THERE MAY BE SHOCKS IN WORLD CUP

Champs now clear-cut favourite

CHAMPIONS of the 1954 World Cup are now clear-cut favourites for the 1958 tournament. The Swiss side, coached by Helmut Genz, are the only team to have won the World Cup since its inception in 1930.

WORLD CUP

When Scots meet fiery Irish

At 10.15 this afternoon, writes Dennis Hart, there is a strong likelihood that the 1958 World Cup will be the best of many shocks in the World Cup tournament. They are Danny Blanchflower, Jim McCallin and Willie Galt. McCallin's back-kick has been the key to Scotland's success and each of these players is a potential shocker.

This "hot-blooded" may play the Scotland forward line out of its balance. The Irish will play out of their balance, too, if they are able to get the ball into the hands of their attacking players. The Irish will play out of their balance, too, if they are able to get the ball into the hands of their attacking players.

A rapid flourish

GREATER KNOWLEDGE OF WILD ANIMALS NEEDED

An unbiased and expert opinion of the present state of knowledge of wild animals in East Africa—held in a recent symposium—was contained in an 86-page report prepared by Dr. E. B. Worthington, the Director of the Scientific Council for East Africa South of the Sahara. The report, which is the first of a series of reports on the subject, is available to all interested parties on application to the Director of the department concerned. The value of the information is high, and the report is a valuable guide to the study of wild animals in East Africa. It is a must for all those who are interested in the study of wild animals in East Africa. It is a must for all those who are interested in the study of wild animals in East Africa. It is a must for all those who are interested in the study of wild animals in East Africa.

Look of finance

The first step in any project is to look at the finances. In the case of the East African project, this means looking at the income and expenditure. The income is derived from the sale of the product, and the expenditure is the cost of the raw materials and the labour. The profit is the difference between the income and the expenditure. It is important to have a clear picture of the finances from the start, so that any problems can be dealt with as they arise.

Pays dividends

There is little doubt that the East African project will pay dividends. The income is high, and the expenditure is low. The profit is therefore high, and this means that the project will be able to pay dividends to the shareholders. This is a very important factor in the success of any project, as it provides an incentive for the investors to put their money into the project.

Curialment of plans

The curialment of plans is a very important part of any project. It involves the drawing up of a detailed plan of the project, and the approval of this plan by the relevant authorities. This is a time-consuming process, but it is essential for the success of the project. It ensures that all the necessary steps are taken, and that the project is carried out in a systematic and efficient manner.

The Kikuyu have been sentenced to hard labour in Nyeri. This is a result of their involvement in the Mau Mau rebellion. Phosferine strengthens the nerves and improves both appetite and digestion. It is therefore, invaluable for cases of Nervousness, Weakness, Lassitude, Loss of Appetite, Indigestion and Sleeplessness (See advertisement page 150 of the Government of All Times).

PHOSFERINE The Greatest of All Tonics

Where we lead—prosperity follows

The history of East Africa begins with the building of the railways. Where the line cleared the way, prosperity followed. Today the Railways and Harbours are playing their part in one of the most dramatic economic expansions in Commonwealth history, and undertaking massive and important developments.

Driving a path through thick bush is one of the tasks now being tackled by the Railways in Western Uganda. Here a new 210-mile line is being laid through difficult country from Kampala to Kasoro in the foothills of the Ruwenzori Mountains.

The building of this new extension involves enormous feats of engineering, for in the path of the line lie wide swamps, many miles of thick bush and scrub, and the steep escarpment down to Lake George. All materials for bridges and culverts, as well as for the line itself, have only one means of transport: along the length of line already laid.

When completed, the extension will serve the Karamoja copper mines and open up many thousands of square miles of rich agricultural lands.

If you've tall, dark and handsome, the dramatic lover-comer-true for countless devoted fans, who would you react to labels like "Glamour Boy" and "That Great Big Hank of Man" or simply, "The Irresistible Hank"?

You would take it with a bang and unhesitatingly give a man a Victor Mature. For you would be equipped with a sense of humor, not only about yourself, but about the industry and its fantastic publicity machinery.

It's one of Victor Mature's favorite remarks that he can laugh about himself and those who publicize him. Victor says: "I'm a comedian and a comedian's job is to make people laugh."

Back to Hollywood In December of 1946 he returned to Hollywood as Clark Gable's wife. Mature's public life is a constant state of being in the limelight.

WHERE THE DEAD LIE

By Patrick O'Dohovan

These are the graves of those who died in Korea, when it was first opened to occupation by the allied powers. The hills and valleys of the peninsula are a grim reminder of the struggle that was fought there. A number of the graves are in the District of Pusan, the Bay District, where it is believed that the majority of the war-time victims were buried. The graves are scattered all over the peninsula, but the most numerous are in the Pusan area.

PRISONER-OF-WAR AND GUARD SEVEN YEARS AGO ARE NOW ALLIES

YES, it is to Keays that British Army Sergeant George A. Stephen is pointing on the map at the North Atlantic Treaty Organization's Southern Europe headquarters in Hague. Less than seven years ago, his captor in the factory, Italian Army Major Eugenio Cimino, was his prisoner-of-war in a camp in Korea. And now the guards at that camp was Sergeant Stephen. Today they work side by side as NATO allies.

Major Cimino, a native of Bologna, had been serving as Africa six years when he was captured by the British in Ethiopia in 1941. He was sent to a prison camp in Korea, where Stephen was assigned later as a guard.

Vivid memories

UNTIL 1946 both passed their time in opposing sides of the camp's barbed wire fence. Their memories of those years are still vivid. Sceptically Cimino's first memory is the number 3248. In his day, it was so permanently engraved on his mind that when he returned to Italy he details the number unnecessarily to call his mother.

"I still do they remember of each other," Stephen was always playing football, recalls the major, a veteran of 27 years of service. "In fact, he was playing the last time I saw him before his release." Stephen, who came from Perthshire, Scotland, remembers Cimino only as one of the army faces behind the barbed wire. "There were too many to remember Major Cimino in particular," he explains. "Yes, they met on the same boat, but recently they had their seven year gap. Now they met on the same boat, but recently they had their seven year gap. Now they met on the same boat, but recently they had their seven year gap."

Promoted to major

CIMINO was Stephen's immediate superior in the communications section where the great work was as a clerk. He was promoted on his promotion to major because his old job could not be filled by a captain.

FROM HERE... AND THERE

DOCK CRIMES among the heavy cranes over the ship's side of the boomers were placed. Ceylon's 60,000-ton multi-purpose tugboat had arrived from the United States.

A few hours later they were turned over to the Navy. Nobody is to blame here, says the manufacturer. The Government sent two ships to the port for the tugboat's use, but it will be up to the Government to see that the tugboat is used properly.

THE HAGUE

Mr. Andrew Carnegie's multi-million dollar being placed in the city of Cambridge to give the French Government some free advice. The French and the British are having set these outposts in the Hague (July 20) in the Hague Convention for the Peace Conference. Professor Wick was appointed to be the British representative. It is the intention of the French Government to give the British representative the right to be in the Hague Convention. THE FAITHFUL HEART

PLATOUHOU
ONE of M.C.M.'s major Technicolor productions, "The Faithful Heart" is based on the novel by Margaret Lavinia and written by the life and love of the girl who was the inspiration of the play. The story is a romantic and a heart-breaking one. It tells of the life of a girl who is loved by two men, one of whom is a rich man and the other a poor man. The girl is torn between the two men and eventually chooses the poor man. The play is a beautiful and moving one, and is sure to be a great success on the screen.
