The up-countryman

The Kenya countryside is over the hill and down through the Rift, by the little Italian church and then on to the café and sheep country, by the lakes with their pink damsons. You enter on straight on to the right or left into land of heat, hills and butter, wool, wheat and barley. It's a land of goodness. You can catch the countryside if you use an Austin Countryman which your Countryman has stilled and power to churn through farm lanes after the tractor have passed. It will carry its people and over 300 lbs. of baggage. Or make two people and sleep as comfort in the Countryman.

At the races, by the polo field, on the Kenya oval or in the town, the Countryman is the car for the fella who wants to look right and feel right.

The Count wants cars £1,160.

Trapped during visit

Mr. Somerset was trapped during a visit to the fort when the tribesmen, armed with rifles and a Bren-type machine-gun supplied by the Yemen, surrounded it. Hostilities in the area spring from the Yemeni claim to sovereignty over Aden Protectorate. There have been many frontier incidents in recent months.

Rapid changes made in two-pronged trade with Africa

2,000-YEAR HERITAGE

TRADE relations between East Africa and Japan date back to the pre-war days. In the years immediately prior to the Second World War there was promise of an expansion in the volume of trade and, in fact, the range of commodities which entered in trade between the two countries was widening.

But the outbreak of the war arrested this development and trade virtually came to a standstill. In the immediate post-war period the recovery of Japan was rendered difficult on account of various domestic problems and the volume of trade suffered a sizeable decline. During this period, therefore, the Japanese prerequisites of production and of trade were the primary prerequisites in reconstructing the war-ravaged economy of Japan.

It is only from June, 1945 onwards when the resulting from special provisions and temporary boom exports, that the Japanese economy achieved a noticeable advance both in its recovery and its growth.

In line with the overall expansion of Japan's foreign trade, the trade with East Africa since 1945 has shown a marked increase. In fact, the trade has been increasing so that exports from Japan to the continent of Africa have now reached an all-time high.

Similarly, imports from East Africa have been increasing in value but the bulk of these imports are now comprising three main categories:

FEW RESTRICTIONS

In view of the fact that some Japanese officials and programs in Africa, trade the country has been creating conditions under which it can enter into mutually advantageous deals with the rest of the world. It is perhaps one of the few countries in the world which, but since the war, has not been subjected to any restrictions on its trade with other countries.

RESOURCES LACKING

Imports going into Japan from East Africa are not automatically approved unless they are approved by the Ministry of Commerce. This is because of the fact that the Japanese Government and the business community of the country are reluctant to import goods from East Africa for fear of the loss of the market.

From the point of view of the Japanese Government, it is a prerequisite to a viable economic recovery that the country should be able to import goods from other countries. In fact, the Japanese Government has been making every effort to increase its exports and the rest of the world.

SWITCH IN MARKET

A benchmark as an increased volume of exports from the pre-war period has been achieved. This is because of the fact that the Japanese Government has been making every effort to increase its exports and the rest of the world.

Japanese trade policy in recent years has been to effect a withdrawal of the import market from the rest of the world. In the last few years, Japan has been increasing its trade with the rest of the world. This is because of the fact that the Japanese Government has been making every effort to increase its exports and the rest of the world.

STEADY EXPANSION

Negotiations with this area were concluded in the Anglo-Japanese Trade Agreement in 1954 which has since been renewed. It is also noted that the British Commonwealth countries should have to a great extent to be a result of the favorable balance prevailing at the conference. In fact, the Japanese Government has been making every effort to increase its exports and the rest of the world.

CO-OPERATION WITH FREE NATIONS BASIS OF FOREIGN POLICY

By AIICHIRO FUJIYAMA
Japanese Foreign Minister

It is a broad dispute that under existing circumstances, where international politics are dominated by power, military weakness is likely. At the same time, in the face of the astounding progress of military science and weapons of mass slaughter, the danger cannot be lessened unless its own security or world stability by force of arms can ensure either.

In the United States and the Soviet Union, for example, judged by the pace of development of military science and productive power in both countries, a position of military superiority gained by either is bound to be surpassed by the other sooner or later.

An endless repetition of this game of outstripping distance and technology is a possibility of paving the way for an East-West summit conference in order to prevent a war such as might destroy mankind.

It would be an exaggeration to say that world peace and stability are being in the balance. We should explore every possibility of paving the way for an East-West summit conference in order to prevent a war such as might destroy mankind.

Population growth puts strain on economy

JAPAN is a nation about two-thirds the size of Korea, but her population is about 30 times as numerous with KOREA 1,000,000. The number of people per square kilometer is 150 compared with 21 in the former Korean Empire. Yet a hundred years ago, under the feudalistic system of the Tokugawa Shogunate, her population was only 30,000,000.

These figures show clearly why Japan cannot produce enough food and raw materials for her needs and why she must import them. The lack of her "hereditary resources" has to be imported. Yet unlike her, her people's day-to-day existence, her economy in order to live, is not dependent on natural resources and standard of living.

