Oars of both Varsity boats interlock in course trial

CAMBRIDGE UNIVERSITY boat race crew rowed a full-course trial from Putney to Mortlake in 19 minutes, 20 seconds on Wednesday. This is the first full-course trial which either crew previously has rowed since the year's race, which takes place on Saturday, April 3.

While the time was not fast, it was probably quite satisfactory considering that it was the first full-course trial since the year's race, which takes place on Saturday, April 3.

Near catastrophe
The oars of the two crews became interlocked and Cambridge stopped rowing. They lost, perhaps, ten strokes during the incident.

DO have a biscuit, the modern housewife urges, but she is not as fastidious as she thinks. It is claimed that biscuits are treasured in the "Fire Book of Kings, Chapter XIV." The "Faber" with these ten leaves and cracked crumb, crumbly, crumbly, crumbly.

Home-made

TODAY the job of the housewife who makes her own biscuits is amazingly easy. Very little sugar is used in the measuring spoons and cups, fat, flour, sugar, and then begins the rolling of the dough. The use of proper butter, correct rolling, and the hurried dispatching is the secret.

And the appetizing smell of baking biscuits is the most pleasant of smells. It is called by "Doris" when the hot biscuit comes out of the oven. The smell is the most pleasant of smells. It is called by "Doris" when the hot biscuit comes out of the oven. The smell is the most pleasant of smells.

Manufactured

In the manufacturing plants, biscuits are made in continuous belts. The biscuits come out of the oven, and are packed into containers. The biscuits come out of the oven, and are packed into containers.

Beginning MARRIAGE SCHOOL

by BARBARA CARTLAND

ON your wedding day you are one of more than 1500 couples who are taking the most important step in their lives. That is the magical number of marriages every day in this country. Some are young; some are old; some are rich; some are poor. Some are taking the step in a quiet ceremony in a minister's office; others take it in an age-old religious ritual in a church; others, even, in a cathedral.

All have one thing in common: they are entering into a new life. It is a new life, it is a new life, it is a new life. It is a new life, it is a new life, it is a new life. It is a new life, it is a new life, it is a new life.

A gamble

For you who are taking the most important step in your personal life, there are many things to consider. You are taking a gamble. You are taking a gamble. You are taking a gamble. You are taking a gamble.

Modern marriage is a gamble. It is a gamble. It is a gamble. It is a gamble. It is a gamble. It is a gamble. It is a gamble. It is a gamble.

If you have not worked in the same office, if you have not been members of the same church, if you have not been members of the same church, if you have not been members of the same church.

Gratitude

Married marriage and the happy partner with gratitude. The happy partner with gratitude. The happy partner with gratitude. The happy partner with gratitude.

No wings

You can have no wings. You can have no wings. You can have no wings. You can have no wings. You can have no wings. You can have no wings.

DON'T PIN WINGS ON YOUR WIFE

extremely mixed. Destroy the idea that a woman is a creature of instinct and emotion. A woman, by contrast, is a creature of reason and logic. She is a creature of reason and logic. She is a creature of reason and logic.

Day by day

Wives - we begin very soon to think that their marriage was a new one only on the wedding day. Once couples who have chosen the secret of happiness know that it begins on their very day. It begins on their very day. It begins on their very day.

Moving Day In Africa

LET Macintosh Move "You." How well I remember the excitement of moving in the days when we moved from house to house. They arrived early in the morning and by evening efficient men in white aprons packed up everything - cutlery and books in neat cases.

The furniture covered or crated and tied with care was stowed out of the doors to be carried to the new house. The curious could only gape at the size and strength of the goods the measure of one's property.

THIS time was the same in the kitchen, cups of strong tea, but they did not waste much time on refreshment and one was moved from house to house in a matter of a few hours.

On arrival at the new house articles of furniture quickly found their way to their new homes. The rest of the furniture was packed up and carried to the new house.

At the top of a three-ton lorry stood a man in a white apron. He was the driver of the lorry. He was the driver of the lorry. He was the driver of the lorry.

When the moving day is over, the man in the white apron is the man in the white apron. The man in the white apron is the man in the white apron.

ORIGINAL IDEAS for the entertainment of guests are few and far between; the old arguments for and against cocktail parties, go on, and entertaining is rather apt to stick in the same old groove.

Out of that groove quite definitely was the retirement called arrangement of dining and dancing at the restaurant on a Sunday evening last. It was fairly well a successful touch, and it was after eleven o'clock when the majority guests, both European and Asian, made for home.

Resisting people at the door of the Gaiety Swimming Pool where Mr. H. Barker and K. A. Rashid, and Captain, seeing everybody in their state, was Mr. Abdul Ghafer Shah.

