Biafra's leader Chukwu Odumegwu Ojukwu has left his country on an unknown mission, according to unconfirmed reports reaching diplomatic circles in Lagos.

It was speculated that he was either returning to set up a Government in exile or to meet with African or European leaders for further negotiations for the Biafran State.

Last lap for Safari victors

Even though the rich excitement of the East African Safari was over hundreds of spectators thronged Nairobi's City Hall area yesterday to watch the Mayor of Nairobi, Councillors, present the prizes.

LOWER RIGHT: Peter Halls and John Grant lift their weighty cup on high for all to see.

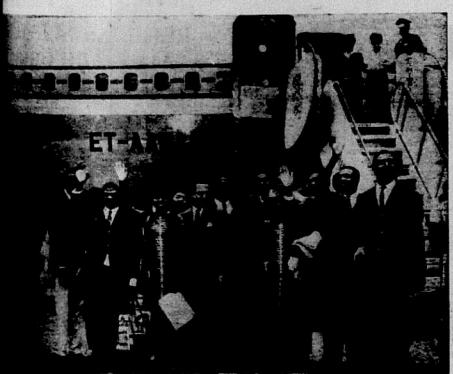

LOWER LEFT: Jagdish Singh and Bev Smith clasp hands for the cameraman as they place their cup in the hands of their Dattan.

The Mayor, who was introduced by the Safari chairman, Mr. Eric Cecil, thanked the organisers and drivers, particularly from overseas, for their performances.

Coun. Ligonzo said the rally had been very tough and he appealed to drivers who had failed to complete the course not to be discouraged, but to try again.

Other recipients of cups and other prizes were: Vice-count Mandeville and Stuart Allison (Triumph 2000); Michael Armstrong and Derek Pavely (Peugeot 404 Injection) and Robin Uthala and Michael Wood (Cortina GT).

Because only a few competitors had finished, the Safari Committee had made a few "hubs" in the way of money not paid out in prizes and this would be banked for another year, Mr. Cecil said.

The "Mombasa Africa" singers arrived at Nairobi Airport yesterday from Addis Ababa where they have been for a week. They were welcomed at the foot of the aircraft by the Ethiopian Airlines sales manager, Mr. K. Bhatt (centre).

Nihilist students

Students are on the rampage in countries having different forms of government and administrative structures. Recently, they demonstrated in East Africa against British invasion when they were excited in Rhodesia. Hilly charged though their names were, students of a Zanzibar students did appreciate the history in West Germany.

From Britain, Poland and Czechoslovakia, the students and actors to India and Indonesia. The Page 12 reader, a special article attempts to explain the reasons why there have swarmed round Red West German youth in their country who shot and critically wounded their work. Red Rudi" is described as a "hateful and a personification of revolution" seeking to tear down "the Establishment" whether on the academic or political sphere.

It appears to be evergreen representation of the huge quantity mark covering ever needed about. Nobody can be sure of anything, they proclaim, no everybody must think for himself if they then act for themselves, nobody being in agreement except on causing chaos. The result is anarchy. Student society is fast turning into a universal nihilist movement.

The world over, respect for authority is disappearing. Parents who insist on discipline are ridiculed. Students who insist on respect are ridiculed. Students who insist on respect are ridiculed.

In Rhodesia, one of the West African youth which pulled bottles have been found a young ringer summed up the student youth feeling succinctly. We are fed up with being ordered about. If we are not enough for the army at the we should have it. As we are unable to effect an affair that affects the youth our way, it is an attempt to stalling a riot.

They are all yearning for an escape from frustration into a world of fantasy. There is a surge for liberty of personal behaviour in the permissive age, abuse from conservatism that dominated the living of their parents.

After the basic form of affairs of the publicists, we see the latest words carry over intellectuals. They are very lively in Berlin where undergraduates called on the people to join them in demanding a democratisation process leading to a more authoritarian society, and held that demonstration are legitimate expressions of Japan knocks on door of the 'Space Club'

During the coming weeks, the world is likely to hear that another nation has joined the United States and France in the "Space Club" by launching an artificial satellite with a rocket from its own device.

