CHILDREN'S ART

It has long been one of the aims of the Kenya Arts and Crafts Society to encourage the work of young artists and next week, from Monday until the evening of Sunday, the Society is holding an exhibition of the work of children.

The exhibition is in some respects experimental. It is the first time that the work of the children is being shown in the Kenyan National Art Centre, where the Society and the Children's Centre have their studios.

In the second place, the work is being shown to enable people who would like to know more about the work of the children to come to the exhibition and see the work for themselves.

The exhibition is free to all and is open from 10.30 a.m. to 5.30 p.m. on Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday, Friday and Saturday. It will be closed on Sunday.

The exhibition is held in the Kenyan National Art Centre, which is situated in the grounds of the Kenyan National Art Centre, Nairobi.

THE GOVERNOR OF TANGANYIKA'S ANNUAL REVIEW

DEVELOPMENT OF AFRICAN PROGRESS IN THE NEED IS TO INCREASE LOCAL GOVERNMENT SOCIAL SERVICES PRODUCTION OF WEALTH

'Studious not to sacrifice efficiency'

REFERRING to the Report of the Committee on Constitutional Development to be debated by Legislative Council during the present session—the Governor, Sir Edward Young said that he thought it would be proper for me to make some further comments on the recommendations of the Committee at this stage.

'Difficulties appreciated'

The United Nations Young Men's Union has some and one and they I feel sure enjoyed their work very much. They were very careful to call them 'work' and not 'service' for most of the organization we may I thank Mr. Lomo our British Liaison Officer, who may I mention is representing the Territory with outstanding ability at the Trusteeship Council (Addisaba).

Rise in revenues

An African Local Government has been set up in the Province of African Local Government at the present time. It is the first of its kind in the Territory and is expected to be a model for other similar organizations.

Heightened interest in mining

THROUGHOUT the Territory there is a growing interest in mining. This is due to the fact that the Government has been encouraging the industry and has been providing financial assistance to the miners.

Tax increase

THE Government has announced a tax increase in order to meet the increased costs of running the Territory. This increase is necessary to ensure that the Government can continue to provide the services which are essential for the development of the Territory.

Labour shortage

THE Government is aware of the labour shortage which is causing difficulties in many of the public services. It is taking steps to attract more people to the public services and to improve the conditions of service.

Coal at Songea

THE Government has announced that it has discovered a large deposit of coal at Songea. This discovery is of great importance for the Territory and will enable it to produce its own coal for use in the power stations and for other purposes.

Uganda Scheme

THE Government is studying the Uganda Scheme which is a proposal for the development of the Uganda Territory. This scheme is of great importance for the Territory and will enable it to produce its own goods and services.

Use of motor vehicles

THE Government is aware of the need for the use of motor vehicles. It is taking steps to encourage the use of motor vehicles and to provide the people with better services.

Bottlenecks slow down education

DURING the year the usual bottlenecks in education have been noticeable. These bottlenecks are caused by the shortage of teachers and the lack of funds for the purchase of books and other educational materials.

The processing of raw materials

I THINK the time has come when we must do more to develop our own industries. This will enable us to produce our own goods and services and to reduce our dependence on foreign countries.

A woman's viewpoint on housekeeping in Japan

By Jean Blaud

My first experience of Japanese housekeeping dates from the time I had been invited to the country, and to see that the housewife is not only a housewife but a housewife in the true sense of the word. In Japan, the housewife is not only a housewife but a housewife in the true sense of the word. In Japan, the housewife is not only a housewife but a housewife in the true sense of the word. THE TAILORED SUIT FOR ALL OCCASIONS

A excellent choice at all times and on all occasions is a good tailored suit, started consistently in the collections of Paris couturiers.
 A factor conspicuously in the popularity of the suit, says the International Wool Secretariat, is the wide choice in design. The favourite correct silhouette has rounded sleeves, slightly padded shoulders, a nipped-in waist and a slender skirt.
 Known silhouettes remain smart on modern styles, many having a lapel-collared tendency, although upperarm fullness always tapers into a light-fitting wrist. Baggy sleeves are also smart and are perfect on suits, with the vertical button cut, suggesting a looser fit.
 Very high or very low lapel collars are featured in the new. Several types of skirts are seen, with these more decorative styles all introducing variety.
 We have discovered many more trends suits by popular Paris couturiers. On the left is a model by Jacques Fath, featuring the new pattern treatment of a double-breasted jacket over a flaring skirt, suggesting the new and soft tail-tail sleeves and the skirt featuring the popular flared skirt pattern.
 The recent model on the right features the trim monkey jacket style with a more classic, the body's pattern bordered at the top. It has an attractive, unbuttoned jacket, unbuttoned but with curves and moving into a soft, rounded skirt, being a straight skirt.

No magic but there have been some real improvements

MR. WINSTON CHURCHILL struck the keynote of the week with his remarkable speech in the House of Commons. Many things have been said about Mr. Churchill. At the moment, the main thing to appreciate is that he combines moderation of tone with firmness of matter.

The new Government has expected to see an improvement in the economy. Instead, Mr. Churchill said that the situation of British goods had worsened to such a degree that it is almost what the King's Speech analysts forecast.

The Parliamentary records show that the new Government has done well with its old situation. It has done so through its own efforts and through the help of other countries. All the experience has shown that the new Government has done well.

The new Government has done well in the House of Commons. It has done so through its own efforts and through the help of other countries. All the experience has shown that the new Government has done well.

but this does not help her to maintain the Conservative programme with industry by more emphasis on expanding exports rather than on the more conservative policy of reducing the rate of advance.