How Britain's Scientists Are Tackling some Problems Of The Future

BY LEONARD G. RULE

PROBLEMS of sound—and its identical twin vibration—have long interested the scientists of Britain's National Physical Laboratory from the aspects of the vibrations set up and sound can do to human beings.

Laboratories are set aside at Teddington, in the county of Middlesex, for studying such problems, involving the acoustic absorption properties of various materials, for example, and testing the scale of loudness which the ear can tolerate. But difficulties in determining the absorption of sound waves occurred at different places.

Australia's Great Barrier Reef

By PROFESSOR C M YONGE, F.R.S., Leader Great Barrier Reef Expedition, 1928-29

THE Royal tour of Australia would have been incomplete without a visit to the Great Barrier Reef, off the coast of Queensland, where the Queen and the Duke of Edinburgh were last weekend, for in the Great Barrier Australia has a unique possession.

The largest of all coral reefs, it fringes over six thousand miles, stretching for more than 1,000 miles from the Cape of Capricorn almost to the shores of New Guinea. Over a short visit is enough to give a general impression of its grandeur and some more intimate views of its beauties.

Misleading

THE name is misleading in its implication of a continuous rampart. The Barrier consists of a mass of reefs, raised to the surface by the growth of animals and plants composing them, and covering areas of 50 miles.

It is possible only in some places to walk on the reef. There is a man at the mast-head of the steamer, pointing the way along channels of blue water, which wind between green and yellow reefs, some of which are fringed as well as low-lying, and some of immense heights, but a breakerwater walling the coast of Queensland. Even on the calm day the outer barrier appears as an endless line of foam where there break into the immense rollers of an ocean from the straits to the shores of New Guinea. These rollers are the result of the waves of the sea, which are broken up by the barrier.

People like him do not base the price alone in mind, when buying a motor-cycle; they know that a cheap machine can be an expensive one in the long run.

Choosing a CZ or JAWA machine means choosing low petrol consumption, profitable day by day by its fuel economy, for years to come.

And that is not all. The famous stonning of JAWA and CZ machines means many years of reliability and minimum maintenance costs. This is why economy-minded motorists prefer CZ or JAWA motor-cycles.

Ferguson mouldboard ploughs

ask for a demonstration

The Ferguson Plough was the first implement designed to operate as an integral part of a tractor. This co-ordination of tractor and implement made possible for the first time the use of a lightweight tractor resulting in a truly amazing savings in fuel costs. It also presented a revolutionary way of saving time and labour and opened up a new field for the advancement of agriculture.

Basically the design remains as in the first Ferguson Plough, but over a period of years the development of Ferguson mouldboard ploughs has resulted in the finest possible basic tillage implements on the market. Attached in less than a minute with virtually no physical exertion. Ferguson Ploughs are capable of first-class work in the hands of young or old, weak or strong. Performance is proved by well over 100,000 Ferguson ploughs in every corner of the Globe.

A Study In World Religions

CHRISTIANITY

This is the second article in which writers examine five world religions and consider how they relate to life. Here the Rev. NORMAN GOODALL, London Secretary of the International Missionary Council, discusses Christianity as a faith now confessed throughout the world by a greater number of races and by more diversified peoples than ever before.

A children's party is such fun,

OVALTINE

There's no other so popular way of supplementing your children's diet as with Ovaltine food essence, than by giving them something Ovaltine regularly. Children are so curious and full of life that they will be glad to take Ovaltine with their meals. Start today! The reason for this is that the people I have been living amongst, whatever their language, colour, political situation, or cultural inheritance, have acknowledged the common spiritual loyalty.

There have not been many years during the past 20 in which I have spent 12 months at home. "Home" means my native country.

My work has been set in various parts of the five continents. I have taken a long time to travel, but in all this wandering I have been spiritually at home. The reason for this is that the people I have been living amongst, whatever their language, colour, political situation, or cultural inheritance, have acknowledged the common spiritual loyalty.

World-wide

AGAIN and again, surrounded by strange faces and amidst unfamiliar tongues and customs, I have been able to say: Now therefore we have no more strangers and foreigners, but fellow-citizens with the saints and of the household of God, being built upon the foundation of the apostles and prophets, Jesus Christ Himself being the chief cornerstone.

By "expansion" I assume we mean much advent to the world, and will well bring things to a new dimension, events. On the face of it, it would seem that the world is a characteristic of this world, but it is not. It is not a world of things and people in themselves, but a world of things and people in relation to God. It is not a world of things and people in themselves, but a world of things and people in relation to God.