The country is Japan — the second to have done so. The program despite a budget deficit, the Japanese Government decided to do so. It was the first time that Japan has done so since World War II. The program was announced in a speech by the Prime Minister, Ichiro Kishi, on April 10.

Junk cars driving U.S. authorities to desperation

While Africa and Asia valiantly struggle to speed the process of modernization, the nightmare of 20th century living continues to deepen at a frightening pace in the so-called developed world.

These bad dreams — at any rate in the U.S. — already include water pollution, air pollution, traffic jams, and problems of parking spaces, the never-ending stream of supercars, a crush of mass-produced, cheaply-ground trash, steadily rising municipal taxes, and burgeoning transportation, to administer the mounting chaos.

To this grim portrait of the developed world a new touch has been added: the automobile graveyard. The threat, at first glance, may evoke a yawn, but for those trapped in the "modern" world, it is indeed a stark cause for alarm.

"Everywhere you drive," the U.S. Government publicly acknowledged recently, "you see piles of junk cars that have become economic nightmares for the land."

The number of vehicles existing away from automobile graveyards, police ponds, public dumps, or simply abandoned on public or private property, is almost uncountable. There is no agreement that the problem of the unwanted automobile has expanded to monstrous proportions.

Some estimates place the number of abandoned vehicles in the U.S. at an astronomical 200,000, a figure Washington recently completed a comprehensive official survey which put the figure at a rock bottom of 100,000. But 3,000,000 new cars sold annually, of which 2,000,000 are new, are being added to the existing fleet. By last year alone, 80 per cent of American families owned their own automobiles — indeed one household out of every four owned two or more cars.

Obviously motor vehicles reach a point at which they are no longer disposable products. What can their owners do with them?

They may sell them, give them away, trade them in for an auto, or wreck them into unrecognizable, uncountable defective vehicles. More often than not, they are traded in for new cars, but then the automobile dealer is added with the responsibility of getting rid of them. Another reason of disposal is to abandon cars on streets or highways — an increasingly popular method.

To compound complexities, the problem has a curious legal aspect. For example, in Michigan an abandoned automobile is held for 90 days before being taken away. Likewise, in New York, it takes 60 days before a car can be destroyed by private property.

The growing rate of automobiles, the time spent in producing them, the cost involved for the city in becoming something of a junkyard for local police disposal, a slight delay in tax rates (the authorities left abandoned for more than 24 hours may be destroyed, kept for 30 days, and auctioned off to the highest bidder. But the objective is to encourage the sale of the vehicle and, worse, there is always the chance nobody will buy it for $100,000.)

Towing charge

Why then, do the owners not simply leave their unwanted cars where they are? In fact, they certainly fear this will result in a towing charge.

In New York, the police may remove an abandoned car from the streets — they do so every day — but they cannot dispose of the vehicles immediately. Their fear is that the car may have been stolen and therefore must be retained as evidence. For that reason, the car may have been stolen. So the police, pushed or checked with abandoned vehicles,

By 1967 the rate at which cars were being pulled, justed had mushroomed into a national scandal. The obvious solution is to have the public order to a large extent. Scrap yards are authorized "licensed" buyers and the state working industry is licensed by the Bureau of Mines.

When an automobile has collected its usefulness as a transportation vehicle in terms of becoming a valuable asset of metal, a Bureau spokesman estimated: "In a sense, a become a more from which valuable materials can be recycled."

Even the auto wrecker industry is a staggering $300,000,000 dollar a year industry. It is the steady flow of abandoned vehicles from Colorado, in order to increase their storage capacity, wrecker have resorted to "stealing" some one vehicle out of every 100,000 to make up the scrap heap.

The wrecker, however, are selective. When the cost of stripping a vehicle costs more than the resulting net of scrap they are not interested in picking up an abandoned car. This is especially true in areas where local laws are strict, as in California, where the open burn of scrap (the wrecker was a wrecker and strip a lot of industry, automobile rubber tires and other non-recyclable objects by burning the scrap.)

Characteristically, the use of scrap, a former ally of John F. Kennedy, who launched the campaign for the national nuclear recycling program, has been abandoned. The world at large as the number of automobiles, ground iron, others with the global trend towards modernization.

