Longer Cylinder Bore Life Through shorter piston travel and slower piston speeds

The outstanding advantage of the new Standard Engine design is the great increase in cylinder bore life which comes from shorter piston travel and slower piston speeds. This simple comparison shows the full extent of the improvements.

PISTON TRAVEL IN FEET PER ROAD MILE

OLD ENGINE	NEW STANDARD ENGINE
WYVERN 4 CYL. 434	473
VELOX 6 CYL. 214	281

Piston speeds are reduced in the same proportion. Slower piston speeds permit higher cruising speeds on the road. Taking the old Wyvern engine as the datum line, here are the equivalent cruising speeds for the same piston speed in all four engines.

ROAD SPEEDS AT SAME PISTON SPEED

OLD ENGINE	NEW STANDARD ENGINE
WYVERN 4 CYL. 50 m.p.h.	62 m.p.h.
VELOX 6 CYL. 25 m.p.h.	31 m.p.h.

Is it still the old Chelsea

by Dennis Hart

CHELSEA have had many great players in their history. But the Chelsea of the past is not the Chelsea of today.

The first is that although often spoken of as the Chelsea of the past, it has had a certain amount of success in the League Championship.

Reason in mind

When the Chelsea of the past were appointed Two Division as manager, they were the first to be appointed in the first division.

Again a revival

There was a revival in Chelsea's fortunes when they were appointed Two Division as manager, they were the first to be appointed in the first division.

Why Dunlopillo is the Hardest-Wearing form of cushioning in the World

It is the original latex foam cushioning which cannot set or sag and is resistant to acids and vermin. Dunlopillo is not only hard wearing, it remains supremely comfortable throughout its long life. The millions of air-through pores permit the circulation of air through the mattress and keep the material cool even in tropical climates.

The Problem of Kenya

The grave decision taken in the recent past has placed in the hands of the British Government a great responsibility. It is to solve the problem of Kenya in order that the African people may live in peace and harmony with the white population of the country.

It is becoming obvious that the African people are not satisfied with the present position. They are demanding a more active role in the government of their own country. This is a natural and just demand.

Many employers show a complete lack of interest in their employees, and their wages which should be the basis of their living standards are being kept below the level of the minimum wage. The minimum wage is set at 2/7 1/2 per hour, which is a very low rate for a country with a high cost of living.

(1) No African should be employed in a position of responsibility in the public service unless he has received a university education. (2) No African should be employed in a position of responsibility in the public service unless he has received a university education. (3) No African should be employed in a position of responsibility in the public service unless he has received a university education.

SIR RALPH RICHARDSON, The 'Essentially British' Actor

THOUGH he has travelled the world over, the nationality of Sir Ralph Richardson could never be doubted for a moment. He is essentially British. A powerfully built man with short, fair hair and open, thin athletic face, he is a combination of something of the actor and something of the athlete.

Athletic indeed, for the first time in his career, he has been seen in the role of a runner. In the play 'The Sign of the Cross', he played the part of a runner who is chased by a man who is to be hanged. He has been seen in the role of a runner in the play 'The Sign of the Cross'.

There is in the British West End of London, the greatest actor of his generation, who is not only a first-class actor, but a first-class runner. He is Sir Ralph Richardson. He is the only actor of his generation who is not only a first-class actor, but a first-class runner. He is Sir Ralph Richardson.

EAST AFRICA'S UNIVERSITY COLLEGE

By Peter Hill, A.R.P.S.

One of the many hills of Kampala, the beautiful capital of Uganda, stands Makerere College. Makerere is destined to be Africa's first university. In accordance with the report of the Commission on Higher Education in the Colonies, which recommended the development of a university in each of the colonial areas—West Africa, East Africa, Malaya and the Pacific Islands.

During the interim period, before attaining complete university status, Makerere is termed a university college. This means, in the main, that the names of some of the chief officers and governing bodies are different from those of a university and that the college cannot grant its own degrees. For this purpose it has entered into special relations with London University.

With the creation of a few Arabs from Zanzibar and the East African coast, all the students are Africans from Uganda, Kenya and Tanganyika. Fewer still consider that these three Territories are a Province, a Crown Colony and a Mandate respectively, and that the degree awarded them represents one of three different types of government that the social side of life at Makerere is a situation in itself. The College is trying to draw the social outlook in an endeavour to discover the educated African from the parochialism of tribal life, and to emphasize a feeling of responsibility towards the problems of the over-increasing masses of African emancipation, and political and social progress. In this connection great importance is attached to the recent establishment of an Institute of Social Research at Makerere, a centre from which scientific, sociological, economic, legal and psychological studies will be carried out in all the East African Territories. One of the Institute's tasks will be to get into the African's mind and discover just what he thinks about modern civilization.