Idoltry

EVEN when we speak of our "idoltry", we mean our "idoltry". It is not a world of things and people in themselves, but a world of things and people in relation to God. It is not a world of things and people in themselves, but a world of things and people in relation to God.

It is another characteristic of this world that it is not a world of things and people in themselves, but a world of things and people in relation to God. It is not a world of things and people in themselves, but a world of things and people in relation to God.

All-embracing

CHRISTIANITY, as believers in it see it, is a world of things and people in relation to God. It is not a world of things and people in themselves, but a world of things and people in relation to God.

Australia's Great Barrier Reef

It is not only the beauty of the reef, but the fact that it is a natural wonder of the world. The reef is a natural wonder of the world, and it is a natural wonder of the world.

SIX NAMES which link S.M.J. to the new Parliament Buildings

WE ARE INDEED PROUD that the products of six of our principals have the confidence of the architects of this inspiring and important project, the new home of Kenya's Legislative Council. Already familiar to many readers will be the chimies of the clock, which, with the clock itself and the tower mechanism, were supplied by Gents' of Leicester who are also responsible for the clock system in the Mother of Parliaments. SPEC, Silexine's Plastic Emulsion Paint is widely and effectively used; Formica, the tough laminated plastic board, and tiles by Carters of Poole both play their part as do the ventilating grills constructed by G. A. Harvey & Co. (London) Ltd; and No-sag furniture springs provide comfortable ease for the Members of the Front Benches. All products we handle in these territories we believe to be the best of their kind and our belief has been amply confirmed in Parliament Buildings.

The selection of the best for the best

Aston shows masons hurrying their steel tasks on the new buildings under the SPEC-splashed Royal Coat of Arms.

Not without good reason was Silexine Plastic Emulsion Coating used for the decoration of the walls and ceilings throughout Kenya's new Parliament Buildings.

In addition to the usual offices, Committee rooms, robing rooms and passages, SPEC was used on the special features such as the Council Chamber ceiling. Finished in blue, pale primrose, dull red and gold to specially mixed shades.

The Royal Coat of Arms is also complete in SPEC to the Royal colours while the large Lily Pool is finished in a special blue shade of SPEC to the choice of the Architects.

Kenya has reason to be proud of this fine representative Government Building and we feel justified in being proud of the fact that SPEC was chosen for all decorative purposes, for both the building and the materials used on it are expected to give lasting satisfaction for many years to come.

German-occupied French territory. It was not possible, of course, to check back further on M15 but he had found some of the names of the men who had been in contact with the spy who had been captured. He had also found out that his story was a true one.

Simple idea

So when Oswald for Oswald's job was whisked from London where he had been working for the occupation of Paris three years ago, he was not surprised to find that he had been in contact with the man who had been in contact with the spy who had been captured. He had also found out that his story was a true one.

No mercy

He could find none, but he was not surprised to find that he had been in contact with the man who had been in contact with the spy who had been captured. He had also found out that his story was a true one.

Sceptical

Yet the questioning M15 agents were sceptical. Job was SE and neither the type of man likely to take the chance of such a job as he had described. It was clear that he had been in contact with the man who had been in contact with the spy who had been captured. He had also found out that his story was a true one.

Black came the reply that it was unquestionably the job himself who had bought the air tickets for Britain after explaining to officials there that he had been in contact with the man who had been in contact with the spy who had been captured. He had also found out that his story was a true one.

After three years at the camp, he had been in contact with the man who had been in contact with the spy who had been captured. He had also found out that his story was a true one.

He was represented by counsel but he was not in a position to be questioned and on March 19, 1964, he was hanged at Boreas Prison.

Hanged

On January 24, 1964, Job hanged before a judge and jury at the Old Bailey on January 24, 1964. He was hanged under the Treachery Act, 1940, and sentenced to death.

THE THINGS THEY SAY...

... bring quotations from B.B.C. talks

"THEY asked for opinions on an citizenship, I said 'Don't build walls between your neighbours, plant flowers instead.'"

"Miss America of 1964, talking about the possibility of a new world order, said: 'The last part of the contest for the title...'"

"Noting replaces a pre-ordained course as in a death-bed confession of treason, and inevitably the progress of the sign of the sun will be the introduction of a new style of building in the world. Whether they are for the sun or for the moon it makes no difference. The sun will be the sign of the sun and the moon will be the sign of the moon. It is used as our parks is sure to be."

DISC PLOUGHS COCKSHUTT

Perfect following of discs can be maintained by screw adjustment on front furrow cast and threaded connection between the rear wheel and land cast. For working soft furrow wheel cast and land wheel is adjustable by raising the front wheel.

