Jane Irving tries to discover KENYA'S NATIONAL FLOWER

ENGLAND has an undisputed claim to the rose and France has always boasted her fleur-de-lis. Scotland has the thistle and Ireland the shamrock. But what do we look upon as Kenya's national flower?

This week's picture page invites YOU to decide. I contacted two of our best-known botanical experts on the question and they—Dr. A. J. Jee-Blake and Mr. P. H. O. Bally—selected eight from the many exotic and beautiful flowers which grow in Kenya as the most likely candidates for the honour. Six of them are illustrated.

It may be that someone has other ideas but it should be borne in mind that whenever you choose the flower should be indigenous to the Colony.

It is perhaps significant that this flower was chosen by Dr. Jee-Blake for the cover of the book, Gardening in East Africa, which he edited. It was chosen, too, by the Kenya Horticultural Society as the emblem for its badge for life members. Here Jane's the Queen chose the flower in presidential brown form.

Scrubland Cameroonia is just another way of saying Mandi Plant before winter. This needs an introduction to Kenya people who receive an abundance of red flowers about our dry and fairly cool. They appear at a height of 40 feet or more on the Mount Kenya. They are very variable but their large size and commanding more than for their graceful design or proportions. The tree grows in tropical and West Africa as well as in Kenya and run stand up to drought.

Only one of the eight flowers is indigenous to Kenya. It is the Crinum species. It is a flower with small habits is the Random Dance or Andalouze Crinum, top left. Whichever it falls, the Dance comes to life. A delicate pure white and sweet-scented flower. It is a Crinum like plant and is found in grasslands, flourishing particularly in the Ngong Hills.

And what of the many others and creepers indigenous to Kenya? The number of which there are many varieties. For instance The Crinum have included in this selection of eight flowers the Crinum because it is the highest height and has a bright orange flower rather like a Crinum in design. It is seen bottom left.

Its most noticeable than its competitors is the Palma Lily or Crinum Alabastrum. One of the most beautiful flowers in the large white red-tipped drooping flowers and is widely distributed in tropical Africa, from the coast to the highlands. There are many species of the Crinum in Kenya, but the Crinum is the most popular.

Jane Irving tries to discover KENYA'S NATIONAL FLOWER

ENGLAND has an undisputed claim to the rose and France has always boasted her fleur-de-lis. Scotland has the thistle and Ireland the shamrock. But what do we look upon as Kenya's national flower?

This week's picture page invites YOU to decide.

I consulted two of our best-known botanical experts on the question and they—Dr. A. J. See-Bohm and Mr. P. W. O. Bully—selected eight from the many exotic and beautiful flowers which grow in Kenya as the most likely candidates for the honour. Six of them are illustrated.

It may be that someone has other ideas but it should be borne in mind that, whatever the choice, the flower should be indigenous to the Colony.

BOTH botanists agreed that the most ornamental and spectacular flower of all is the Clitoria Lily, illustrated bottom right; it grows from 8,000 feet to coast level but it is not confined to East Africa nor even to the African Continent. Common around Nairobi, it varies in colour, the most frequently found being an striking red and yellow.

Readers are invited to send in their choice as 'National Flower' Editorial Department, East African Standard. From replies received a letter will be compiled of flowers in three order of popularity.

It is perhaps significant that this flower was chosen by Dr. See-Bohm for the cover of the book, Gardening in East Africa, which he edited. It was chosen, too, by the Kenya Horticultural Society as the emblem for its badge for its members. Her Majesty the Queen owns the flower in jewelled-branch form.

Spatheola (Panicum) is just another way of saying Nairobi. It is a native grass which needs no introduction to Kenya people who witness an immense of red flowers along its dry path daily. They appear at a height of 10 feet or more in the Nairobi Flume Tree and are remarkably long. Their large and numerous, more than for their size, and design or proportion. The tree grows in tropical and sub-tropical Africa as well as in Kenya and can stand up to drought.