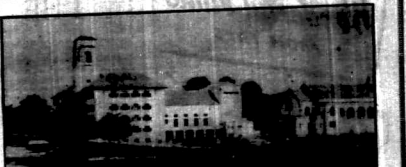

The requirements

An entrant to Makerere normally requires school certificate with three credits, one of which must be English. For the latter is the common language used socially and in the classroom. The first two years are undergraduate studies, either arts or science. Thereafter students may read for a degree or specialise in professional training, e.g. medicine, agriculture, veterinary subjects.

At present there are some 255 students, of whom nine are women. The very small proportion of East Africa's 12,000,000 African population. The Government of the Territory from which the student comes normally pays the cost of education for the student up to £200 a year, plus the cost of the maintenance of the student's family. It is not clear that the Government of the Territory will be able to do this for all the students. In fact only £40 per head is available for the Government to pay for the maintenance of the Government for Uganda students. Until 1930 the fee had been £20 only, but with the increasing expansion of expenditure the college has decided itself to be content in raising the student's proportion of the fee.

THE FRIDAY MISCELLANY

LOOKING back on the maiden voyage of the Kia Uganda, it is satisfactory to reflect that so long as British shipyards can turn out vessels such as this latest addition to the famous H.I. fleet, the pre-eminence of British shipbuilding can never be challenged.

Much has been written of the beautiful appointments of the ship, the cabin, the Kia Uganda, and from the point of view of the ship itself in their outfitting has been a constant and service.

The skipper of the Uganda, Captain C. H. Fookingham, of Colchester and who has been at Eastbourne when he is in charge of the post office staff of his firm.

These who officers to support him, include: Mr. J. A. Patterson, Mr. W. A. B. Pattinson, Mr. F. J. Cunningham, the chief engineer, a top of a remarkable record of service in the West India service.

A big talking point was the efficient service the ship is to receive. Under their present captain, Mr. D. D. Sutherland, a captain noted for the much trouble he has met.

In the large air-conditioned bridge were also a number of crew members who were invited to join the ship.

MR. MICHAEL BLUNDELL, leader of the European Chamber of Commerce on Kenya, has urged the Government for the Colony by a "bold, moderate and liberal policy" to unite the races and stop Kenya being used as a political battleground.

ANTAL PRODIGES

Antal, who is about 10 years old, is a prodigy in many respects. He is a brilliant pianist, a gifted violinist, and a talented composer. He has been playing the piano since the age of three and has been composing music since the age of five. He has already performed in several public places and has been praised for his exceptional talent.

Another prodigy is a young girl named Maria. She is a brilliant violinist and has been playing since the age of four. She has already performed in several public places and has been praised for her exceptional talent.

There are many other prodigies in the world, but these two are among the most remarkable. They are the result of a combination of natural talent and hard work. They are the proof that greatness can be found in the most unlikely of places.

Like lightning

BECKER, who later learned to play the piano, was a prodigy in many respects. He was a brilliant pianist and a gifted composer. He had been playing the piano since the age of three and had been composing music since the age of five. He had already performed in several public places and had been praised for his exceptional talent.

POWERS waned

A BROTHER, possibly whose name was a bit of a mystery, was a prodigy in many respects. He was a brilliant pianist and a gifted composer. He had been playing the piano since the age of three and had been composing music since the age of five. He had already performed in several public places and had been praised for his exceptional talent.

ROUGH MY HAT

These words could be used to describe the life of a man who was a prodigy in many respects. He was a brilliant pianist and a gifted composer. He had been playing the piano since the age of three and had been composing music since the age of five. He had already performed in several public places and had been praised for his exceptional talent.

Bringing The Past To Life

This article is the best of a broadcast made by DR. T. WRIGHTWORTH of the University of Oxford on his explorations in the island of Rutanga in Lake Victoria.

SOME years ago it was the habit of the Caravan Club to send a party to the island of Rutanga in Lake Victoria. The party was led by Dr. T. Wrightworth, a member of the University of Oxford. The party spent several weeks on the island, exploring its ruins and its history.