The cast-steel hitch has a wide range of adjustment both horizontally and vertically so that the correct line of draft can be maintained with any tractor.

LIGHT DRAFT—Discs run on tapered roller bearings of the highest quality set in heavy castings. These bearings are carefully sealed against the passage of dirt and oil and are kept constantly lubricated. They rotate smoothly, easy pressure being required for disc flexibility, better turning discs, less wear on both plough and tractor.

SATURDAY, MARCH 13, 1954

The latest census of the population of Kenya has been made available to the public. It shows that the population of Kenya is now 2,000,000. This is a significant increase from the 1,500,000 recorded in 1946. The increase is due to a combination of factors, including a high birth rate and a decrease in the death rate. The population is now distributed as follows: 1,200,000 in the white Highlands, 800,000 in the black Lowlands, and 100,000 in the Indian Ocean islands. The Government is now faced with the problem of providing adequate services for this growing population. This includes the need for more schools, hospitals, and housing. The Government is also concerned about the distribution of the population, particularly in the white Highlands, where the population is becoming increasingly concentrated. The Government is now studying the problem and is expected to announce a plan of action in the near future.

ARCHITECTS HELP TO DEVELOP THE COMMONWEALTH

By ERIC L. BIRD, Editor of the Journal of the Royal Institute of British Architects.

ALTHOUGH the British Commonwealth is a community of free nations and territories separated all over the world, it possesses a single architectural society—the Royal Institute of British Architects. The hallmark of the qualified architect throughout the Commonwealth is the Association of the R.I.B.A., obtained by passing the final examination and by subscribing to a code of professional conduct.

From this has resulted a far-reaching network of architects everywhere in the Commonwealth. One of London's leading architects, who is an Associate of the Royal Academy of Arts and the designer of a projected national theatre, is a member of the Institute of Architects at Cape Town. University courses from England as well as colleagues at Sydney University, the President of Architecture at the New South Wales University was trained and taught architecture in London and Scotland; the chief architect of the British Building Research Station is a town-planning officer in Canada; a Londoner. And there are many others like these.

No restrictions

AN architect who has passed his final examination anywhere in the Commonwealth can practice anywhere else in the Commonwealth. The Commonwealth building law and professional procedure will be done that he is not deluged from working as an architect. The membership of the R.I.B.A. has no restrictions of race, religion, colour or sex. The work of architects in the other Members of the Commonwealth differs hardly at all from that in Britain. One of the reasons for this is that Canada, South Africa, Australia and South Africa are all large countries with large populations are largely of European origin. All the customs and general degrees of living are much the same. Local differences are trivial. In India, Pakistan and Ceylon and in the non-European territories in Africa and the West Indies, a kind of architecture that is radically different from what we want of a better form, may be called "European" is demanded by the climate, the nature of races and the variety of creeds.

In the tropics

IN recent years architects have largely ceased to study styles and are concentrating instead on the function of buildings, with the hope that styles will national influences of the last century, and the dissemination of a great volume of technical information on designing for the tropics. Examples of the kinds of study being made in the design of buildings specially for the tropics are the excluding of glare and sunlight while admitting abundant light, planning to allow through currents of cooling air to circulate, excluding the sun, designing tropical courtyards, designing the structure to withstand vibrations of earthquake, and protecting buildings against the destructive termites and other pests. The information, together with the free movement of architects, has a special value in the programme of development which Britain has undertaken since the war. In the tropical or sub-tropical areas—this is the first in the list of these territories and to bring to them the benefits of education; the second is to develop the resources of these countries so as to create real wealth in them. The two aims are closely interlocked.

Primary needs

IT is not easy to generalize on the ways by which these cities and towns in one or two territories are alike. They differ in mineral and agricultural resources, in being islands or parts of a continent, their geographical situation and the most pronounced differences are to be found.

A first demand in those countries which are still in an early stage of development is basic requirements: provision for sufficient housing, provision for the inhabitants to meet their own basic needs—education, health, recreation, police officers and all the other technical services needed to run communities. Then there follow such matters as cattle-breeding and forestry stations, schools, where industrial light is being exploited, technical education.

Housing is a little farther ahead, the primary need in tropical and sub-tropical climates.

Above, the architect plans for Chandigarh, new capital city of Punjab, India. On the north side of the base of the mountains, will rise the Caspian group of buildings, with a broad strip of parkland, following a small river, leading up to it through the white walls of the city.

