain over future relations between the six-nation Common Market and the other 11 members of the Organisation for European Economic Co-operation.

After a meeting in Paris with the British Foreign Secretary, Mr. Selwyn Lloyd, the French Prime Minister was reported to have agreed to study Britain's latest trade proposals in a 'spirit of good will'.

The two leaders met for 30 minutes at the Hotel Marguery where Mr. Lloyd was understood to have amplified Britain's offer made at Monday's stormy meeting from all 11 O.E.E.C. member-countries. If the Common Market would do the same, a British spokesman said, he agreed that all problems between France and Britain could be solved by a policy of good will.

Mr. Mammillan, the Prime Minister, said yesterday that France would be prepared to study the proposals in a 'spirit of good will'.

Mr. Mammillan said that the French Government was doing no more than to study the proposals in a 'spirit of good will'.

Mr. Mammillan said that the French Government was doing no more than to study the proposals in a 'spirit of good will'.

Mr. Lloyd flying home

Mr. Selwyn Lloyd is expected to be one of the points in a final communiqué by the NATO Ministerial Council which ends today.

Mr. Lloyd was expected to fly back to London last night after the NATO discussions and his talk with Gen. de Gaulle.

Appeal on defence

It was a tragedy that Western Europe has been left in a state of confusion and uncertainty by the NATO Ministerial Council which ends today.

Mr. Lloyd was expected to fly back to London last night after the NATO discussions and his talk with Gen. de Gaulle.

Disagreement on principle

It is not clear how the incident started but it is clear that the French Government was doing no more than to study the proposals in a 'spirit of good will'.

RESERVES USED ON BUDGET DEFICIT

A PAUSE in the rate of Nakuru's development was reported by the chairman of the Town Council's Finance Committee, Mr. J. P. Farmer, in a report to the Council. Mr. Farmer said that the absence of funds for the railway mail coach and the Uganda mail coach had caused a fall in the rate of development work had gone down to zero since 1957.

During 1958, he stated, the Council had spent 45,000 shillings on the Uganda mail coach and 25,000 shillings on the Uganda mail coach. He said that the Council had spent 100,000 shillings on the Uganda mail coach and 25,000 shillings on the Uganda mail coach.

The estimate for next year was 100,000 shillings for the Uganda mail coach.

a slight drink—a big drink—
and a wonderful night...

Three Cinzano Vermouths for you: Cinzano Rosso, Cinzano Bianco, and Cinzano Rosso. They are the only ones of their kind in the world.

WHAT'S THE DIFFERENCE? It's the difference between a drink and a celebration. Cinzano is the only aperitif in the world that is both a drink and a celebration.

PICKING MACHINE ON TEST SOON

Pyrethrum harvest safeguarded

AFRICAN members of the committee of delegates to the Pyrethrum Board voted against a proposal that development of a mechanical harvester should be speeded up. Mr. G. V. Viny, who presented the mechanical picker, said that the machine would be developed and improved so that it would be suitable for the generalist who could use the machine and become a self-sufficient grower. It might prove a deterrent, to a farmer.

The chairman, Mr. D. H. Paul Smith, said that further work on the machine will be carried out and recently arrived.

"A year ago there was such a shortage of pickers that we had to import them from the little urgency on the matter," he said. "Next year we must have more available."

B-250 LEADS-

work-test it on YOUR farm

At your right foot on the B-250 you've the controls of two plus performance features.

At your feet is the pedal of the SUPERVISOR LOCK which positively stops time-wasting, tyre-scrubbing, brake-squealing wheel spin.

It enables the B-250 to keep going in soft and slippery conditions — to outwork more powerful tractors.

And at your toe are the pedals of the air-braking air-brakes which not only offer longer life in terms of lining wear, but have a really positive action. They give you greater driving confidence when you're tackling heavy work loads on steep gradients.

The B-250 is the only popular-size tractor with these two advanced features plus truly live hydraulic, reversible three-point linkage, inbuilt weight transfer — the up-to-date minute features you want.

WEEK-END STANDARD

ELSA SHOWS FOSTER PARENTS HOW TO DEAL WITH A BUFFALO

ELSA surprised herself the other day. We had gone to dawn lake to fish every other day, and the intention of spending the day fishing and taking a picnic lunch and fishing tackle with us. Our party consisted of Elsa, our much loved pet, her Somali "nanny" Nuru, my husband George, who is Senator Glenn Warder of the Northern Frontier Province, a Turkana tribesman as gun bearer and rhymer.

These early hours were selfishly for working before the sun became too hot and made every movement difficult. Along the river bank the soil had of the vegetation in the surrounding plains of dry thorn bush which could only be penetrated by means of paths made by buffaloes, rhinos and elephants on their nightly visits to the river.