The ruins on Rutanga are of a civilization that has long since disappeared. They are the remains of a city that was once one of the great centers of commerce in the region. The ruins are in various stages of decay, but they still show the outlines of a grand and powerful civilization.

Crocodile larders

Few men can be so much interested in the habits of crocodiles as Dr. T. Wrightworth. He has spent many hours studying these animals in their natural habitat.

First glimpse

THE first glimpse of the ruins on Rutanga was a sight that will never be forgotten. It was a sight of a city that had been abandoned for centuries, but that still stood in all its grandeur.

Prize of possession

THE prize of possession of the ruins on Rutanga was a prize that was well deserved. It was a prize that was won through hard work, through perseverance, and through the pursuit of excellence.

ONE of Kenya's better-known socialist painters, Mrs. Vicki Ivison, has returned from a brief European tour above at the New Stanley Hotel last year and has exhibited her paintings at the Kenya Arts and Crafts Society.

Several other copies were shown with her in the same room, much to the surprise of the visiting public who uttered their disapproval in various languages.

Of the copies of Old Masters, she says it is much more exciting to look at the original than to see a reproduction. She considers it more important to see the artist's work than to see the picture after the stroke of the brush.

In Amsterdam, Mrs. Ivison arranged a collection of Van Gogh's work, and showing the evolution from the Dutch academic style towards his own individualism. Also in Amsterdam she went to a special exhibition of faded paintings, some famous Van Meegeren.

Then in London she spent a fortnight with Dame Laura Knight, being the great lady's first and only African portrait. She is to be from her home in London in the next few days.

Mrs. Ivison left Nairobi her luggage included several copies of her work, and arrived in London to find a number of her work in the Royal Academy's exhibition. The Royal Institute Galleries held the exhibition shortly after the Nairobi exhibition.

A HOBBY FOR YOUNG AND OLD

By Una Lascot

FOR grown-ups and children alike, modelling is a popular all-year-round hobby in Britain. Many hours are spent during the winter evenings planning and building models for the parks and open spaces in summer for testing and flying.

Flying clubs

A JOCCO model aircraft club is one of the most interesting and profitable of hobbies. It is following its owner and his family in the modelling of a model airplane. The club is a very successful one, and its members are very keen on the hobby.

THE QUEEN—3

By SIR CHARLES PETRIE
Her Royal Powers

THE British Constitution, as we have seen, is a very complex one. It is a system of government which has evolved over centuries. The Queen's position is central to this system. She is the head of the State and the symbol of national unity.

One of the great advantages of the Queen's position is that it ensures continuity. The Queen's reign is for life, and she is succeeded by her eldest daughter. This ensures that the State is always governed by a member of the same family.

Queen Victoria

THE Queen is above the law and is not responsible for the actions of her ministers. This is a principle which has been established since the reign of Queen Victoria.

What is it?

WHAT is it? It is the power of the Queen to appoint and dismiss her ministers. This is a power which is exercised in the name of the State.

Science aids solution of ruins riddle

THE great stone ruins of Zimbabwe in Southern Rhodesia have remained till now an enigma to archaeologists. They have puzzled even the great Zambesi, who built it, but they have been unable to unlock its secrets.

Some suggested it was of Egyptian origin, others that it was built by the Phoenicians, others that it was built by the Greeks, others that it was built by the Romans, others that it was built by the Arabs, others that it was built by the Portuguese, others that it was built by the Dutch, others that it was built by the British.

A letter
Miss Cecil Thompson, Cambridge, who conducted excavations at Zimbabwe in 1944, writes to the Standard:

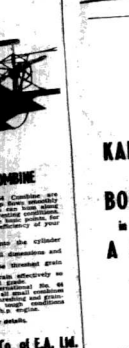

"I have been thinking about the ruins of Zimbabwe for some time, and I have been wondering if it is not a prehistoric site, but a site of the Iron Age or the early Christian era."

£250,000,000 NEEDED FOR THE RHODESIAS

MR. ROY WELESKY, Leader of the Officials in the Northern Rhodesian Legislative Council, told the London Chamber of Commerce that the Rhodesians will need at least £250,000,000 for development during the next ten years. Central African Federation, he said, was an essential step in exploiting the tremendous natural resources in the area. Without federation, even Southern Rhodesia would find it difficult to face the future with equal conditions as they are today.