FOR the provision of buildings in all these countries have one institution in common—a Public Works Department. This is staffed by architects and engineers whose primary task is to design, get built and maintain the Public Works Department, as well as roads, bridges and water supply systems. This department often undertakes the design and construction of public buildings, especially of countries which have a highly organized building industry at their command. Not infrequently it has to work with inexperienced local contractors; skilled craftsmen are scarce; many materials and items of equipment have to be imported.

The larger development projects now being undertaken are mostly outside the scope of the Public Works Department. For these architects are employed by the administration where the project is a public one—for example, the building of the University of the West Indies, the new government quarters where the public development programme is being undertaken, the provision of health centres and housing. Among the most new housing together with the provision through a universal health service, as well as the European is still some work in excess of the more highly developed territories.

Training

MANY of the larger and countries in public provision of housing, and working in Rhodesia, and Malaya, and other territories, which are federated with the R.I.B.A. Some territories have only a few private archiitects, with no established local society. These various architectural programs not only provide buildings, but they help to train local architects. Usually the promising youngster starts as a junior in one of the other architectural staffs. If he has a good program he gets a grant to go to the school of architecture in Britain or one of the other Commonwealth countries, where he completes his training and qualifies. After qualifying he may remain in Britain or go to another territory to gain experience in the "boom" of assistance, but nearly always he returns eventually to his birthland.

Widely spread

THE activities of the Commonwealth are expanding their activities into remote corners of the globe. The R.I.B.A. list shows the general distribution of its members across the world—Australia, New Zealand, India and Pakistan have national societies of architects to provide adequate technical services. For the last 25 years the Commonwealth has been an active allied society of the R.I.B.A. The field for building in the Commonwealth is an immense. Education and the steady development of natural resources by training standards of life and creating wealth will in time open it, but that time is not far measurable.

Baganda reject reform offer

LUKIKO AWAITS VISIT BY COLONIAL EXPERT

The most serious of the many... to implement the Baganda reforms, which were approved just more than a year ago, providing additional responsibility for health, agriculture and education for the Baganda Government, has been turned down by the Baganda Lukiko.

In his speech to the Lukiko early this month the Governor said he would like to see the reforms put into operation and asked the Lukiko to consider appointing the three additional Ministers who would be responsible for these services.

In a last and somewhat stern statement the Lukiko declined to appoint the Ministers and said that the Lukiko members considered all they could do was to wait for Professor Hudson to make his visit to Luganda.

Junior tennis standard shows great improvement

Records go easily for these two

It is refreshing in this land of comfortable motor cars to meet a batch of people—young, of course—who prefer to get their B with the maximum amount of physical exertion. They are the members of the Nairobi European Cycling Club and a group of sporting cyclists in general who are usually on the road each Sunday morning on some stretch of road in the vicinity of their station on the outskirts of Nairobi. They are striving to break new records.

These days might have made it impossible for them to have done so. The records of the club are now held by a group of young men who are now in their late teens and early twenties. FINAL OF MIXED DOUBLES WAS UP-TO SENIOR LEVEL

THE 1954 Kenya Junior Lawn Tennis Championships, completed at the weekend on the Nairobi Club courts, displayed a greatly improved standard on last year's championships. Not many people chose to see the final, a pity, for it was one of the most part, entertaining and exciting. One of the mixed doubles, was of a very high order, and spectators thought they had seldom seen better mixed doubles, even

Six of these fine locomotives are already in service and 29 more are on order, together with 34 of the new and even more powerful '59' Class now being developed...

Today, despite difficulties and uncertainties, the Railways and Harbours are undertaking many new and important projects. They are building for the future because they are confident that progress and prosperity lie ahead for East Africa.

S. AFRICA CUTS TAXES BY £22,000,000 A 'budget of optimism'

Chinese snub India in border talks

THE Indian Ambassador to Peking was snubbed by the Chinese when he talks on Tibet being held in Peking. It has been authoritatively reported in New Delhi.

In an exchange for a promise to refrain from agitation in India's frontier states, and to drop their demands for a frontier revision, the Chinese are asking that India should allow them to establish posts and build roads in the very frontier areas which the Government of Madras, Mysore, and the States of Kerala, is anxious to protect against Communist infiltration.

First negotiations This is a crisis in Indo-Chinese relations, and it is reported to be causing much anxiety in Delhi. Although the Peking talks deal only with secondary matters, they are the first official negotiations held between the two countries since 1947.

Well received He stated that the total estimated revenue for 1956-57 is £22,000,000, and expenditure for the same period is £1,000,000, leaving a surplus of £21,000,000. Mr. Havenga said: "There can be no doubt that the budget has been received with approval."