Only one of the eight flowers is indigenous solely to Kenya. It is Stauris frutescens (top right). Children call it 'Jammy Mouth' because the bright vermilion and yellow-spotted petals have a sticky substance in the centre which give a 'jammy' effect. A good hedge plant, it grows from 2,000 feet to 8,000 feet and is found everywhere in the Colony and especially in the Kaimosi.

Chamaecrista (bottom left) is a very attractive flower in botanical gardens. It is a very attractive plant with numerous, tubular flowers arranged in a large, upright spike. It is found all over the tropics and has the habit of turning up in remote places where its seed often arrives by the caravans and is seen in the centre picture.

Ipomoea (middle left) is a flower with small habits in the human flower of Androschima (middle left). Wherever it rains, the flower comes to life. A delicate pure white and red-streaked trumpet flower, it is widely distributed in tropical Africa, from the coast to the highlands. There are many species of the Ipomoea in Kenya, but the Androschima is the most graceful.

It Was A Record Catch

At Kenya's lovely coastal resorts the thrilling sport of gill-netting and harpoon-fishing are becoming more and more popular. Even an indifferent performer can assume himself for hours swimming about in the warm shallow water, enjoying the beautiful scenery of the coral formations and at the same time watching the gill-nets and harpoons that start in and out of the water.

But it takes something of an expert to get the large fish out of the net, and to bring it to the shore beyond the reef.

Such a fisherman is Ian Fry, a resident of Kenya. Fry, who is a member of the Kenya Fishing Club, is a well-known fisherman. He has an offshore motor, which he uses to tow his nets. He also has a harpoon, which he uses to catch the fish. Fry is a very successful fisherman, and he has caught many large fish.

When they were out of the water, they were surprised to find the fish so large. It was a record catch for the club. The fish was about 10 feet long and weighed about 100 pounds. Fry was very happy with his catch, and he showed it to the other members of the club.

looks that the fisherman's net was full of fish. The fish were jumping out of the net, and the fisherman was shouting with joy. The other members of the club were also very excited, and they were all looking at the fish with interest.

THE SIXTEEN GUIDE TO HAIR HEALTH

Thinning Hair

The answer: The life of a hair is between two and six years. So, that means a certain number are dying and coming away on comb or brush.

If the fall of hair suddenly increases, however, the growing hair on the scalp has been affected—usually, in fact, of the 16 amino-acids, which are essential for the formation of hair protein.

The right approach: Obviously the fundamental need is to supply additional amino-acids. Bio-chemists have demonstrated that it is indeed possible to do so as part of the diet.

Silvikrin THE HAIR'S NATURAL FOOD

The hair is a protein compound of amino acid and keratin. It is only through the Silvikrin that the hair can be kept in its natural state.

For full details on the benefits of Silvikrin, write to: Silvikrin Ltd., 10, Abchurch Lane, London, E.C. 4.

THESE DESIGNS WERE ON THE 'SHORT LIST'

THE task of selecting new pictorial stamp designs to cover an easy one and in the case of East Africa it is particularly difficult in view of the need to give fair representation to each of the three Territories.

A Museum Of Country Life

AS the town rats up the countryside, many lovely things pass away and an effort to preserve some of them for posterity a new museum of British country life is taking shape at Reading University.

Hard task

The selection committee had a hard task for it in Africa not only to find a design which will stand up to the normal stamp use, but also to find a design which will stand up to the normal use of the stamp in the hands of the collector.

Still a secret

AND then the stamp of the top right - an attractive design, well coloured, but it was not a secret design, but it was a secret design.

The Artist Cabman

Rise to fame

WHEN I last met Ota Ahmad, about two years ago, he told me he was going to Cairo, where he might find greater possibilities.

Both logic and experience suggest that the proper agency through which the British Government money ought to be invested in an enlarged Colonial Development Fund is the Ministry of Economic Development.