If there is one ray of advance worth seeing in the general picture of the country, it is that the Government has done well in the House of Commons. It has done so through its own efforts and through the help of other countries. All the experience has shown that the new Government has done well.

Nakuru fish query answered

STANDARD'S Staff Reporter

MR. R. LEWIS Secretary of the European Chamber of Commerce and Industry, reported that a meeting had been held with two representatives of the Price Control Office, Nairobi, at the end of September.

The European member who had lodged the initial complaint had been informed of the meeting but had not been invited to attend. Mr. Lewis said that the meeting had been held on 1/10 and that it was held with two representatives of the Price Control Office, Nairobi, at the end of September.

PRESENTING an attractive English variety, the bright coat of Nakuru sunshine grows through the heathery ferns, the horses and hounds of the British Game Hunt, here off the country lane at Woopars Park across the well-maintained grass.

'IT WOULD BE BETTER TO LIVE LIKE GIPSIES'

Bad housing a cause of leprosy

WE should be very alert to any of the modern nations in the opinion of our economic friends, to house and people in small, study, dark houses. It would be better, indeed, if in default of good housing, we lived an itinerant life.

This view was expressed by Dr. J. Ross-Lewis, Inter-tribe and Leprologist to the East African High Commission, when he spoke on leprosy to Nairobi Rotary.

I have a few, he stated, of the African people who have been cured of leprosy. Some of them have returned to their homes, but some have preferred to live like the gypsies. He said that the reason for this was that the houses in the cities were so bad that it was better to live like the gypsies.

Economic development in the backward areas

In his final article, RONALD BOXALL deals with industrialisation in the Colonies.

Colonial Governments are participating directly with private capital in the development of the backward areas, generally.

Steps of the argument advanced in those articles appear in greater detail in this review. It indicates that there are, in certain directions, the development of the backward areas of Asia, South America, the Middle East and Latin parts of Africa—where, the proceeds of a basic economic development—such as those of the minerals—have not been fully utilised.

Secondary industries

Developments in the British Colonies are being considered from the point of view of the production of secondary industries. Considered, both for several reasons. Basic economic development is being undertaken in certain of these areas. The standard of living of the people is rising. In certain cases, it is being helped by the fact that the standard of living is generally speaking, the production of goods, services, and infrastructure, is being undertaken on a scale far in excess of that which is required for the needs of the population.

Stirling balances

It is pointed out, however, if the capital available for industrial development—greater provided out of local Government resources, from private individuals or organisations in London—will prove inadequate to carry out the ambitious schemes for industrial development, the Government will have to draw up the necessary plans for industrial development projects in South and East Africa, but there has been no such plan as yet by the Colonies in the form of sterling balances.

Several ways

This can be done in several ways. It can be done by Government, or Government agencies, entering into "joint" partnerships with private industry. Colonial Development Corporation has had a good deal of success in this method. Government can also participate in industrial development in various ways. It can provide a means of financing private industry, or it can provide a means of financing private industry, or it can provide a means of financing private industry.

SOUTH AFRICA'S 'SAVE THE SOIL' DRIVE

WITH soil erosion costing the country millions of pounds annually in loss of food, production and fertility, South Africa has just launched its biggest effort to arrest soil erosion and conserve the soil.

The National Soil Conservation Corporation has been set up to coordinate the drive to conserve the soil. It is a joint venture of the Government and private industry.

Bate of loss

It is estimated that the loss of soil in South Africa is worth £10 million annually. This is a huge sum of money, and it is being lost through the erosion of the soil.

The National Soil Conservation Corporation is being set up to coordinate the drive to conserve the soil. It is a joint venture of the Government and private industry.

HIS MASTER'S VOICE

at the end of last June. A plan of Conservative policy regarding the liquidation of these assets was published in a newspaper article.

The Government has been criticised for the sterling balances in the context of the development of the backward areas.

Tory policy

"At the same time," he added, "the Government has been criticised for the sterling balances in the context of the development of the backward areas."

It is pointed out, however, if the capital available for industrial development—greater provided out of local Government resources, from private individuals or organisations in London—will prove inadequate to carry out the ambitious schemes for industrial development, the Government will have to draw up the necessary plans for industrial development projects in South and East Africa, but there has been no such plan as yet by the Colonies in the form of sterling balances.

Change unlikely

The present pattern of Colonial Government expenditure is therefore unlikely to change much in the future. It is pointed out, however, if the capital available for industrial development—greater provided out of local Government resources, from private individuals or organisations in London—will prove inadequate to carry out the ambitious schemes for industrial development, the Government will have to draw up the necessary plans for industrial development projects in South and East Africa, but there has been no such plan as yet by the Colonies in the form of sterling balances.

The way in which Princess Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh won the hearts of Canadians and Americans during the Royal tour can be seen from these pictures of scenes from their triumphant journey.

The two participants at the top of the page were taken in Ottawa when the Princess and the Duke, wearing heavy muffs, enjoyed the viewing of a Canadian square dance at a private party in Government House, Ottawa.

The Princess wore a brown checked blouse with a white Peter Pan collar and cuffs and a flared skirt with beaded embroidery. The Duke had a white checked shirt and blue jacket. Before his work he had a cowboy's red bandana and he sported a straw-studded belt in approval of the photographer. In the picture below, caught the Princess in a gay mood at the State dinner at Government House, Ottawa.

During their tour, the Royal couple travelled over 16,000 miles by car, train, and plane. They are also in the air for the first time in their tour. The picture below shows the Royal couple in a motorcade in London.

It was a big thrill for the little Prince—seven years old when he was crowned by Princess Elizabeth after a Royal Command performance of the Winnipeg Ballet.
