"Standards" Correspondent, Kampala. BUGANDA will secede from Uganda if attempts are made to impose an unacceptable form of government after the Protectorate becomes independent.

This threat was made yesterday by the Information Officer to the Kabaka's Government, Mr. W. Ndawula. He stressed that Buganda, Mr. Ndawula said, "merely for the sake of it" will secede. He said that all along the Kabaka's Government had advocated a federal form of government for Uganda.

OBIGATIONS TO THE KINYA LOYALISTS

EVERY body was exceedingly naive when the part played by the Kinyas in helping the Crown to restore order in the country was first revealed.

It would appear, however, that the Kinyas were not so naive as they were then. They were then chosen to pretend or show to the world that they were loyal to the Government and to the British Empire.

In order fully to understand the part played by the Kinyas in the restoration of order in the country, it is necessary to know the part played by the Kinyas in the restoration of order in the country.

I will recall the almost unbelievable part played by the Kinyas in the restoration of order in the country.

For the past few years I have been writing about the Kinyas and their part in the restoration of order in the country.

The Kinyas today have been reduced to the status of a pariah in his own country.

Hopes grow after week's private talks

PRIVATE meetings and negotiations between members of the New Kenya Group, the United Party and the African Elected Members have continued in London during the week.

They produced the first glimmer of hope that some agreement between the different sections will be reached at the constitutional conference at Lancaster. For three days in Lancaster the discussions described by the press as "private talks" were held between the United Party, the African Elected Members, the Colonial Secretary, Mr. Macleod, and the primary conference members.

Chances to agree
The decision to hold informal discussions was taken at a meeting of the primary conference. Many delegates considered the conference as a whole that would be necessary before the delegates would be able to agree on the terms of the constitution. It was also agreed that the conference would be held in Lancaster for three days.

Mr. St. John's speech
Mr. St. John's speech on Saturday on behalf of the Kenya Group to report on the progress of the negotiations at the conference.

Rights for all
A similar move was made by the leader of the United Party Group Capt. J. H. Brigg, who said that the Government should not be allowed to return to London until it had agreed to the terms of the constitution.

Principle accepted
The main aim was to derive derivation of power by the Government and the United Party and to accept the principle of the Protectorate as the basis of the constitution.

MR. SLADE IMPRESSED BY KENYA'S CALM

IN a tribute to the people of Kenya who is returning to the London conference tonight, said yesterday: "Having attended more than 4,000 different parts of the country covering more than 4,000 people of all races, I am deeply impressed by their calm and dignified attitude in the face of the greatest anxiety for the future of our country."

"When I report this to my colleagues in London I feel sure it will be well received."

"I am an old hand of the future and I see such an intention among all races that we together shall work out our own destiny."

Leader's request
Mr. Slade, who has been touring Kenya on behalf of the New Kenya Group to report on the constitutional conference to the members of the group's leader, Mr. Macleod, has been in Nairobi for the past few days.

No politics, says STATEMENT ATTACKED
Mr. Auma

Mr. Leonard Auma, a Tika businessman, said the first African conference was unnecessary and that the only way to solve the problem was to accept the terms of the constitution. He said that the conference was a waste of time and money and that the only way to solve the problem was to accept the terms of the constitution.

WEEK-END STANDARD

Featuring gardening and radio

TWO new features will appear in next Week-End Standard—gardening and radio.

The radio column, by J. H. B. Jones, will contain news items and reviews of well as interesting criticism on local and overseas broadcasts.

On the gardening front an expert manufacturer, writing under the pen name 'Gardener', will start his series with an illustrated article which aims to help the reader know his various types of plants—how to grow them, how to care for them, and the best time to plant them.

The literary and development of the above will be continued in next week's issue. The following are the contents of the Standard:

PATHFINDER—KEY MAN IN CAR TRIAL WITH A DIFFERENCE

Jumamosi Rally tests navigation

A CAR rally with a difference. That phrase sums up the Jumamosi Rally—held here weekend by the East Africa Motor Sports Club—in which the emphasis is on night navigation along little-known roads.

In addition to being fun at night, the Jumamosi has an extra difficulty in that all the check points on the course are secret. In the day rally each car drew its own instructions for getting from one check point to the next.

The rally was won for the second year in succession by two brothers, Patrick and Clive Cliff, who have always driven together to the rally since it was first run in 1947, with the exception of one year when Clive Cliff was no longer present.