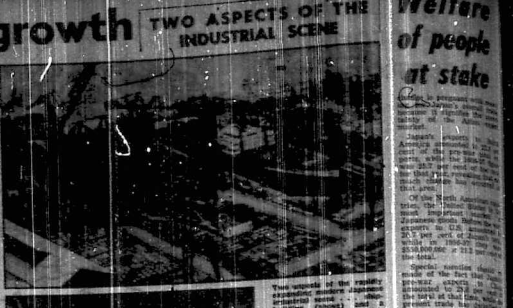

During the fiscal year 1935-36, Japan's total population was 74,000,000. The increase in population was 1,000,000 more than the year before. The increase in population was 1,000,000 more than the year before. The increase in population was 1,000,000 more than the year before.

INCREASE PLANNED
 It is obvious that the country is on year after year with a deficit in her balance of payments.
 If the Japanese economy is to satisfy the ever-increasing population and find employment for the growing industrial nation it must annually increase its output. This economic expansion must run on to accommodate the growing population which is financed by greater exports.

RESERVE IN SHORT
 Japan must import all her clothing requirements of raw cotton and wool and her foodstuffs for fertilizer and all her raw rubber. In addition, the most important raw materials for her industry are 80 per cent of her sugar and 80 per cent of her oil from outside sources.

JAPAN is now 200 million, with a population of 74 million. The two areas combined accounted for 71 per cent of the total population of the world.

TWO ASPECTS OF THE INDUSTRIAL SCENE

The expansion of the Japanese economy has been a steady process since the war. The industrial scene is a busy one with many new factories and modern machinery.

Changes in distribution of exports
 Government has been making changes in the distribution of exports to meet the needs of the world market. The government has been making changes in the distribution of exports to meet the needs of the world market.

AMERICAN TOTAL
 There has been, however, a noticeable change in the distribution of these exports. Japan's exports to Asia have increased, while her exports to Europe and America have decreased.

SHARP DROP
 Japan's economy naturally took a sharp downward slide immediately following her defeat in the war and the stoppage of her raw materials brought in by the United States, of course, besides the late imports from that country.

Welfare of people at stake

Japan's economic situation is a delicate one. The welfare of her people is at stake. The government must take steps to improve the living standards of her citizens.

Special attention must be given to the needs of the poor. The government must take steps to improve the living standards of her citizens.

Kenya exports to Japan rose by 250 p.c. in year

In their last financial year at the moment in progress in London, the British and East African authorities to decide the future position.

During the last three years the trading and value of exports between Japan and the East African territories has been steadily expanding. Total exports from East Africa to Japan were valued at £2,218,290 in 1956, compared with £1,438,075 in 1955 and £1,194,249 in 1954.

This figure was nearly double of the following year when exports stood at £439,000. In 1957 exports increased still further.

It is significant to note that in 1957 Japan received nearly double the value of exports from East Africa than in 1956, whereas only the previous year the reciprocal trade.

In actual terms this represents an increase of 250 per cent. between 1955 and 1956, and it may be assumed that the increase in 1957 will be of a similar order.

This consistent increase in East African exports to Japan is an extremely encouraging trend and from present indications it may be expected that it will be kept up in 1958 and the years to come.

Locally, however, it has been the cotton trade with East Africa that has shown a most marked increase. In 1957 Japan imported a value of £1,088,690 worth of cotton from East Africa, compared with £89,667 in 1956 and £40,449 in 1955.

The value of raw cotton exports to Japan from East Africa rose by 250 per cent. in 1956, compared with 1955, and by 1957 it had risen to £1,088,690, compared with £89,667 in 1956 and £40,449 in 1955.

The increase shows a 250 per cent. increase in exports from Kenya and a 400 per cent. increase in exports from Tanganyika.

Other important items of exports to Japan from East Africa are iron and steel, aluminium, tin, copper, zinc, lead, zinc, tin, and other metals.

The increase in exports to Japan from East Africa is a most encouraging trend and from present indications it may be expected that it will be kept up in 1958 and the years to come.

A preliminary first study of Mr. Pugh shows that the majority of his findings are in line with the

HIGHER WAGES END DUMPING OVERSEAS

IMPORT POLICY

Japan's import policy relating to East Africa is guided mainly by the economic approval system in fact it would be appropriate to mention that Japan has been particularly anxious to gain increased support in the South African continent in her African policy. The Japanese Government estimated that in 1937 the total value of Japanese exports to East Africa was 10,000,000 Yen, as against 8,000,000 Yen in 1936. This increase is due to the fact that the Japanese Government for the first time in 1937, after the outbreak of the Sino-Japanese war, has decided to pursue a policy of open trade relations with East African Governments.

HEALTHY PRECEDENT

An attempt is made here to re-examine the policy of Japan of Africa, particularly in relation to the F.I.C.E.A. area, and other areas of the African continent. In the present circumstances, the present of emergency imports from Japan are, however, the subject of a separate arrangement.

The Japanese Government is not in a position to refuse to import goods from Japan which are essential to the life of the F.I.C.E.A. area, and other areas of the African continent. In the present circumstances, the present of emergency imports from Japan are, however, the subject of a separate arrangement.