Nobody seems very hopeful of making a lot out of it. It is, however, another bad dream in the nightmare of the modern world.

PLOTS FOR SALE IN AIR SPACE

Urban builders who have run out of land, are being urged to provide sites for new buildings. The shortage of land, developers are looking around for new buildings that are going up and negotiating the air rights over them.

The technique has resulted in some of the most beautiful buildings by combining such needed facilities as schools with a home on top of them.

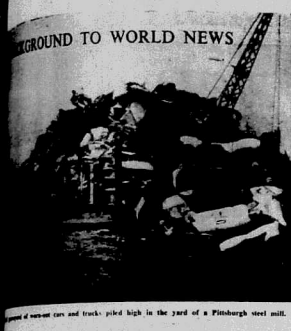

The owner of a plot of land owns the air above it. If his building, or sell the air rights to another building above the plot, or sell the air rights to a private developer to build a block of flats.

According to Mr. Thomas (John) Carr, an architectural firm which designed the school, flat combination, the principle of selling air rights provides a simple, fast solution to the problem of overcrowded cities.

"Governments, from the local to the federal level, own extensive amounts of flat estate, and the air rights above these lands constitute a valuable resource, he said. "The sale of air rights, the drain on capital budgets, on the federal budget, including the people required for rebuilding our cities and saving an ecological population."

The technique has limitations, he admits, since it is feasible only in combining two new buildings and not in building new structures atop existing buildings.

It is, however, another bad dream in the nightmare of the modern world. — Bruce

Change in New Guinea

...of the people. From now on, it will be up to us to make it possible to visit about the territory's future only at the current of independence. The P.N.G. party, even with 18 seats, will not be able to command anything like a majority in the 46-member House of Assembly.

It will represent the first regional and nationally well-disputed election since the territory's independence, and as such, might well be a landmark event.

As in any election, there have been in the territory some voices of warning and some voices of optimism. The former are those of the P.N.G. party, which has rejected the idea of independence and continued on the road of colonialism.

More than 400 candidates faced the voters at an autonomous 200,000-seat House of Assembly for the first time in 1964.

W. Africa team heads back to U.S.

The U.N. Council for South West Africa appeared in Las Vegas Saturday to have at least temporarily abandoned any attempt to enter the African-administered territory and establish a U.N. presence there.

It was learned that the entire Council and secretariat had booked in for a home tonight, presumably on their way back to New York.

South Africa had made it clear it would not allow the Council to take the Council into the territory, but now was apparently prepared to defy South Africa's refusal of landing rights.

Plane offer rejected

The United Nations has rejected the Zambian Government's offer of a plane to take the Council to Windhoek, the South West African capital, because of certain conditions imposed by the Zambian Government.

The U.N. Secretary-General, J. Thant, is reported to have said in New York on Tuesday that he would not accept the offer of a D-4C.

The Zambian plane was said to have been offered to the Council on the condition that the Zambian Government would not accept the offer of a D-4C.

Blockade of Rhodesia

Finally, the O.A.U. resolution calls on member States to sever diplomatic relations with Britain over its policy towards Rhodesia and failure to use force.

The O.A.U. urged African governments to break with Britain after Mr. Smith's recent illegally signed independence. A number of States have already done so, but they have not done so because of the weakness of the United Nations Council which should have taken the lead in Africa and Portugal for helping Rhodesia in defiance of the U.N. resolution imposing a complete blockade.

The British Government is carrying out a policy of lightening sanctions to the point of a complete economic blockade of Rhodesia. Members of the U.N. would not independent Africa and the Africans of Rhodesia, more serious by the thought their own blockade implementation of a thorough economic boycott and in the end severing all relations with the rebel Rhodesian regime.

The obvious target of the U.N. and the failure of its military might to master Vietnam ought to be an object lesson, and Vietnam is

Parliamentary privilege

As we know in certain circumstances the Assistant Minister in the Office of the Vice-President and Minister for Home Affairs recently named two men as having committed punishable offences, but nonetheless in the House of Commons. Mr. Mullaughan, however, himself lost his seat when he named two men in the House of Commons, implying they had been found guilty, when their conviction had not been completed. The principle of justice is that if a person is named in Parliament, he should be treated as innocent until found guilty.