'Bisley' meeting at Rumour

HIGH STANDARD OF SHOOTING

From a Correspondent

THE 1932 Bisley shooting meeting took place at the weekend, the fifth of its kind in the history of the sport in South Africa. It was held on the 19th and 20th of October at the Bisley Range, near Johannesburg. The event was most successful, and it was, however, unfortunately marred by the illness of a number of well-known sportsmen and several of whom were unable to compete. The Bisley Range at Johannesburg is the most interesting of its kind in the world. It is situated on a hillside and is surrounded by a high wall of stone. The range is 1,000 yards long and 100 yards wide. It is the only range in the world where the wind is so steady and so strong. Remembrance Day
To the Editor, "A.A. Standard"
I should be grateful if you will again allow me to contribute the following appeal on behalf of the British Legion Remembrance Day. Dedicated to the memory of those who gave their lives in two world wars, this day is a time when we should pause to think of those who have sacrificed for their country. It is a day when we should be reminded of the sacrifices of those who have gone before us, and of the debt we owe to them. It is a day when we should be inspired to do our duty to our country and to our fellow citizens. Opposed to Kenya Government ARM LABOUR WHICH AROUSSES SUSPICION

A recent meeting of the African District Council was held at Nairobi in which it was agreed that a resolution should be passed to the effect that the Government should be asked to discontinue the employment of Indian labour in the public works department.

Overseas Immigrants for Africans

Overseas immigrants are the probable source of the labour which the Government is seeking to employ in the public works department. It is estimated that the Government is seeking to employ 10,000 Indian labourers in the public works department.

They believed wounded

It is reported that a number of African labourers were wounded in a recent strike in the public works department. The strike was held in support of the demand for the abolition of Indian labour.

Bitter bit-and later identified

A bitter bit-and was later identified as the cause of a recent outbreak of disease among African labourers. The bit-and was found to be contaminated with the disease germs.

Five-acre areas

The public works department has been granted five-acre areas for the purpose of the public works department. These areas are to be used for the purpose of the public works department.

Fewer unemployed

There are fewer unemployed African labourers in the public works department than there were a few months ago. This is due to the fact that the Government has been able to employ more African labourers.

Always Referencing

Always Referencing to the public works department. This is because the public works department is the largest employer of African labourers in Kenya.

HOLIDAY TRAINING IN THE WORLD'S OLDEST SHIP

SIX bells of the morning watch and a stiff, cool breeze blowing in from Spitzbaard. Twelve-year-old Keith Rutherford, of 281 North Lewis Sea Square, has stowed his hammock on the dark main deck of the ancient frigate Fouquieroy and, as the boat's pipe shrills, he trots away to fall in with the rest of the "hands" to swab the upper deck.

During the rest of the year he has learned how to pull a boat on a wheeled dolly and draw up a hammock, green water. Now for a while he will be in the main deck, with the rest of the crew, to learn to swab. However, he is a member of a crew, a part of the "Frigate" which is the oldest British Frigate, built in 1817 just after Trafalgar and still used as a ship.

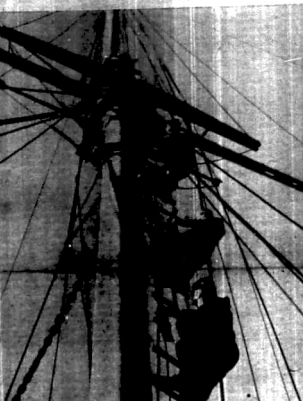

The dunnage and now only her main mast, that being something of a jolly effect. But cannot still grip out of the black and white sun port and hammocks are slung close to rigging on the main deck where a big boy has to keep his head bent to avoid the deck beams. The last thing a boy does at night after the order "Pipe down" is likely to be the creaking of ancient timbers as the ship moves on the tide.