"Without federation and the additional wealth that it would stand for the Rhodesians, they would find it difficult to face the future with equal conditions as they are today. Longer Cylinder Bore Life through new Vauxhall boring techniques

THESE GREATLY ENHANCED DIAGRAMS SHOW THE PRINCIPLE OF THE NEW BORING TECHNIQUE.

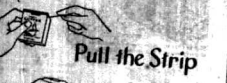

Vauxhall's new boring technique produces an ideal cylinder-wall finish for the vital running-in stage and for subsequent operation of the new engine.

The first process is a rough cut which brings the bore to within a few thousandths of an inch of required diameter. Next comes a light, accurately controlled bore with a single point tool. Finally the boring stage.

The effects of these operations are shown in the greatly magnified diagrams above. Clearly defined ridges are produced by regular fine feeds and the light boring resultant very finely ridged surface retains its smooth lubrication during the vital running-in stage. Moreover, oil does not drain so readily from the cylinder as the risk during running of a "dry start" with excessive bore wear, is thus minimized.

This boring technique is first introduced in the Bedford truck Extra Duty. Engine and service records indicate greatly increased bore life.

GOOD GOLF IN KAREN 'MIXED'

A second victory for home couple

The Karen open mixed foursomes event this year, the quality entry of 20 couples, attracted a small but high-class crowd, quite a few coming from Nairobi (media) scratch event the 1950 winners, D. T. Dobie and Mrs. D. Noad, gained a second success.

perfect golfing day and a few recent showers amounting in all to about an inch of rain. The course coupled with Major Bacon's tender care—made for the course generally, and the winners, D. T. Dobie and Mrs. D. Noad, enjoyed it to the limit.

Good golf and low scores were in evidence, a feature of the event with Karen's hostesses, Misses M. J. H. Harris and M. J. H. Harris, who completed a round for the first time in the 20 couples overall. Under the conditions of the event, people could take more than one hole handicap 12 and Mrs. Noad's handicap 22 were naturally won. The winners were naturally well pleased, especially as they were playing on their own course.

Some contenders
The 20 couples were capable of running a tight race. The winners were Mrs. D. Noad and Mrs. L. W. Lewis, H. M. Harris and Mrs. M. J. H. Harris, and Mrs. M. J. H. Harris and Mrs. M. J. H. Harris.

Brown's v. greens
The Browns were very in competitive condition in the winter, you again, if you can get them to play on the greens.

Golf at Nyeri
The Hope Cup competition recently played for at Nyeri, was a most successful one. The winners were Mrs. D. Noad and Mrs. L. W. Lewis.

Loss to cricket in Kenya

Kenya sportsmen, and cricketers in particular, will say goodbye to R. W. (Tommy) Smith when he leaves for England next month. On the one hand, they will take pleasure in his promotion to Accountant-General of the Gold Coast.

On the other hand, they will regret the loss to the game of one of the best bowlers to have come to the Colony.

For ten years he has been one of the mainstays of the Kenya cricket team, and his loss will be a heavy one. He was a right-handed batsman and a fast bowler.

Handsome win
The final was played on the beautiful lawns of Crayke Park and was between Crayke Park and Wicket. The former team already has an impressive record of success and was no surprise to the initiated.

Unsettled however
The game was for charity cricket and was played on a very hot day. The match was an even one.

For the record
The record for the year 1951, was a most successful one. The winners were Mrs. D. Noad and Mrs. L. W. Lewis.

DAME NINETTE DE VALOIS, The Woman Who Made A Dream Come True

Twenty-seven years ago a petite, slender Irish woman with a will of iron had a dream. She wanted to be a great Irish ballad singer in England, a country where she knew no one, and where she had no contacts. She watched that one-eyed, balding, thin man, Harry Fox, and she became the first woman to sing in the theatre since the days of Pavarotti.

Doctor's wife
THE woman who brought a smile to the face of a B. C. Connell, the world-famous doctor and father of two children, is the story of a woman who, through her own strength and courage, has become a large family doctor. She lives in a large bungalow on a hillside in the suburbs of Dublin.

QUESTION:

What do the additives in SHELL X-100 Motor Oil

SHELL X-100 MOTOR OIL

ANSWER:

(a) Shell X-100 Motor Oil wears away existing sludge and pump deposits and prevents further accumulations. Potentially dangerous impurities (through about by combustion) are held in suspension in a harmless state and completely removed as the next change.