Recently, in this newspaper, I have written in criticism from the Ministry of Information because of defecal publication passages in a Minister's statement which was not an unprovoked passage which seemed legally defensible. Regard for the law and constitutional rights must not be sacrificed to any expedient or the rule of law will collapse.

Anniversary of army coup may spark unrest

Greece's army-backed Government is approaching the first anniversary of its seizure of power with many observers suspecting that it has failed to attract mass popular support.

The Greek military Government was established on April 21, 1963, after a coup d'etat which overthrew the previous Government. It was a military-backed Government, and its seizure of power was widely expected.

Nairobi proposed name in California

There may soon be a Nairobi in the United States. A reader at the University College in Nairobi has sent me a clipping from the Red-40 Times in California which contains a report of an official suggestion that East Park, Calif., be renamed after Kenya's capital.

New Bottle.

Only thing we'd dare change

We are giving our Three Star cognac a face lift or two.

In the first place, we're going to put it in a more attractive bottle, the same familiar bottle we use for Medallion VSOP and Cordon Bleu.

Secondly, we've got some new label designs. Simpler and brighter than the old ones. They will be on all Three Star sizes. From full bottles down to miniature.

But that's as far as the changes go. We saw no need to change what's inside the bottle.

You can't improve upon the best.

Dockers make demand for higher wages

Wages for higher grades of dockers to rise

Standard Staff Reporter
Mombasa.
Union members received a memorandum containing 12 fresh proposals for the union to take to East African Cargo Handling Services last week.
The demands, which the union wants to come into effect on May 1, include a 10 per cent rise in the monthly wage for an 18-month standard agreement awarded by the Industrial Court in December. It also includes a minimum wage for 12 and 18 months ordinary dockers and differential rates for 12 and 18 months workers.

In an interview the union contended that since the agreement was entered into about 18 months ago, many changes have affected the dockers' purchasing power. It claims that the cost of living has risen markedly and there has been a general commodity price increase.

Wage scales out of date

The union had requested a corresponding price increase, and for this reason the union demanded that the present wage of 175 Shs. for the manual dockers be adjusted to 210.

Dockers engaged in arduous work and to resist reduction of their wages had to use special and adequate food which they called for 'grat' only.

It is proposed that these workers will have to work over the hours and be compensated at a higher rate. The union also demanded a 25 per cent increase for 18 months standard agreement. It also asked for a 10 per cent increase for 12 months standard agreement.

General trading almost at standstill

By our Business Correspondent

While general trading in Kenya remains almost at standstill, reports from Uganda and Tanzania indicate that Kenya is being added to the list of countries where the reluctance among traders to accept local stock and among companies to make foreign replacement of equipment is a result of the general uncertainty over trading licences and the projected volume of work permitted.

As a result of the general uncertainty over trading licences, the Ministry of Finance has blamed the uncertainty over trading licences and the projected volume of work permitted.

E.A. Power and Lighting are also in a state of almost total standstill. The Kenya Electricity Board is not working at all, and is expected to be reformed by the Ministry of Finance. The Kenya Electricity Board is not working at all, and is expected to be reformed by the Ministry of Finance.

SATURDAY ESSAY

The Irish in De Gaulle

"General de Gaulle was a moment captured at the time one day this week... I would have thought it particularly apt the claim was put forward by a Scot with the English name of Brown."

Mr. Oliver Brown was George, the irrepressible Mr. De Gaulle's delectable pathfinder to mark the 25th anniversary of the Franco-Soviet Alliance of 1918. To help create the right atmosphere, he had a special issue of stamps printed, showing the Trocadero and Thales and a field of flowers and the Irish Scottish symbols. A copy of the stamp, Mr. Brown said, was sent to the President de Gaulle who, according to the official report, was "most interested".

Mr. Brown was encouraged to claim the President of France as "one of our most distinguished Scotmen" also because, he went on, his surname, translated, means "alliance". At worst, this sounds a fairly tenuous tie with the tartan. Possibly, it also has to do with the fact that, like the Scotch, Mr. Brown is also born at Lifford.

