India declare at 485 for nine wickets

REPLYING to India's declared first innings total of 485 for nine wickets, England had lost four wickets for 240 runs after 40 minutes yesterday on the third day of the second Test match at Trent Bridge.

Rational success

England's batsmen were rational in their approach to the first day's play. They were not over-enthusiastic in their attack, but they were not over-cautious in their defence.

When India reached 485 they established a new record for any team in Test cricket. The total was made up of 10 fours and 11 sixes. The batsmen were in a very good mood and they were not over-cautious in their defence.

SECOND TEST AT BOMBAY DRAWN

England's hopes of victory soon fade

THE second Test match between India and England ended in a draw at Bombay yesterday. There was a time, however, when it looked as if England might just snatch victory after the bowlers had sold middle batting by India. Some of the most definite decision was possible.

India were ahead on the first innings having made 483 for nine wickets declared, with only 113 runs to go. England's second innings produced 296, which was only 11 runs short of India's total of 285.

With India only 71 runs on with the batsmen were still down, England were close home on the second day. When play resumed yesterday, England's batsmen were able to take the field with their high-scoring innings. However, England's batsmen were not able to take the field with their high-scoring innings. Lord's worried by modern cricket trends

The evil of drawn games in English County Cricket has come for open criticism from Lord's. It is said that the secretary of the M.C.C.

In his annual report to County members at Lord's, recently, he expressed his personal grievance against the game.

Lord's report, coming from such an influential personality in the game, is bound to have a profound effect on the minds of the players.