The course was worked out by Mr. Jack Howell and Mr. Eric Lloyd, who kept in mind lessons learned from the running of the rally in the past. They made sure that the number of miles of each leg was balanced so that the cars would arrive at the check points at the same time. The marking system has since been changed and the penalty for missing a control is a total loss of 100 points. The check cars lost only 100 points that night's race. The check cars' score that night was well over the losing margin. The Jumamosi rally has now been held for three years, about 300 miles, about

DIAGRAMS ONLY GUIDE ON WAY

Diagram marking in the distance between the markings on the mile. All that a driver has to do is follow the diagrams. The two organizers then drove round the course at night to ensure that the markings should be followed in the dark. To ensure that they had not made any unnecessary assumptions when drawing up the instructions they went round the course a third time. On this occasion they were marked by a 'pilot car' which had the same four-minute delay as the other cars.

Last Saturday the organizers took over a full moon and for the night to use as headlights and they also used a car on the course for the night to check the course in daylight to check it was correct. A post 100 yards from the

AFTER PARIS THE RELAXED ELEGANCE OF BRITISH FASHIONS

By PATRICIA DOUGLAS

WHILE the Paris fashion shows attract all the publicity and comment, the London couture collections are exerting an influence on the West which is being felt in the next few months.

The fashion show called by the English couturiers is not of national significance—never casual, but always easy to understand. It is a "high society" affair, and its main purpose is to show the latest in fashion.

The trend is towards more relaxed and softer lines. The trousers are longer and the skirts are shorter. The dresses are more casual and less formal.

There is a new emphasis on the use of natural fabrics. The use of synthetic materials is still present, but it is being used more sparingly.

There is a new emphasis on the use of color. The colors are more muted and less bright. The use of white is still popular, but it is being used more sparingly.

There is a new emphasis on the use of texture. The fabrics are more varied and more interesting. The use of lace and silk is still popular, but it is being used more sparingly.

There is a new emphasis on the use of detail. The details are more subtle and less obvious. The use of buttons and zippers is still popular, but it is being used more sparingly.

Mostly American stock houses, based on their own designs, the latest-style dress is grey, flared, slim bodice. A crowd that is not so much interested in the color of the dress as in the cut of the collar. The dress is made of a fine fabric and is shown in a matching 7/8 length skirt.

Decay reduced over 50% by using Amm-i-dent

White teeth may not mean decay-free teeth. But now you can buy a toothpaste that has really been proved to isolate an Amm-i-dent. British scientists have subjected it to a series of strictly controlled clinical tests and proved that it reduces the risk of dental caries by more than half!

This ingredient is incorporated in a new dentifrice, Amm-i-dent. By retaining the loss of Ammonia, Amm-i-dent fights the bacteria which are the chief cause of tooth decay. It removes stain and discoloration, too, leaves your whole mouth fresh and healthy.

Go to your chemist today and buy a tube of Amm-i-dent. Then see for yourself how its regular use will help you wonderfully white, decay-free teeth.

Mr. DUCK STARTS A NEW FASHION

By ROSINA WRIGHT MR. DUCK scratched his head with one slightly dirty webbed foot...

When Mr. Duck took the family on their weekly visit to his mother, he said...

Well, you know what my mother says when I ask her to buy me a pair of white socks...

"Maybe, she cracked, "but they are not for me!"

"Mamma!" she said, "our children are going to be the whitest socks in the world!"

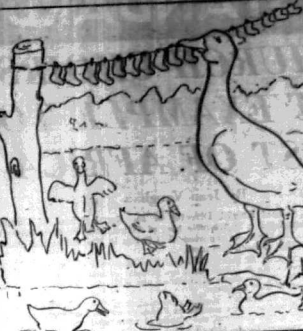

Then Mrs. Duck looked at her children's feet. "Demond Duck!" she cried...

"Yesterday," he said, "I was ashamed to wear my children's looking like that..."

"After that Mr. Duck did it twice more, but he was not so lucky as the first time..."

And it was not only the white socks that were the cause of his trouble...

What a struggle it can be! And there was poor David!

He stood for a long time looking at a bowl of whitewash someone had been using to spruce up the children's room.

On the next visiting day Mr. Duck came with a white wash bucket full of white wash...

"You never see such scolding white feet!" Mrs. Duck was pleased with them...

The little ducks liked the new colour too. They washed happily through and were so excited that they dipped their beaks in the paint as well.

Weddings of the week

ALL Saints' Church, Thomson's Falls, was the scene of the wedding of the children of old Kenyan residents, when Johnborough Mistry, only son of Mr. and Mrs. James Silvester, of Kohere, married Catherine Susan Ikinis, younger daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. McDonough, who for many years farmed at Nanyuki and Thomson's Falls.

The bride wore a gown of wild silk, with an elaborate length well held in place by a crescent of satin bows, and carried a bouquet of white roses.

Guests at the reception, held on the home of the bride's uncle, Mr. F. P. South, came in from Far Aden and Tanganyika. (Photo: Michael Lambert.)