THE boys come from the shore towns, schools and city sea-loving organisations in Britain. They arrive, for a week's holiday course, all the practical instructions which should be given to them at their own homes during the rest of the year. More than that they can receive the atmosphere of the old Navy, the Navy of the period that has become typical in boys' minds by the names Peter Simple and Captain Horatio Hornblower.

The superintendent of the ship is retired Captain R.N. who commanded submarine flotillas during the last war. The instructors are qualified professional sea-faring men who were active officers in the Royal or Merchant Navy. The First Lieutenant of the ship himself received his boy's training in Fouquieroy when she was a full-time training ship for prospectors about to make their careers at sea.

The ship has been described as "a wonder of the world—the last of the frigates left of the Old Navy"—and she is a sight to see in the hands of private individuals who consider that her loss, quite apart from depriving South of a national sea-going museum, would be a national disaster. She was built in Bombay in 1817, of oak, for the East India Company. She was first commissioned in the Royal Navy in the Freetown, a 40-gun

EMBROIDERY IS THE VOGUE FOR DAY AND FOR NIGHT

By Victoria Chappelle

It is a sign of the times that women are turning to flannel of a daring colour to highlight the changes in dress and costume as a mode, although the prevalent trend in next-season's fashions is for numbers in one. A cool lining and a matching handkerchief is a smart — in a glowing and smart — to sport in practically every variety of London Fashion.

The handkerchiefs of the Incorporated Society of London Fashion designers. In a series of articles on fashion and costume, we have seen that the fashioning of handkerchiefs is one of the most interesting and important details of dress-making, and that the handkerchiefs of the past were made in a way that was not only practical but also artistic.

The trend of the 1920s embroidery are now being revived in a new and more elaborate way, and are now being made in a way that is not only practical but also artistic.

There are many reasons why the handkerchiefs of the past were made in a way that was not only practical but also artistic. They were made in a way that was not only practical but also artistic.

CHILDREN ARE THE REAL ORIGINALS

By Jean Freyburg

It has been said that children are the only really original creatures on this earth. A child gives a name to a flower, or a new word in a phrase that it wholly his own and is not something he has heard elsewhere.

The child who called "The Jam" had the same idea. He has named it "The Jam" and it is his own. He has named it "The Jam" and it is his own.

Children are the real originals. They are the ones who give names to things. They are the ones who give names to things.

BEAUTIFUL HOMES OF KENYA
A HOUSE ON LAKE NAIVASHA'S SHORES
By Lesley Clay

STANDING in 500 acres of tree-shaded grounds on the edge of Lake Naivasha is the beautiful home of Mr. and Mrs. G. H. Carrelly. Mr. Carrelly, who has been in Kenya for many years, has built his charming brick-and-timber house, and it was 23 miles from Nairobi. It is a lovely and comfortable home for the happy couple, and the garden which surrounds it is a garden of tropical and red-blossomed plants.

Variety of pets

REMINDERS of an old-fashioned life are first glimpsed from the drive through a wide of the garden. On the wide driveway, a variety of pets, including a dog, a cat, and a rabbit, are seen.

Three cats, a tortoiseshell, a tabby and a grey and white, are seen in the garden. A dog, a cat, and a rabbit are also seen. The garden is a garden of tropical and red-blossomed plants.

Curios

BUILDING was started in 1932 and was completed in 1935. The house is a two-story building with a central hall and a large living room. The garden is a garden of tropical and red-blossomed plants.

Other parts of the world in the Carrelly's extensive garden. There are many trees and plants, and the garden is a garden of tropical and red-blossomed plants.

Carving

THE house is also a fine example of carving. The house is a two-story building with a central hall and a large living room. The garden is a garden of tropical and red-blossomed plants.

FARMERS PUT THEIR VIEWS TO GOVERNOR

Frank discussions on country tour

Mr. Joseph Mat, bank officer and Kikuyu member of the Executive Council of the Government of Kenya, on his annual day of his co-country tour at Nakuru, had his own views frankly and openly to the Governor.