It is not so foolish anything about the Irish nationalist who claims the France as the country against the Scotchness. Celtic generally is not so much a language as a feeling.

Everybody gets to be aware of King Charles is an ancient and could claim to sit on the Lioness Throne, or the One and if he cared to, his ancestry has been traced back to King Rudolph the Great, monarch of Ireland, more than 2 centuries ago. The throne of him explains why he is so much respected about Ireland.

The authority for his family tree is Mrs. Ellis, the Irish National Genealogical Society, located in London, and published in the Paris Lectures Plures. King Rudolph died in 239 B.C. Mrs. Ellis showed, led to the fact that the Duke of Cornwall, who was Chief of the Downs, and who in County Down, and who lived 96 years, a rare old age for his time (1842) and whose sister is still in view of his

New Zealand seeks more trade with E.A.

Trade between New Zealand and Kenya, Tanzania and Uganda is expected to rise as the result of the first New Zealand Trade Mission to East Africa, the majority of which will arrive at Nairobi on Sunday from Melbourne and Bombay.

The 11-man mission comprises the New Zealand Minister of International Commerce, the wider range of products than represented are already many export lines for the country. Sponsored by the New Zealand Government, Education and Trade Missions, the mission will spend a month in Kenya, Tanzania and Uganda before returning to New Zealand on April 28.

The general New Zealand export situation is generally good, mainly due to the fact that the country has a small quantity of manufactured goods.

In addition to direct exports, the country exports a number of goods through the light of New Zealand's export situation, many of which are already being marketed in the area's markets.

New Zealand, consisting of two islands and numerous outlying islands in the South Pacific, developed into a free trade country and world famous for the quality of its goods.

Aid for self-help project

Melrose and a spirit of hard work were important factors in helping the Mayor of Nairobi, Coon. Lagerman, as he is known, order building material for the Kikuyu Cooperative Society. He is shown loading over a sack of sand in the Wainina Merga (third from right). The sand will be used to build a nursery school on a self-help project.

Mr. Lagerman emphasized that unless children were given

"It is the intention of the City Council and the Government to expand and intensify the work of community development and in so doing create opportunities for people in all walks of life."

Trade missions 'have wrong emphasis'

Trade missions visiting Kenya should address themselves to the problem of setting up industries in the country instead of trying to persuade businessmen to buy Kenyan-made products, says a leading trade expert.

The expert, Mr. G. D. Walker, leader of the New Zealand Trade Mission in East Africa, said that the emphasis of trade missions should be on the promotion of trade between the two countries.

The Hajj

The ceremony takes place in the Great Kaaba at Mecca where pilgrims pray day and night. Pilgrims fast, shower and perform the Sa'i, a ritual of seven circuits around the Kaaba. Muslims believe the same has come from Heaven.

An "East African Standard" Staff photographer, N. A. AZIM, last month joined a party of local Muslims on the pilgrimage to Mecca, or Hajj which because it fell on a Friday was a Hajje-Akhari.

He received special permission to take one of the few comprehensive sets of photographs of the pilgrimage undertaken this year by about 500,000 Muslims, and the Holy City of Mecca.

The remarkable results, which capture dramatically the ceremony and piety of the occasion, are given in the following four pages. The accompanying text explains the significance of Hajj and the ceremonies and rites that go to make it up.

The Hajj for pilgrimage to Mecca, which is one of the pillars of Islam, was celebrated this year during March. Hundreds of thousands of Muslims, belonging to different nationalities and races and drawn from all walks of life, throng from all parts of the world to worship together at Islam's central mosque and the world's most ancient house of worship, the Kaaba.

This celebration which makes up an unrepeatable spectacle is repeated year after year and has been in existence for more than thirteen centuries. Every conscientious and pious Muslim and Muslimah cherishes the ambition of obtaining the blessing of the Hajj at least once in his or her lifetime.

Everyone who has the means and also the religious conviction, tries his utmost to achieve the crown of pilgrimage in spite of the ever-increasing hardships and difficulties which beset the path of the pilgrim.