Mr. and Mrs. Francis Kivuli (below) were married at the Convent Catholic Mission, Ngurai, Fort Hall.

The bridegroom is the third son of Mr. and Mrs. Gurney, and he holds the eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Mubinyi, both are from Kangari Village, Fort Hall.

FROGMEN FIND OLD VIKING WRECKS

By JOHN CHADWICK

It had been known that at least one vessel of some kind lay at the bottom of the fjord for 1,000 years.

Local people wrongly attributed the wreck to a shipwrecked Viking, but the wreck was actually a Roman merchant ship.

The first expert examination of pieces from the wreck revealed that it was probably from the Viking period. The National Museum quickly organized an expedition to find out.

The archaeologists had to work in difficult conditions. The museum bought frogmen's equipment, including diving suits and breathing apparatus, and Dr. Olsen and his colleagues went into training.

The museum had never attempted the sort of investigation before, but the excellent position of the wreck and the possibility of finding a treasure trove of objects were the main reasons for the expedition.

Dr. Olsen said that it was his hope that it would be possible to recover the ship or some of its contents. However, the wreck was found to be a Roman merchant ship, not a Viking longship.

How lions got black tips on their tails

By ROBBIA WOODRUFF
Mother Melanese had a big shambles of sugar cane and her boys every day getting sugar and treacle ready for market.

The black tip show up in the morning, but the market heads as soon as the sun rises.

For Mother Melanese used to get her tail covered with treacle outside the door of her hut at night, ready for the women to take it market in the morning.

One day she planned to Mother Melanese that the goods of treacle were only half-cut.

"You are cheating on," they said crossly, "look and they showed her the goods."

"I always fill them properly," said Mother Melanese. "There is a stick of treacle in every tin."

"But how?" asked the women. "The sticks of treacle are too narrow for anyone to slip into—only your eyes can see in the morning, so we do not see the treacle sticks in the evening."

"You are cheating on," they said crossly, "look and they showed her the goods."

"I will righten them very soon," she said to her boys. "I will righten them very soon," she said to her boys.

"You are cheating on," they said crossly, "look and they showed her the goods."

"I will righten them very soon," she said to her boys. "I will righten them very soon," she said to her boys.

LIBRARY UNDER THE SAME ROOF

TRAVELERS from East Africa arriving at Easton Station would do well to mark the large classical-style office building which faces the main road from London, a little to the right of the station entrance as they come along. This is the Wellcome Building and there where they find that it is well worth a visit.

It is the administrative headquarters of the Wellcome Foundation Ltd., but it is also the headquarters of the firm's veterinary surgeons and pharmacists who buy its products as Burrells and Co. It houses the two immense libraries, unique in the world, which are free to the public. The Wellcome Building is thus a business place with a difference.

It is here that the almost countless orders for the Wellcome Foundation Ltd. are processed, the administrative work of the structure responsible for its own research, production, distribution and sale of its products is carried out. The directors live and work here throughout the year.

It is perhaps as it should be, for the Wellcome Foundation is also unique in that it is a public body. It is a company limited by guarantee, and its shares are held by the members of the public who have contributed to its formation. ## IN THE SERVICE OF VETERINARY SCIENCE

The Wellcome Research Laboratories have been responsible for many remarkable discoveries and improvements in the field of animal husbandry during the past thirty years.

The development of vaccines and antisera against a wide variety of diseases in cattle, sheep and dogs has emphasized the scientific background which has made these products possible. Throughout the world, high quality, reliability and potency are associated with Burroughs Wellcome & Co. products.

Recent advances include the introduction of 'Epinax-plus', for the prevention of distemper, hard pad disease and contagious hepatitis in dogs.

Achievements include new methods of production which have provided vaccines for the prevention of Entericocemia in sheep, Anthrax, Blackquarter, Haemorrhagic Septicemia and Brucellosis in cattle and Paratuberculosis in calves.

INSTITUTE RESULT OF NEED FOR DISEASE CONTROL

THE story of Kenya's fight against foot-and-mouth disease started more than 50 years ago when European farmers first began cattle ranching in the country. But the disease which thrives in the tropics was not a major concern for Kenya stockkeepers.

Then in 1924 a widespread outbreak caused great concern. When it threatened the valuable stock of porters, the Central African Veterinary Institute, which was then a Department of the Veterinary Department, imported vaccine to protect them. The State Veterinary Institute in Amsterdam to protect them.

"Vaccinations were necessary and a large factory was built, making that the vaccine was produced locally. The factory was not done out and by the end of the year more than 100,000 head had been vaccinated."

LITTLE KNOWN

It was considered to find out what of the seven types of foot-and-mouth virus were responsible for such outbreaks. Classified outbreaks were immediately in the past had been a slow and lengthy process. In 1944 improved methods were introduced in England made it possible to find out the type of virus causing an outbreak quickly and accurately.