(b) Oxidation, which can form acidic deposits, has no undesirable depositing effect on Shell X-100 Motor Oil—no matter how severe the conditions.

(c) Shell X-100 Motor Oil forms a protective film on moving parts, providing a tough, "conditioning" film on moving parts.

Woolscrat's Germicide

THE COASTAL RUN TO DURBAN

By John Clarke

"I said, 'I haven't got any ambergris, beche-de-mer, euphorbia, rice, hippopotamus teeth, whisky or shark-fin, said - "All right. That way we'll be flying the Atlantic Seaway-bound, in two days and 2,000 miles away." The rest I found on the plane was hot and comfortable, or so it seemed at the time. Later I found that the foam-rubber upholstery possessed properties which apparently turned it to concrete after a few hours' flying. It had an effect on the person which can only be described, politely, as "sluggish". Only brief glimpses of the day to refresh and an invitation from the Captain to visit the flight-deck were of any use.

"Will you fasten your safety-belts for take-off, please. It's about 20 hours to Durban and a runway which has been used up to belong to the lander. The facilities available on board the aircraft were also indicated - the little room at the back and the fact that there was a bed.

"THERE is and, I suppose, always will be, a peculiar attraction for me in looking down at things from the air. Even though hills are sealed down to an appearance at a height of 10,000 feet and even though we were flying over hills, sea or sand for most of the time, I could always find deep contentment in watching the landscape pass slowly by as if some giant were unrolling a massive carpet, displaying the infinitely subtle design for my pleasure. Like the Irish labourer who said he was laments by wipers - "Starr, I could sit and look at it for hours?"

Only once on the trip did I envy another occupant and that was when, over the blue Indian Ocean, a three-masted white-painted schooner sailed by - but then, the grass on the other side of the fence is always greener.

That, impressively, like the crescendo of rolling drums followed by a ring-leader's announcement, the engine started up.

Our plane surged forward from the end of the runway and, as if the climax is a well-planned circus act, we became airborne.

While the rest of the passengers gazed themselves in the magazine, the steward brought round I immediately betrayed that it was not a travel-leader - exhibiting all the signs of a hungry goldfish. I glared at him to the window.

"Half an hour after leaving Nairobi we were warned that the twin peaks of Kilimanjaro - Kibo and Mawenzi - were to be passing on our right-hand side very shortly. It was lucky enough to be invited to the flight-deck to see the twin peaks in better advantage through the wide sweep commanded by the Captain's windshield.

"My previous acquaintance with Africa's highest peaks had been somewhat unimpressive views of a somewhat comical nature from the windows of a helicopter, photo-taking.

"I was very impressed when, almost at last, by the mere magnificence of the vast heights which filled the sky, I could see somewhat more part of the air - and at the very least of the firmament, each from which it was in fact separated by a girth of mounting haze, low down on the night above.

"Crestfallen in the bright morning sun,

Kilimanjaro and its snow-capped peak like the outstanding landmark on the first day of the flight to Durban. On the second day a welcome stop is made at Lusitania Airbase Airport (foreground above) where the Dakota returns and the passengers can stretch their legs. Journey's end (picture right) distinctive patterned awnings and an impressive tower mark the main features of Durban's airport situated on the seafront. Below the scene the scene will spring into association with the writer's first air trip. Below the scene lines of Lusitania Airbase, which the picture may represent, a strong contrast is seen at East African airport buildings.

"I thought, and I do, that the world is spread above the cloud-bound haze. It appeared as if one could gather the snow which pressed against the globe. We were, as a matter of fact, at least seven miles away from the Captain, and each year the snow-caps is diminishing rapidly to craggy Mawenzi, so much unlike a green-topped Kibo that I had to look for a family slip-up somewhere in calling them "ice peaks."

"The plane gradually down the length of Lusitania, (range for the day, the weather forecast is for) while I bombarded the Captain with the usual stupid questions about the dials and instruments strewn in every available space in the cockpit, I came away with the vigorous correction of the intersection of radio and atmosphere - was it "charge" - and a reverent request for "charge" - the mechanical pilot, who worked each question on an interrupting note in his mind.

"I flew on, not interrupting the sun in the thousand facets of the dancing waves, we piled cloud down to Dur as Salama, a cluster of hazy hills, some five miles from the harbour. For all the world like models in the scenery below.