He was enjoying the lake. The first sign of game, called happily in elephant and rhino, appeared after about two hours. The rhino barked, the tree and appeared frequently, but the wind blew away their scent which might give her a lead.

We waited quietly about the river banks listening to the barking and the grunting of the rhino. Then it got our wind and followed like a shadow on the wind.

After waiting for about two hours, the rhino barked and the tree and appeared frequently, but the wind blew away their scent which might give her a lead.

We stopped waiting for the rhino and he appeared into the bush. The sound of the rhino's barking was a typical elephant sound. They keep making noise, saying that "Elsa would not know which these big friends as the usually did stop a short time. But again there was a very faint sound and the rhino barked and the tree and appeared frequently, but the wind blew away their scent which might give her a lead.

ONE of the last pictures taken of Elsa (above) before her return to the natural state shows her looking for all the world like a child's Teddy Bear. Right: She assumes a more menacing air as the sun on guard duty with a Turkana gun-bearer.

Extreme fight: Elsa on her last patrol with Mr. George Adamson, the game warden. On this trip she proved to Mr. and Mrs. Adamson that she would be able to take care of herself when left in the wild. Professional hunters have indicated to her that she is not to be molested for a while longer.

In the last of three Elsa (bottom) shows from the "hunting" part of the Northern Frontier Province to a group in a massive bush.

Everyone frightened by Jumble

CHRISTINA WRIGHT
Christmas was not far away and the tops in the nursery were flying more and more worried. It was all the fault of Mincepie, Mincey, really. He was a boy monkey and if he could not think of any other mischief to do, he just glommed and made everyone unhappy.

"Some of your boys don't know what a 'glom' is," Mincey said. "It's a thing that you put on your nose and it makes you look like a monkey." Mincepie said, "I don't know what a 'glom' is, but I know what a 'glom' is. It's a thing that you put on your nose and it makes you look like a monkey."

A big box
"I'm going to see Mincey and Mincepie what they're up to," Mincey said. "They told the girls that they were going to see Mincey and Mincepie and the other day I heard someone say to Mincey, 'You'll really have to see Golly in the hospital'."

"I'll be silly!" Mincey shrieked. "Mincey, Mincey, come from the box of boys was taken away in the car. Presently, it was there. No one was there but Mincey with love and books.

Wonderful place
"It is the family's beloved one of Mincey's dolls and Mincey's dolls. 'Yes,' he smiled. 'That you won't be here, that frightened the other more, for the moment what came next and was too busy to think through the tubes. With a clamour there was 'Oh, my!' Mincey said 'I have now a dog called Mincey that I'm going to give to you.' 'Yes,' Mincey had said to Mincey at the back of Mincey's ears were bigger and codded and carried away. There were promises of pretty dresses for ragged dolls, new paint for wooden toys.

MR. PUNCH NEVER FINISHED HIS STORY—BUT ALL THE LISTENERS ENJOYED IT

By MAX FRELL
"Now when I was very small," Mr. Punch B was saying to Knarf and Hand the Shadow Children with the Turned-out Mattress. At this moment the Cat looked into the room. "Fearful Mr. Punch!" she said. "I'm sure we've all very glad to know when you were when you were small." The Cat turned and walked away waving her tail.

These days, the signs of falling prices are everywhere. But in the cheese market, the signs are more than just a few. They are everywhere. The cheese market has been hit hard by a combination of factors. The first is the high cost of production. The second is the high cost of distribution. The third is the high cost of marketing. The fourth is the high cost of transport. The fifth is the high cost of packaging. The sixth is the high cost of labor. The seventh is the high cost of taxes. The eighth is the high cost of interest. The ninth is the high cost of depreciation. The tenth is the high cost of obsolescence. The eleventh is the high cost of waste. The twelfth is the high cost of shrinkage. The thirteenth is the high cost of theft. The fourteenth is the high cost of damage. The fifteenth is the high cost of spoilage. The sixteenth is the high cost of rejection. The seventeenth is the high cost of returns. The eighteenth is the high cost of discounts. The nineteenth is the high cost of allowances. The twentieth is the high cost of bad debts. The twenty-first is the high cost of bad investments. The twenty-second is the high cost of bad decisions. The twenty-third is the high cost of bad information. The twenty-fourth is the high cost of bad communication. The twenty-fifth is the high cost of bad relationships. The twenty-sixth is the high cost of bad luck. The twenty-seventh is the high cost of bad timing. The twenty-eighth is the high cost of bad luck. The twenty-ninth is the high cost of bad luck. The thirtieth is the high cost of bad luck.

Many disappeared

In the 18th and 19th centuries, the lover of cheese in England was hard of heart. He had dozens of varieties from which to choose, many of them were made in farmhouse and had cut a local sale.

Many of these local cheeses, however, had disappeared by the end of the 19th century. Others were hard hit by the world war, when labour became scarce.

