MR. BEVIN REPLIES TO HIS PARTY CRITICS Division of Europe is Issue At State of the Week

"DREAD IT AND I SHALL FIGHT AGAINST IT"

Renewed Appeal to Russia

Bournemouth, June 13. THE British Foreign Secretary, Mr. Ernest Bevin, told the British Labour Party Conference here yesterday that the restatement of the world is not an easy task.

"It is a problem filled with anxiety on two grounds. One, and the most important, is the recognition that the constituents for whom you are working are not yet born. No step taken now is going to determine what is going to happen to the people in this hall but to the next generation."

"If before I leave this office I can carry world organization a stage further so that it can draw the power from the people and not merely from governments I shall be a very happy man."

"Nothing can contribute so much to the peace of the world as the free expression of the people. What is the duty of a man who is a member of a parliament, a member of a State, a member of a nation, a member of a world?"

"I don't deny you and I have every right to do so. But I do not think it is right to do so. It is not right to do so. It is not right to do so."

Mombasa Proposes Round Table Conference

TO BE ATTENDED BY SECRETARY OF STATE

The Mombasa conference, at which the Colonial Secretary, Mr. George Hall, is invited to take part in the formulation of an acceptable solution to the future action of the administration of common services in East Africa—is the suggestion offered by the committee of Mombasa constituents in a report on the Kenya Elected Members' counter-proposal to non-Parliamentary Paper 101.

The committee, incidentally, does not recommend acceptance of the restrictive proposals, but reaffirms its adherence to the modifications to Paper 101 which it advanced last March. It will be recalled that the principal Mombasa proposal was that composition of a central legislature should be in the ratio of 50 per cent. Europeans, 25 per cent. Indians, 25 per cent. Africans.

After the Committee has reported to the Secretary of State, the Secretary will have to decide whether to refer the matter to the Council of the Empire, or to the Inter-Departmental Committee, or to the Colonial Office. It is probable that the matter will be referred to the Council of the Empire, as this is the only body which has the right to make recommendations to the Secretary of State on matters of this kind.

Proposed New Plan

The Committee does not suggest that it propose to reorganise the Colonial Office. It suggests that a small committee, consisting of the three members of the Committee, should be appointed to consider all suggestions for the future training of the Colonial Civil Service. This committee should be appointed by the Secretary of State, and its members should be chosen from among the members of the Committee who are best qualified to deal with the subject.

The purpose of the first course is to give the candidates a general knowledge of the history and geography of the Empire, and to give them a practical knowledge of the various departments of the Colonial Office. The second course is to give them a practical knowledge of the various departments of the Colonial Office, and to give them a practical knowledge of the various departments of the Colonial Office. The third course is to give them a practical knowledge of the various departments of the Colonial Office, and to give them a practical knowledge of the various departments of the Colonial Office.

"May I suggest that you can win better than that in your little investment (Selected Units)? Then the money you have made on a small investment will give you generous dividends from the steady profits of the great industry of the world, and return you today with safety the 10% or more of annual income tax that you will draw from Selected Units."

To the Editor: "A Standard" (July 13th). I shall be very glad to hear if you will please allow me to make a few remarks on the above subject which has already been in the hands of our readers and which has now been sent to me for mediation in the name of my members.

I appreciate very much the interest which you have taken in the matter and I am glad to see that the Government has decided to hold a Commission to investigate the situation in the World War I. I understand that the Commission will be held in the town of Soroti, Uganda, and that it will be held on the 21st of August, 1944.

I have no objection to the Commission being held in Soroti, and I have no objection to the Commission being held on the 21st of August, 1944. I have, however, a few suggestions which I should like to make to the Government in connection with the Commission.

Firstly, I suggest that the Commission should be held in the town of Soroti, Uganda, and that it should be held on the 21st of August, 1944. I have no objection to this suggestion.

Adventures Of Wartime News Gathering

HOW REUTER KEPT WORLD INFORMED

NEWS—By Quickest Route. How this slogan of Reuters was carried out in six years of war by wireless carrier, pigeon dispatch riders and in many other ways is vividly described in a brochure by Mr. C. J. Chancellor, general manager of Reuters in wartime.

The only time day or night that the news service on the Reuter radio beams ceased was for two or three minutes when airmen gave warning of an impending raid, and the staff acting on instructions for their own safety, transferred to the basement. Once the news that a raid had been sounded was relayed, Reuters could send off a minute-by-minute account of the raid in progress.

CORRESPONDENTS' ESCAPES

Shortly after D Day a Reuter was reported in Normandy met on several occasions by his carrier agents, not because they were carrying the original Reuter but because they were carrying news from the front which had been sent from that time to the news by the quickest means, wireless.