BRITAIN PROUD OF AID TO POOR COUNTRIES 'No shame,' Minister tells Socialists

MR. Selwyn Lloyd, Minister of State for Foreign Affairs, said in the House of Commons today that the aid given to poor countries in the amount of aid was not giving rise to any controversy. He stated, however, that the aid was not given to the countries of the Commonwealth, and that it should be an additional cause of pride.

Accreditation: MR. GEORGE BATEMAN

ONCE again East Africa has suffered a grievous loss in the passing of one of its earlier pioneers—Mr. George Bateman, who was the first "pioneer" adviser to the Government in East Africa.

George Bateman had a remarkable career. Born in 1850, he studied to become a District Surgeon at Christ Church Hospital where he was for a time Lecturer in Anatomy. He conducted his own private practice in London, and was a member of the Royal Society.

He then left for a short time to work in the East African Protectorate. He was in the East African Protectorate for a short time, and then returned to London.

DE WITT'S PILLS

SOUTH AFRICAN Finance Minister, Mr. Nicolas Havenga, has announced a "budget of optimism" with concessions totalling £22,000,000. The usually cautious Mr. Havenga told the Cape Town Parliament that the current financial year would prove the turning point in the country's economy.

He is now speaking in the seat of State education at the opening of the session. The budget should be met by the South African Government.

The Budget had a really excellent reception on the financial side. It was well received by the public and the press.

Good cheer One market expert described the budget as "the best since 1947". He said that the budget was a "budget of optimism" and that it was well received by the public and the press.

RHODESIAN COPPER BELT FACES LABOUR CRISIS

Rift in African union

A CRISIS which is developing within the North Rhodesian African Mineworkers' Union may seriously affect the output of the copper mines on which the whole expanding economy of Central Africa depends. The union, with 20,000 paid-up members, is the most powerful African trade union organisation in the region.

General secretary for many years, Mr. Matthew Nkhosha, who is now reported to have left Rhodesia, on a visit to British Columbia, is being criticised by other members of the union's executive committee.

This criticism is bringing to a head a long-standing dispute over the position of the Union's general secretary, Mr. Lawrence Katshungu. Mr. Katshungu himself, a middle-aged man of glib oratorical powers and bearing, is one of the most respected Africans in Rhodesia. He has been accused of delicate balance, but is known to have been a member of the Union's executive committee since its formation in 1948.

Paid the price
A year ago, he refused to call his name out on the preliminary list of nominees for the Central African Federation, which was to be formed by the Rhodesian African Union and the African Union of Southern Rhodesia. He had been elected to the position in the North Rhodesian African Mineworkers' Union, but was not elected to the Central African Federation. The extremists, headed by the late Mr. Nkhosha, were of the opinion that Mr. Katshungu was one of his few remaining supporters. The extremists, headed by the late Mr. Nkhosha, were of the opinion that Mr. Katshungu was one of his few remaining supporters.

Likely to suffer
Mr. Pats and his friends are active, that is, they are willing to call a strike at any moment. It is likely that Mr. Katshungu will be elected to the position of general secretary of the union.

Farmers protest at cut in subsidy

THINKING ahead was always hard for farmers in industrialized Britain. In wartime, when German submarines torpedoed incoming food ships, the nation clamoured for food at any price.

Farmers, like millions who became a privileged economic society, inevitably, they assumed that food would be abundant. But they were wrong. Just as at handover, efficiency sometimes dropped on the farm. Between the war and after the second World War, the United States, Canada and other grain-producing countries got into their stride again to produce bumper crops. Prices fell on world markets as storehouses bulged with the food which many nations could not buy because of currency and trading difficulties.

HYDROGEN BOMB EXPLOSION WAS 'OUT OF CONTROL'

THE United States hydrogen bomb explosion in the Pacific "was so far beyond what was predicted that it was out of control, an observer commented in Washington. The blast sent a shower of nuclear ashes 75 miles and 23 Japanese fishermen were severely burned.

The explosion, which took place on the Pacific island of Bikini, was the first of its kind and was the most powerful ever. It was the result of a test of the hydrogen bomb, which is a more powerful weapon than the atomic bomb.

The test was conducted by the United States Government and was the result of a long and costly research program. The test was a success and it showed that the hydrogen bomb is a powerful and practical weapon.

The test was a major step in the development of the hydrogen bomb. It showed that the hydrogen bomb is a more powerful weapon than the atomic bomb and it is a more practical weapon.

HOPE FOR EASTER MEETING

THE possibility of establishing a closed-circuit motor racing track at Mitchell Park Show Ground and of organising a race meeting there during Easter week-end was discussed at the annual meeting of the Royal East African Automobile Association in Nairobi Town Hall.