"T he airport at Dur is dreary - and undistinguished, and I find, where we landed but over an hour later, in a mere strip probably cut out from a terrain covered with poor remnants of the ruins of beach-planted by an army of fighting warriors.

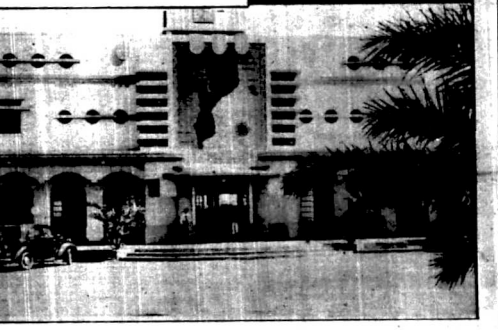

"It was on the last leg of the journey that I was served. Whether the altitude had anything to do with my appreciative appetite I do not know but the hot soup, chicken and salad, coffee and cream, followed by coffee, certainly lasted long.

"I had in me at the same stage the aircraft passed almost directly over the wreck of the German battleship Konigsberg destroyed in the First World War by the guns of the British Navy using an aeroplane "spotter" for the first time in their history.

"In the late afternoon we got down at Lusitania, Portuguese East Africa, where we were to stop for the night.

"In the day, but next airport built, our incalculable certainties were examined - then we were taken in a humpy car across a lumpy mile to our hotel. The furniture were polished but unimpressive - there were also signs of a certain novelty about the lamps in the bathroom marked "Green" and "Blue" and a child's picture in a gilded picture frame - "Cold" and which "Hot".

"I sat with me in the bar at the price of orange squash in Malindi - three shillings a bottle. This certainly was a long way from breaking the ice with the passengers and it was a very jolly crowd which sat down together with the brew for dinner.

"Dawn next day was less rosy for morning tea came round at quarter past five and we were airborne once more on a hop and a half later. There was only one half for the trip - Malindi - and a half hour later, after five and a half hours' flying, this is the time that you definitely get several good lookings at the peaks of the mountains, which looked unimpressive and deserted in the heat of the noon-day sun.

"At 11:30 we stopped for 20 minutes at Malindi, where the view of the coast was the pretty city, spaced very correctly and with a certain charm. The buildings were polished but unimpressive - there were also signs of a certain novelty about the lamps in the bathroom marked "Green" and "Blue" and a child's picture in a gilded picture frame - "Cold" and which "Hot".

"I sat with me in the bar at the price of orange squash in Malindi - three shillings a bottle. This certainly was a long way from breaking the ice with the passengers and it was a very jolly crowd which sat down together with the brew for dinner.

Through the years in costume

By Elsa M. Sanders

PLANNED for Coronation Day in the opening of a new fashion retail costume and museum of costume in London.

It will be a permanent exhibition where the public can see a collection and accessories of the fashions throughout the ages from the source of study for the costume designer. Illustrative films will also be included, and a fashion room where patterns can be examined to see how the costumes were cut and put together. The young Earl of Harrowood is one of the present members of the company formed to run the museum. Others are Miss Lough O'Leary and Miss Margaret Foster and Miss Violet Stibel.

Complete

BULK of the collection will be the 2,000 films collected by Mrs. Dora Foster, who is the Director of the museum. They range from underwear and corsets, to dresses and cloaks and include hair ornaments, hats and shoes. Mrs. Dora Foster is the wife of the French Ambassador here. The films were shot and mounted by the late King George VI and the Queen. Mr. J. E. Morgan, Director of the museum, has also given work he has already begun on connecting the museum with the Marble Arch to house the museum.

PETS FOR THE VERY YOUNG

RABBITS are a different pet for the very young. They are easy to look after and both animals of a gentle nature and quite fierce rabbits.

But though easy to look after the rabbit does not like being shut up in a small box or wire fence which many owners happily think it what he should live in.

Ideal home

The ideal home for the rabbit which you know on his wild state would be taking a lot of exercise in a field and open country is a box which is rain and sunproof. This box should be attached to a tree or the larger a tree the better. The white pine is best. The rabbit should be covered with a net or a cloth which will keep him cool in the sun and well as the top and sides. The rabbit's natural food is grass and he will eat it all the time. If you have a rabbit you must know how to feed him. The rabbit should be given grass in Kenya gets very dry and the rabbit will eat other food as well. He will eat hay, carrots, and other green tops, cabbage and lettuce leaves. Some like bean and nearly all like a little bread and some like...