After all, when the bulk of Japanese goods to East Africa are in the hands of the F.I.C.E.A. area, and other areas of the African continent, it is in the interests of the F.I.C.E.A. area, and other areas of the African continent, to have a healthy precedent with regard to further relaxation in the F.I.C.E.A. area, and other areas of the African continent.

Also, most of the goods which are imported from East Africa are in the hands of the F.I.C.E.A. area, and other areas of the African continent, it is in the interests of the F.I.C.E.A. area, and other areas of the African continent, to have a healthy precedent with regard to further relaxation in the F.I.C.E.A. area, and other areas of the African continent.

What is rather disturbing is that these goods are not being used in the way in which they were intended to be used. This is a matter which is of great concern to the Japanese Government, and it is a matter which is of great concern to the Japanese Government.

Temperament in golf can be a winning factor

TEMPERAMENT GOLF CORRESPONDENT
 Temperament may be described as "a characteristic or special quality of mind permanently affecting the individual." While the application of this definition to a golfer is a somewhat hazy one, it is a fact that a golfer's temperament can be a winning factor. As when the strain is on, but the mind is clear, the body is strong, and the spirit is unshakable. Next time you find yourself up against it, try consciously to resist your temperamental urges. Before you start your backswing, take a few deep breaths, let the heat build up, and then let it go.

Said to be best test
 It is often said that the best test of a good temperament is the ability to hold a short putt under pressure. But is one who drives his tee shot to the hole, who lands his ball on the green, who sinks his putt, who wins the match, who is the best? The answer is: the one who can hold a short putt under pressure.

Over a million children are particularly interested in the stories I brought you about the King's new children's magazine.

I had never done so well in my life. I had no intention of leaving my standards for anything less than the best.

Our new magazine is a large book in itself. It contains a lot of interesting stories, and a lot of beautiful pictures. It is a real treat for the young people who read it.

LISTERINE for QUICK relief

Directly you feel a cold coming on, use Listerine. In the one minute it takes this little green liquid to reach the parts which are the seat of an acute misery when you have a cold.

Then show that Listerine reduces your pain and soothes your throat as much as 40-75 percent. Listerine Antiseptic kills such germs as colds and coughs by striking with Listerine every day.

Ministers' control at first: Assurance on advertising

GOVERNMENT proposals for the provision of an improved and extended broadcasting service in Kenya when the agreement with Cable and Wireless, Ltd. ends in September next year were approved by Kenya Legislative Council last night.

The plans, which will cost about £290,000 in capital expenditure and will entail recurrent expenditure of £290,000 a year, were detailed in a Specialized Paper published earlier this month.

During the adoption of the Specialized Paper in the Council, the Chief Secretary, Mr. Coates, said that in the Kenya Broadcasting Commission's report it was recommended that at some specified time there should be a move towards an independent corporation.

Responsible to Council

The Government considered that, in the first place, broadcasting should be under a Director responsible to the minister who in turn, would provide to the Legislative Council. A proposed scheme would provide a far better broadcasting service for people of all races throughout Kenya.

He gave an assurance that the Government had not rejected completely advertising as a means for raising funds. From the financial point of view, it would only be too glad to have a certain amount of advertising to help with recurrent expenditure.

One of the African Elected Members of the Council said:

"I hope that the new organization would provide a realistic and objective interpretation of news in the light of the political situation of the African Broadcasting Service had served Kenya so well in the past."

The Government proposal that the Specialized Paper on broadcasting should be approved was put forward by Mr. Coates, Chief Secretary. He said that the proposed Chief Executive Officer would go with the drawing up of the plans. The Government had also announced that it would be responsible for the organization of the service.

MUCH has been said about the Leticion Plan and the Kenyan Government. For one, have considered both the plans and the constitution very carefully and decided to support my view in your paper.

KAPALA UNLUCKY AT ARUSHA

Out of the Enterprise Cap by 1-point margin

From an Arusha Correspondent

Arusha yesterday was fast, open Rugby at Marston, to be eliminated from the Kagera Province by a single point margin in the Province's second goal two penalty goals and a try) to goal from near the touchline and a drop goal.

The Province's forwards took the advantage to both the tight and the loose and during the first half scored the opening goal (Olemiss) from his own over the line. (60)

Province were still stabilizing work but the Kagera defence appeared to be impenetrable and the best some came when an Arusha player was penalized for an infringement. Letters to the Editor

REVISE THE SPEED LIMITS

I ENDSURE the plea of Mr. J. GILB of the I.C.E.A. in a column of papers, is one of the most practical suggestions made in the course of more than 10 years of experience in the East African States. I find that in most of the States in the U.K. in the 1930's it may be put down that the speed limit was raised from 20 to 30 m.p.h. and a mile was saved on the road. It is suggested that a revision of protective tariff laws is a more practical suggestion. It is a suggestion that has been made by the British Government, and it is a suggestion that has been made by the East African States. It is a suggestion that has been made by the British Government, and it is a suggestion that has been made by the East African States.