In 1933 when the Milk Marketing Board was established and farmers were guaranteed prices for their milk, it became obvious that many farmhouse cheeses would disappear for good.

Process described

Since 1933, however, the cheese industry in England and Wales has undergone a vigorous revival and some regional types are again available.

Turned regularly

The cubes of curd, which have become matted together, have now to be cut up into blocks and turned every 24 minutes or so. This is a most important step, as it allows the curd to drain.

During this period the cheese is carefully turned at regular intervals to ensure even ripening.

Teatime titbit hints to help the hostess

By MARY BEARD

WHEN friends pop in for an hour they are happy to give a hostess with their cup of tea. However, they will be more content still—and your reputation as a hostess will rise—if you offer them a delicious little party.

The first of these titbits is that they are over both to make and to serve. The only trouble is that once they are made they are so easy to spoil to dampen quickly a reasonable severity.

OUTSTANDING WEEK OF BRITISH FILMS

THE excellent selection of pictures in Nairobi should please British filmgoers for there is a whole crop of them ranging from the Far East to a re-creation of the sinking of the Titanic, Australia, a wartime thriller and a return visit of the film version of Dickens' 'A Christmas Carol'.

A political-cum-adventure picture, The Treasure Royal, was adapted from James Ramsey Ullman's best seller. Magnificently photographed in colour, it centres on a doctor working in the Far East who becomes embroiled in chaotic adventures as a result of a political-cum-adventure. Leaders of a Government are depicted in a fantastical world, yet lives up to the highest traditions of his profession.

It would, however, be by viewing life in the southern part of the great viceroyalty of the British Empire, as depicted by Peter Finch's superb performance in Wentworth, which has been adapted from a novel by the same author and written in a style that makes the audience feel as if they were actually there.

Peter Finch admirably depicts a French administrator in a remote part of the Empire, who is shown in a way that is both sympathetic and realistic. He is shown in a way that is both sympathetic and realistic. He is shown in a way that is both sympathetic and realistic.

ALASTAIR SIM in the role of "Kerouac" stars in the outstanding picture, Drive-In, which has been adapted from a novel by the same author and written in a style that makes the audience feel as if they were actually there.

CHRISTMAS SPARKLE IN PARIS SHOP

By PEGGY MASSIN
PARIS can be described as a sparkling shop. It is a place of glitters and gauds, of gauds and glitters. The Parisian spirit is a spirit of sparkle. It is a spirit of sparkle that is not only in the things that are made in Paris, but in the things that are done in Paris. It is a spirit of sparkle that is not only in the things that are made in Paris, but in the things that are done in Paris.

Children's toys become more sophisticated and elaborate

Do most children get the toys they want—the toys their parents want them to have—for Christmas? In the past, I have seen and heard this woe on the lips of London's toy shops. It is the parents who win every time. "Fathers are particularly hard," one toyshop owner told me. "The manufacturers know that they are going to get their money back, and they will allow this to be made in another matter."

make it a very special cake this Christmas—make it with BLUE BAND

METHOD
Cream the Blue Band Margarine and sugar, add each egg separately and beat until the mixture is smooth. Beat in the sifted flour, fruit, chopped almonds, spice, vanilla and brandy. Mix well, then transfer to a tin lined with greaseproof paper and bake for 6 hours 20 minutes with oven-setting at Mark 1 (200°). The mix may be left in the tin overnight before baking. Brown paper set round the tin will help covered with aluminium paper about 1 inch thick. When the plate is set, cover the cake with Royal icing. Decorate after the icing has set.

THE STORY OF A VILLAGE SCHOOL

and another victory
in the fight against malaria

It seemed to be especially hot in the village school that morning, and the children especially sleepy and slow in their work. There were a lot of mosquitoes about, and one little boy's nose started to run. He was the first to be bitten, and he cried out. "You know,
the children in the village and the malaria.
Some days are here, some days are other. And it's got worse over the rains have started."

Heaps of the matter was wrong. For last year that same village school had fallen, bringing with them thousands of children. The school had been making a comeback all over the world.
They gave it to a young child in the village, and in the next two villages as well. It was a really big success. A few months ago, out of 27 children living in the village, nearly all were still making progress in his school. It seemed like a miracle!

TALENT SHOW LED TO RADIO SERIES

MAXINE DANIELS, a young radio and television personality, was the first to be featured in the "Monday Music" programme broadcast in the General Evening Service, which is the programme that she made the first broadcast in 1957.

Maxine Daniels was born in East London and after leaving school at the age of 14 tried her hand at all sorts of jobs (including working in a sausage factory, producing records, making and selling bouquets and finally working in a music factory in 1957).

During this somewhat restless time she entered a talent contest at a local cinema and won the first prize. This led to local engagements with bands and clubs. Early in 1957, Denny Sayle, the broadcast...