The report of the acting general secretary, Mr. C. P. Fitzgerald, mentioned that all the preliminary work of organising the track had been undertaken for last year only to find that both had to be cancelled for security reasons.

Due to these setbacks, it had been decided to write off part of the money invested in the track. However, it was decided to write off part of the money invested in the track.

HIGH PRAISE FOR MERU COFFEE GROWERS

By Charles Hayes

ON their recent tour of the African coffee-growing areas of Central Province, European members of the Coffee Board of Kenya found in Meru district a thriving industry which this season will add £140,000 to the income of the district.

All one of the factories owned by the Meru African Coffee Co-operative Union, Mr. Graham Bell, Vice-President of the Coffee Board, told members of the Meru Primary Society that African growers could count on Meru-grown coffee as being the standard of coffee as high as that of the last two seasons. The society had two first awards, three second and one third.

The vice Meru primary society, which was formed in 1947, and is headed by Mr. Jack Benson, an Agricultural Department officer who has spent 12 years in the District. "The secret of the success of the industry in Meru," he says, "has been the slow building up of the Meru primary society, which has been able to acquire a little more than 2,000 acres owned by 7,772 growers. In four years' time, we shall have 10,000 acres and the total coffee grown in Kenya and all prices will be high."

From the first planting of Meru coffee in 1934, the highest average has grown in Kenya and all prices will be high. The Meru co-operative societies, and notably those who are growing the best coffee grown in Kenya and all prices will be high. The Meru co-operative societies, and notably those who are growing the best coffee grown in Kenya and all prices will be high.

Quality training officials insist that the red coffee cherries brought to the factories are of high grade, for the district's good name in the industry is so important to Meru as it is to Kenya. In the field highly experienced Agricultural officers supervise the efforts of the growers to increase production and income. This total one of the 100 members of the Meru co-operative societies, and notably those who are growing the best coffee grown in Kenya and all prices will be high.

The high seasonal standards have allowed yields on some of the best plantations of up to one ton per acre averaged over the past five years. Meru, with its excellent rainfall of 70 inches per year and wonderful soil, shows the greatest promise for the future.

Mr. G. E. Macken, Executive Officer of the Coffee Board, explained during the experts' tour that in quality and yield, African-grown coffee in Kenya is already ahead of that in Malaya.

But the fact that African coffee-growers might tend to neglect their soil is being remedied. The reverse is the case, and Mr. Benson says that the return from the small acreage of coffee trees often provided the farmer with the means to develop the remainder of his smallholding in a way which might not otherwise have been possible. "Nevertheless," Mr. Benson points out, "coffee growing requires the greatest possible care and devotion and invariably the grower with a small number of trees produces the highest yield per acre."

Statistics circulated in Britain by some marketing offices of Kenya have indicated that African coffee-growers receive lower prices for their products than do their European counterparts. A visit to Meru would shatter such false allegations for the success of the Co-operative Union shows that their coffee is as good as that of the European growers.

At a glance the same rates as all other Kenya coffee growers, in its grade and quality, in fact the Meru growers of the district is extremely high. They are the first to achieve the highest quality of coffee from the European-grown coffee trees from the European Coffee Board of Kenya in marketing their produce to the world.

As long as they continue to do as they are doing now, the growers are of great value to Kenya and the coffee industry, said Mr. C. C. Ellis, a Kiambu grower and another "father" from the Coffee Board. "Kenya coffee is wanted in increasing quantities in the world today and the tremendous amount of work and enthusiasm provided here by the Agricultural Department is showing dividends."

The Stranger You Marry

HAVE you chosen the ideal partner? No third party is in a position to answer this. All the advice in the world will never detract from men and women in love from their resolution to marry.

The most deeply-in-love couples are invariably amazed and disquietened by the almost unknown person each discovers on the honeymoon.

THE MARRIAGE SCHOOL—2

By BARBARA CARTLAND

Author of 28 Years, My Marriage, My Marriage, My Marriage, and My Marriage.

The in-laws

Outside interference is a real danger in marriage. The in-laws are often the cause of serious trouble. They are based on the fact that when a man and woman get married, they are not only joining their lives but also their families.

Frankness

Marriage is not a simple affair. It requires a certain amount of frankness and honesty. If a man and woman do not talk to each other, they will not understand each other.

Fate

Many people believe in fate. They think that their lives are predetermined. However, many people who believe in fate find themselves in situations that they could not have predicted.

Advice

To a husband I would say: respect your wife's feelings. To a wife I would say: understand your husband's needs. Marriage is a partnership, and both partners should contribute to its success.

The honeymoon

The honeymoon is a special time. It is a time when a man and woman are alone together. It is a time when they can get to know each other better.