The Hajj is primarily devotional institution and, as such, forms the climax of a Muslim's demonstration of devotion to Allah in ceremonial observance. Symbols and ceremonies have always formed part of human life in the religious as well as the non-religious plane.

They are, however, always the means and not ends in themselves. Moreover, their worth and efficacy always depends on the ideas and concepts they serve. They mean

Every pilgrim has to drink the holy Zam Zam water from the well which is seen near the Hajj Kaaba. It has proved to be beneficial in many ways. This was undertaken from the Zam Zam well during the Hajj.

from the projection of meaning which and mystical phrases, or they may be the representation of noble, noble and true ideals.
As a spiritual ceremonial observance, the Hajj should be understood in this light. Each one of the ceremonies performed by the pilgrim during the Hajj is rich in symbolism and carries the attainment of a well-defined spiritual idea. Thus, when the pilgrim stands on the Kaaba in the performance of the prescribed number of Tawaf, bare-headed and clothed in a seamless, unsewn garb, and observed in the contemplation of his Lord, he demonstrates his distance from the common level of human life to a higher state of spiritual glory wherein he affirms his relation to Allah (the Hajj) is the complete pilgrimage of which the chief rites are during the ten days of the month of Zul-Hajj. The Umra is a less formal pilgrimage at any time of the year.

In either case, the intending pilgrim starts by putting on a simple garment of unsewn cloth, and some pieces which are some distance from Mecca. The main intention of the Hajj is symbolical of his renouncing the vanities of the world.
After this, and until the end of the pilgrimage he must not wear other clothes or ornaments, anoint his hair, use perfumes, or do any prohibited acts. The completion of the pilgrimage is symbolised by the shaving of the head for men and cutting of a few locks of hair for women, taking of the stone and the consumption of ordinary dress.

Muslims are told (1) that having once undertaken to go on the pilgrimage, they must complete it, (2) that they must do it not for worldly ends but as a symbol of service and worship of Allah and (3) that if they are prevented for any reason for completing the Hajj, a symbolical completion can be made by sending an offering for sacrifice.
When Mecca was in the hands of the enemies of Islam, the regulations about fighting and the pilgrimage were interconnected. But the Revelation provides an always for the particular occasion and also for normal conditions.

Mecca soon passed out of the hands of the enemies of Islam. People sometimes came long distances before the pilgrimage season began. Having performed the Umra they stayed on for the formal Hajj. The months of Shawwal (Continued in page 11)

The sacrifice

...the Hajj Terminal at Moi International Airport in Mombasa, Kenya, which is the largest terminal in East Africa, is seen in the foreground. In the background, the Hajj Terminal is seen under construction.

Zal Hajj and Zal Hajj (to be the 10th or 11th day of the month) are set apart for the rites of Hajj. That is to say, the first rites may begin as early as becoming the night, with a definite approach to Mecca, but the chief rites are concentrated on the first ten days of Zal Hajj and especially on the 10th, 11th and 12th of that month, when the crowning of pilgrims reaches its height.

The chief rites may be briefly enumerated as follows:

1. The wearing of the pilgrim garment (Ihram) from certain points fixed on all roads to Mecca. After this, the pilgrim is prohibited from wearing any garment and the pilgrim is dedicated to worship and prayer and abstention of vanities.

The going round the Kabah seven times (Tawaf) is usually done with kissing of the black stone once built into the wall, the symbol of concentration in the love of Allah.

2. After a short prayer at the station of Abraham, the pilgrim goes to the hills Safa and Marwa, the symbols of patience and perseverance.

3. The great Sermon (Khuftah) on the seventh of Zal Hajj, when the whole assembly listens to an exposition of the meaning of Hajj.

4. The visit on the eighth of the whole body of pilgrims to the valley of Mina (about six miles north of Mecca) where the pilgrims halt and stay the night, proceeding on the ninth to the plain and hills of Arafat, about five miles further north, which comprise the station of Adam and Eve after their wanderings, and is also called the Mount of Mercy.

The tenth day, the 10th day of Sacrifice, when the sacrifice is offered on the valley of Arafat.

The symbolic ceremony of casting seven stones at the Jizl one is performed on the 10th and is continued on subsequent days. Both rites commemorating the story of Abraham and this is known as the HU AL ADHA.