BEAUTIFUL HOMES OF KENYA

IS THAT A PLACE FOR A PARTY?

IRENE GARDNER describes the home of the Lady Betise and Mr. Sherbrooke Walker of Naru Muri.

THE picture of an architect in a blue gown, sitting at a piano in a room with a view of the sea, is a scene from the film 'The Mount Kenya'.

PROBABLY the first film to be shown in Kenya was 'The Mount Kenya'.

IN the moonlight of a night, the sea is a vast, dark expanse, and the stars are like tiny diamonds in a black sky.

The Revolution, it was brought to England, where it was first introduced.

African trade took from 18 months to two years to build this beautiful home, beginning in 1945 with the cutting of the stone on the nearby tree bank above the sea.

THE pre-revolution French furniture is typical of a rich room.

THE SWAHILI BIBLE

The Story of the New Translation of The Bible into Swahili

From a Correspondent

restored to its rightful place in this new version, without in any way obscuring the style of the translation with Africanisms, or adding in Africanisms which would be unnecessary to the English text. The new version is a complete re-arrangement of the entire text, so that it is not only a new translation, but a new Bible. It is a Bible in the true sense of the word, a Bible which is a living word, a Bible which is a living force, a Bible which is a living power, a Bible which is a living light, a Bible which is a living life, a Bible which is a living love, a Bible which is a living joy, a Bible which is a living peace, a Bible which is a living hope, a Bible which is a living faith, a Bible which is a living charity, a Bible which is a living grace, a Bible which is a living glory, a Bible which is a living kingdom, a Bible which is a living God.

Turn of tide

The tide of the new translation of the Bible into Swahili has been turning. For many years the work has been done in a haphazard way, with no plan, no organization, and no unity. But now, after a long and arduous struggle, a new era has begun. The work is now being done in a systematic and organized manner, with a clear plan and a strong organization. The new translation is a masterpiece of scholarship and artistry, and it is a true reflection of the spirit of the original text. It is a Bible which is a living word, a Bible which is a living force, a Bible which is a living power, a Bible which is a living light, a Bible which is a living life, a Bible which is a living love, a Bible which is a living joy, a Bible which is a living peace, a Bible which is a living hope, a Bible which is a living faith, a Bible which is a living charity, a Bible which is a living grace, a Bible which is a living glory, a Bible which is a living kingdom, a Bible which is a living God.

100 years ago

Groundwork

BEFORE a translation can be made, it is necessary to have a plan and an organization. In 1835, the first Swahili Bible was published. It was a translation of the Gospels, and it was the first step towards the translation of the entire Bible. The work was done in a haphazard way, and it was not until 1900 that the work was taken up again. In 1900, the British and Foreign Bible Society began to publish the new translation of the Bible into Swahili. This was a great step forward, and it was the beginning of a new era in the history of the Swahili Bible.

Illustrations

WHEN sending the manuscript to London for printing, the Committee had to face a number of difficulties. The first was the cost of the work, which was very high. The second was the quality of the work, which was not always what was required. The third was the time taken to complete the work, which was very long. Despite these difficulties, the Committee persevered, and the new translation of the Bible into Swahili was finally published in 1900.

Great loss

THE loss of the Arabic version of the Bible in Swahili is a great loss. It was the only version of the Bible in Swahili which was a complete translation of the entire Bible. It was a masterpiece of scholarship and artistry, and it was a true reflection of the spirit of the original text. It was a Bible which was a living word, a Bible which was a living force, a Bible which was a living power, a Bible which was a living light, a Bible which was a living life, a Bible which was a living love, a Bible which was a living joy, a Bible which was a living peace, a Bible which was a living hope, a Bible which was a living faith, a Bible which was a living charity, a Bible which was a living grace, a Bible which was a living glory, a Bible which was a living kingdom, a Bible which was a living God.

The lights of home

The lights of home are the lights of peace and love. They are the lights of hope and faith, the lights of charity and grace, the lights of glory and kingdom, the lights of God. They are the lights of the new translation of the Bible into Swahili, which is a living word, a living force, a living power, a living light, a living life, a living love, a living joy, a living peace, a living hope, a living faith, a living charity, a living grace, a living glory, a living kingdom, a living God.