In the past

Trains, offices, dance halls, and social clubs have all changed. In the past, people had different ways of meeting and interacting with each other.

A mystery

The basis of marital love is a mutual respect and understanding. It is a mystery how two people can come together and form a lasting bond.

The pattern

It is a pattern of life that a man and woman create together. It is a pattern that is unique to each couple.

By arrangement

On the whole, statistics suggest that arranged marriages are more successful than love marriages. This is because the partners have had time to know each other before they marry.

NEXT WEEK: Be Yourself, Mrs. Smith!

(By arrangement with Associated Newspapers Ltd.)

NOTHING TO BOAST ABOUT!

By Robina Wright

YOU may think yourself the most modest soul under the sun—but there is sure to be something you take a pride in. And all too often, these things we like to boast about are not quite so excellent as they seem at first sight.

"I never stop" is a favourite one with married women and with mothers in particular. It is never so true as it seems. A husband's pride in his wife's housework is a good thing, but it is not so true as it seems. A wife's pride in her husband's work is a good thing, but it is not so true as it seems.

which lead into the all white living-room. The charm of the garden has entered this room, too for the floral arrangements, the handi- work of Lady Markham, are exquisite.

On the day I visited her, she had arranged bowls of glowing flowers round the room. The light, patterned rug, supported by white posts, and showing the strong inter-twining of the tangled ropes, gives an airy lightness to the room. I ad- mired two household treasures, an old German secret box bearing a lover's inscription, and an ivory net and vase from China, part of a valuable collection which was exhibited some years ago.

Filled with Lady Mark- ham as the rose garden at the end of the long grass walk on a seat shaded by a fig tree which was planted on V.E. Day. I admired the understated blue, cream and yellow garden, inter- twined with a white and yellow garden. The white garden is inter- twined with a white and yellow garden. delphinium garden on the other. But best of all per- haps was the vast-spread- ing herb garden with basil, chervil, nasturtium, sweet basil, tarragon, dill, and rosemary, surrounded and protected by a glory of cool, fashionable English senti- mentality.

Hidden behind the hedge- striding a flower-bed, were any vegetable plots, one of an experimental bed of the British Country, a new invention by Lady Mark- ham to Kenya, intended for white food. On each plot grows a white Bushman tree in full flower, providing shade over the vegetable plot.

Repeating the main path are long beds of white, grey and green flowers, making an effective colour scheme. Chrysanthemums, marigolds, and aster-like plants are here too.

But further on the picture changes to one of terraces, lawns and paths, from to glory of red and white, tall grasses, nasturtium and nasturtium. A large foliage of pale grey lace makes the eye. The arrangement is a beautiful arrangement by Lady Markham.

Almost my favourite in the whole of that lovely garden were the American double potatoes which Lady Markham brought from America four years ago and which are a prized posses- sion. I thought these and others the highest but further and more mature. Another delight was the small yellow flowers of the English butter- cup and which Lady Mark- ham told me was platy- stemon-chloranthus.

SECURITY FORCES NOW ON OFFENSIVE

Mr. Lyttelton's Kenya review

MR. OLIVER LYTTELTON, the Colonial Secretary, in a statement on his visit to Kenya, told the House of Commons that the security forces in the Eastern part of the territory have turned into the reserves and that some three in hundreds are now started by the Government. He stated that the general feeling of the militant Kenya army is that they have been pushed into the reserves and that nothing is to be gained by continuing to fight.

There had been no military operations since the beginning of the year. It would be a long time, the Colonial Secretary said, before the security forces could be reduced to return to normal. The Government would have to wait some months before the situation would be better. The British Government would have to wait some months before the situation would be better.

Surplus in Uganda cut by fall in cotton price

UGANDA'S EXPORTS LAST YEAR WERE 214,000 TONS

The surplus in Uganda's exports last year was cut by a fall in the price of cotton. The surplus was 214,000 tons last year, but it is expected to be lower this year.

The fall in the price of cotton is due to a number of factors, including a decline in demand and an increase in supply. This has led to a fall in the price of cotton, which has in turn led to a fall in Uganda's exports.

The fall in the price of cotton is expected to continue for some time, which means that Uganda's exports will remain low for some time. This is a serious problem for Uganda, as it is a major export country.

The Government is taking steps to deal with the problem, including increasing the production of other exports. This is a long-term solution, but it will help to reduce the impact of the fall in the price of cotton.

The Government is also taking steps to increase the production of other exports, which will help to reduce the impact of the fall in the price of cotton. This is a long-term solution, but it will help to reduce the impact of the fall in the price of cotton.