The ceremony is symbolically connected with the rejection of evil in things near or far. This closes the pilgrim's first day of two or three days after it is recommended and it is recommended that the pilgrim should come with provisions so that they should not be compelled to resort to begging.

Legitimate trade is allowed, but the profit must be sought as from the buying of Allah. There is no profiting, for honest trade is a form of service to the community, therefore to God.

About midday, between Arafat and Mina is a place called Muzdalifah, where the Holy Apostle offered a long prayer. It has thus become a Sacred Minaret.

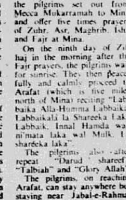

Then the celebration of Hajj proper begins.

On the eighth of Zal Hajj, the day of Tarawih (the day of Preparation) after sunrise the pilgrims set out from Mecca Mikararima to Mina and offer five times prayers of Zal Hajj. Maghrib, Isha and Fajr at Mina.

On the ninth day of Zal Hajj, the pilgrims wait for sunrise. Then they proceed to Arafat (which is five miles north of Mina) reaching Jabka-baka Alla-Horma Jabka-baka. Inal Harada was named after the Prophet Muhammad (s.a.w.) who said "Barad" shared, "Tafal" and "Galy" Allah.

The pilgrims, on reaching Arafat, may stay anywhere but having seen the Kaabah (Mount of Mercy) is preferable. To climb up the Jabka-baka is unnecessary.

Musajid-Arafat is the time of Hajj begins after midday. It is imperative to remain within Arafat during the time and then after taking a bath of ablution, the pilgrim goes to Najma Mosque where Zahr and Asr prayers are said. This is the central part of the Hajj.

The pilgrims receive the Quran and Ishaah and pray, reciting, treading, and for all Muslims. For this is the time when prayers are accepted.

The Wusul of Arafat begins from the mid-day and lasts till the morning prayers (Fajr). Pilgrims remain on the plain of Arafat from mid-day until sunset and then set off for Muzdalifah after sunset. It is recommended upon the pilgrim to perform a sacrifice as he leaves Arafat before sunset. Pilgrims reach Muzdalifah sometime at night and perform both Maghrib and Isha prayers, and spend their time in devotion and concentration. Allah's Pilgrims pick 70 pebbles from Muzdalifah for Ramee-Jamar (throwing pebbles at the Jizl) one in Mina from Muzdalifah, pilgrims go back to Mina on the 10th of the Zillhi and seven pebbles are piled on Jamarat-ul-Qubah with the right hand and each time the pilgrim receives a prayer. After throwing the pebbles the pilgrim receives a prayer. After throwing of stones, camels and cows and they head shaved. The hair is then discarded and the pilgrim goes to Mecca for Tawaf Zayrah, the last obligatory item of Hajj.

The pilgrim returns to Mina to throw pebbles at the fourth and fifth Days of the Hajj, which are the 11th and 12th, which are the fourth and fifth Days of the Hajj. After performing these ceremonies pilgrims go back again to Mecca where they receive five prayers in Medina after the Hajj pilgrim is allowed only two days in Medina.

Some travel to Medina, which is about 300 miles from Mecca and where the Dome of the Holy Prophet is in Hajj to receive five prayers in Medina after the Hajj pilgrim is allowed only two days in Medina.

U.S. urged to improve balance of payments

Drawing rights could be revived and what that thing would be. The U.S. Treasury Reserve Board observed that the U.S. was in its worst financial position since the end of the Second World War.

Mr. Schwartz said the new system would be a "two-tier" system. They would be allowed to purchase goods in "hard" currencies when needed.

The first tier would be for "hard" currencies which would be used to purchase goods in "hard" currencies. The second tier would be for "soft" currencies which would be used to purchase goods in "soft" currencies.

Compromise plea on U.K. entry into E.E.C.

The Minister for Economic Planning and Development, Mr. Albert, presented a compromise in his speech today in the House of Commons. The compromise was for the U.K. to join the E.E.C. on a "second stage" basis, which would allow the U.K. to remain outside the common market for a period of 10 years.