Three months of that year virus samples of all new outbreaks occurring in Kenya have been sent for examination to

A P.M. member which is used for testing samples taken from infected cattle.

The Kenya Veterinary Service was established in 1953 to conserve the health of the country's livestock. The Kenya Veterinary Service was established in 1953 to conserve the health of the country's livestock.

AID FROM K.A.R.

The first available department report shows that there were 1,200 only five veterinary officers in the Colony in 1949. The Kenya Veterinary Service was established in 1953 to conserve the health of the country's livestock.

STAFF SHORTAGES

The Resident Native Officer regarding the breeding of "superior" stock was one of the most serious shortages in the veterinary staff of the Colony.

QUARTER PROBLEM

Early work was directed towards the control of the rinderpest epidemic of 1949-50. All rinderpest epidemics are of the same type, and the control of the disease is a matter of time.

When chicken becomes hard grate it and put it in an airtight jar. It can be used for adding to omelette and potato salad. To prevent skin forming on stewy made custard, cover it immediately with a cloth when putting it out to cool.

To fry lettuce after washing, put it loosely into a clean kitchen cloth and wring it out. Then wash it in cold water. Make a flour and water pastry cover for your chicken when you cook it. This will save having the smell and prevents it from getting hard on top.

Put eggs taken on a new flourer if you just add just a despoiler of bread-crumbs to a mixture—and, of course, it also increases the quantity.

Add a pinch of salt to the whites of eggs before beating. They will whip up much more quickly.

GRANTS TO AID SOME MOMBASA SCHOOLS

SOME primary and intermediate schools in Mombasa are to receive aid in the form of small grants from the municipality's African Trust Fund.

Acting on a recommendation from its Health and Education Advisory Council, the Corporation has approved the purchase of domestic violence courses for a district education board school at Taiti.

New furniture
Additional furniture to equip extra classrooms at primary schools there is for classroom furniture for 200 children, while there is an increase of 200 chairs for African Muslim children into secondary schools.

The African Advisory Council has approved that trust fund money should be used to help finance fee-free for children on Mombasa Island who cannot be accommodated in the schools. The money is to be transported to the island by air.

Opposition to safeguards in Bill of Rights

Minority safeguards on land and education should not be included in a Bill of Rights for Kenya because it is meant to lay down fundamental rights for individual residents and not for any group of people.

This was stated yesterday by the secretary of the Kenya Freedom Party, Mr. J. M. Njoro, who said the party did not support the Bill of Rights.

Mr. Njoro said the Bill of Rights should be a Bill of Rights for all Kenyans and not a Bill of Rights for any group of people.

He welcomed the proposal of £3,000,000 for the purchase of land for the settlement of 100,000 refugees, but added that much more help was required for both land reforms and education.

LAND UNITS PROGRESS

INDIVIDUAL consolidated enclosures completed in Central Nyanza during the last few months of 1959 was estimated at 1,200,000 acres.

Mr. J. M. Njoro, secretary of the Kenya Freedom Party, said that the Government had not done enough to help the refugees and that the Government should do more to help the refugees.

Mr. Njoro said that the Government should do more to help the refugees and that the Government should do more to help the refugees.

SKILL MAKES DIFFICULT LOOK EASY

I HAVE always been intrigued by displays of dexterity and skill for which a good crowd holds an undying fascination for me, particularly Gas Tompkins, awarded in an exceptionally high degree for precise timing, even when the basis of his athletic skills. So it was with unusual pleasure that I watched Horace Lindrum play billiards once again.

Lindrum has been a millionaire and a member of the House of Lords on an illustrious membership of an Australian family since he was three years of age. He has a net worth of £1,000,000 and is one of the world's best billiard players. He is a devoted husband and father, and a member of the House of Lords.

TO a very high degree Lindrum is a professional player. He has a very fine technique and a very accurate aim. He is a very good player and a very good player. He is a very good player and a very good player. He is a very good player and a very good player.

NOT for the faint of heart is the billiard table, although it has made some remarkable military scores and more than 100 three-day stonker breaks. He makes his own rules and his own rules. He makes his own rules and his own rules.

THE matches with Tom Stone were full of verbal pyrotechnics as well as excellent billiards. He was a very good player and a very good player. He was a very good player and a very good player.

THE first of the two matches was a very close one. It was a very close one. It was a very close one. It was a very close one. It was a very close one.

ONE of the most interesting features of the match was the fact that Lindrum was a very good player and a very good player. He was a very good player and a very good player.

THE match was a very close one. It was a very close one. It was a very close one. It was a very close one. It was a very close one.

THE match was a very close one. It was a very close one. It was a very close one. It was a very close one. It was a very close one.