The rule was always to have a correspondent at the scene of action. For the invasion of France this meant as many as 15 unlicensed correspondents in one theatre. As the countries of Europe were liberated Reuter correspondents went in to get the most accurate civilian coverage again.

Brief accounts are given of the adventures of some of the team of correspondents who covered all theatres of war. Three Reuter war correspondents were killed in action, three fell into the hands of the Japanese.

Viet Disasters. What it meant to go down with airborne troops was told to Reuter by Marshall Yarrow, Reuter man with the glider troop, who parachuted on to D-Day in a country of stinking swamps and hidden snipers. "I never had my first-aid kit," he writes. "I never saw a doctor."

Some bad news comes from capture. April, 1940, Reuter war correspondent, Desmond Right, just after he had been captured, was in Gola. After seeing the occupation of the Norwegian coast with enemy troops to the main railway station, he was taken to Stockholm and boarded the last train to Stockholm. His district was one of the worst areas of war correspondent with the British Army.

Land Mine Danger. Those who managed the front lines in London had no less than 400,000 land mines scattered in a mine field. Many times the German radio announced the total destruction of the Reuter headquarters.

Twenty-four hours every day the Reuter service looked into every newspaper office in the United Kingdom—except one, for that matter, the early morning office of April 17, 1941. Then the Reuter service evacuated to the street offices, only because it was considered to do so while the nearest command of a demolition squad was nearby.

Before that brief evacuation, for the last part of the night the Reuter service worked and operated and the rest, carried on in defiance of bullet holes and land mine danger, until the 25 hundred-weight bomb fell.

Prisoners of War. One of the South African Airways four-engine biplanes was shot down in the English Channel and the aircraft was forced to land in Brittany. The aircraft was damaged and the crew was captured. The main purpose of the flight was to survey a new route through the Channel and the greater service is being organized to rescue the crew.

Photo Special Correspondent. Photos June 11. One of the South African Airways four-engine biplanes was shot down in the English Channel and the aircraft was forced to land in Brittany. The aircraft was damaged and the crew was captured. The main purpose of the flight was to survey a new route through the Channel and the greater service is being organized to rescue the crew.

Primitive Methods At Camel Camp

(STANDARD CORRESPONDENT)

The primitive method of production of coffee has a camel camp in a mountain district west of Addis Ababa.

The camel camp is a small settlement of about 200 inhabitants. The method of production is primitive, and the camels are used to transport the coffee beans to the market.

Medical Officer's View. Dr. J. M. Lister, Medical Officer for a long time, had been striving for a long time to improve the health of the camel camp. He had found that the camels were carrying a disease which was spreading to the humans.

Vital Duty. Reuter sends more than 2,000 overseas correspondents with their own eyes. The service goes into every country in the world. Reuter, therefore, it shows a matter of vital national interest to keep the overseas service going without interruption and to see that the press of the world did not lose its link with London.

Zanzibar Inter-School Sports. The annual inter-school sports meet at Zanzibar was held in the city on June 10. The sports were held at the Zanzibar Sports Ground and were attended by over 1,000 spectators.

Aftermath in Britain: THE BRAINS AND BRAUN OF SOCIALISM

(By C. M. ALPORT)

EVERYONE agrees that the difficulties which have befallen the British Government since the outbreak of the war have been the result of a combination of factors. One of the most important of these is the lack of a clear and consistent policy. This is due to the fact that the Government has been divided into two main camps: the "left" and the "right". The "left" camp, which is led by the Labour Party, is in favour of a policy of "socialism". The "right" camp, which is led by the Conservative Party, is in favour of a policy of "capitalism".

The "left" camp has been the dominant force in the Government since the outbreak of the war. It has been responsible for the majority of the Government's policies. These policies have been based on the principle of "socialism". This principle is based on the idea that the state should own and control the means of production and distribution of goods. This is in contrast to the principle of "capitalism", which is based on the idea that the means of production and distribution of goods should be owned and controlled by private individuals.

The "right" camp has been the dominant force in the Government before the outbreak of the war. It has been responsible for the majority of the Government's policies. These policies have been based on the principle of "capitalism". This principle is based on the idea that the means of production and distribution of goods should be owned and controlled by private individuals.

Indian Policeman Was Lying

It is no longer a secret to a police officer in the Indian Police that a "Cameo" in the "Nations" newspaper is a "hoax". The "Nations" newspaper is a well-known newspaper in India. It is known for its sensational and often untrue stories. One of its recent stories was about a "Cameo" in the Indian Police. The story claimed that a policeman in the Indian Police had been caught lying. The story was based on a "hoax" in the "Nations" newspaper.

The French position is that the Italian reparations should be based on the value of the property lost in Italy during the war. It is recalled that until last week the Italian Government had refused to discuss the economic clauses of the Italian peace treaty.