Mr. Albert said that the U.K. should not join the E.E.C. on the same terms as the other countries, but should have a special arrangement which would allow it to remain outside the common market for a period of 10 years.

Talks open on East African pact with E.E.C.

Representatives of Kenya, Uganda and Tanzania yesterday reopened negotiations in London for a trade agreement with the European Community.

The talks are being held in association with the European Community. Negotiations were held in London in 1966 and 1967 but were suspended because of the establishment of a free trade area between the three African countries and the E.E.C.

But many obstacles have stood in the way of a trade pact. The British government has insisted on an exchange of letters, which the African states have refused to do. The United Kingdom also insists on a trade pact with the European Community, which the African states have refused to do.

Stallholders' dilemma

Not content with the new stallholders at the Municipal Market, Nairobi, some vendors have been taking to the streets in order to compete with their African rivals.

It was not so crowded outside the Municipal Market as it used to be on Saturday mornings. It was quite easy to find a parking space the first time round, whereas several months ago shopping at the market presented a parking problem.

But things have changed since then and of course many houses were stored shopping at the market after the strain of aggressive competition of the vendors and from other sources.

I returned to the market with my car to find that it was now a weekly parking problem. It was a relief to find that the market presented a parking problem.

Sunday and Friday are days of course the market's busiest days. It could have been a bad day for all the stallholders because the day is particularly busy for the European and African business, made straight for one of the few remaining African-owned stalls adjoining all others.

I spoke to Mr. David Mwangi, who was one of the first African stallholders to have been set up by the Government. He was very busy about his work with African and European vendors and he was not at all surprised at the prospect for African stallholders in the market, who have the capital resources with which to compete with the European vendors.

Mr. Mwangi has been running a stall in the market for some time and he has been successful in his business. He has a constant supply of goods and he is not at all surprised at the prospect for African stallholders in the market.

It makes an average of about 250,000 a day. After paying for his stall and vegetables which he took in from Milimba Lake, he has a profit of about 100,000 a day. He has about 100,000 in his stall.

From his daily profit he has a monthly profit of about 3,000,000. He has a monthly profit of about 3,000,000. He has a monthly profit of about 3,000,000.

EAST EUROPE

Cracks in the Iron Curtain

By WILLIAM FORREST

A new Iron Curtain is descending in Europe. And it will not be so easy to penetrate as the one in existence since the end of the Second World War.

The new barrier is really a double one. It is the one that separates Russia from the rest of Europe. When I say "Russia" I mean the Soviet Union. For the Iron Curtain did not begin with the Russians; they carried out a tradition dating from the old Tsarist Empire.

Up to 1918 one could travel without a passport for almost every part of Europe — except Russia and Turkey.

After the 1917 Revolution the Bolshevik leaders — Lenin and Trotsky, Zinoviev and Kamenev — when the Comintern would be set up, might well have said, "Let us open up the world."

But they got an encouragement from the military intervention, and when that failed, established a continuous border with Russia from the North Sea to the Black Sea.

The chance to end Russia's "iron curtain" had been lost. It was the internationalists from the American and the German socialist, syndicalist, democratic movements who had been lost.

After the Second World War, Stalin brought all the Eastern European countries under his control. The Iron Curtain was advanced to the Baltic Sea. There it remained as long as Stalin lived, thereby there it remained to this day.

But the Communist countries of Eastern Europe and the outside world are still remaining countries more and more. The countries most of the People's Democracies are still remaining countries more and more. The countries most of the People's Democracies are still remaining countries more and more.

EARTH GETS FATTER EVERY YEAR

It is not the Earth that has been fattening on a mid-range spread of food. It is the population that has been fattening on a mid-range spread of food. It is the population that has been fattening on a mid-range spread of food.

The other worker who came up with the same theory on the Earth's population is the late Professor Paul Erlich. He has also been accused of being a "doomsday prophet" for his theory that the Earth's population will reach a point where it will be unable to support itself.

Dr. Charles Fogel has pointed out the carbon-13 content of human hair that shows the diet of the person who remains of the system covered by the Arctic Circle, and the diet of the person who remains of the system covered by the Arctic Circle, and the diet of the person who remains of the system covered by the Arctic Circle.
