Chamberlain's Appeal

The Editor of "East Africa"

I have read with interest your editorial "All in the Same Boat" of June 8th... I have been the representative of U.K. on the Advisory Committee on Native Education since 1925...

It is very hard to appreciate the importance of the part to be played by missions in the development of Africa... I have the highest respect for the Government in educational matters...

It is not surprising that you should say that we are all working for the same fundamental cause... It is an obvious thing to say that we are all working for the same fundamental cause...

Our judgment according to different sets of standards... But when the main purpose of the Government in the field of education is to help the people to help themselves...

I have written to you about co-operation between missions and Governments... We are ready to do our part to the best of our ability... We will continue to work as efficient citizens...

The kind of help that would be of more value than any other... I have expressed a point of view which may perhaps be new to some of your readers...

Yours faithfully, Broomfield, Canon and Churchman, Tanganyika District, Zanzibar.

Some Statements Worth Noting

In quick counting and growth, the lion is more than the eagle of the lion and the eagle. —Major W. R. Foy, writing in Ideas.

I believe our annual wireless lecture of the highest in the world. —K. Adama, writing in Notes to the Transvaal Post.

Shining in the East is the only humanity still exists. —Major The Hon. G. B. Roberts, Eustace, addressing the Kenia Legislative Council.

Any chap can live alone in the bush, but it needs a shepherd to live peacefully with his companion for any length of time in the great loneliness of Africa. —"Safari Sam," by Gordon Kabelece.

The best thing that the Unionist Party will do returned to power will be to amalgamate with Northern Rhodesia and to give the mineral rights of that territory. —Mr. J. W. Keller, at an election meeting in Bulawayo.

A large number of Christians at Eikoma and Chizumbi have preferred to be put out of the Church rather than to go to the forbidden medicine of the Mchoko witchdoctors. —H. C. writing in The Nyasaland Diocesan Chronicle.

Sir Andrew Balfour ranks Sir Manson as the father of tropical medicine, as the father of hygiene in the tropics. —Dr. R. R. Sefton, Major Health Officer, Tanganyika Territory, in a paper read at the I.M.A. ordinary meeting in Nairobi.

Amalgamation of the two Rhodesias is not a live question at present, but it will come in time, and it is definitely wrong to hinder its eventual accomplishment. —The Governor of Southern Rhodesia (Sir Cecil Rhodes), speaking in Qu'Que.

The Native Administrators, in most cases, emerged from 1932 financially stronger than at the beginning of the year, and it has been possible to restore during 1932 a part of the previous heavy reduction in salaries. —From the Annual Report for Tanganyika Territory, 1932.

The Government is prepared to support the limit of its capacity any industry which is a suggestion is considered to be likely to be successful and of permanent advantage to the territory. —The Chief Minister, speaking in the Northern Rhodesia Legislative Council.

This is a truly simple, but a wise, approach to unanimity among the people here, and, if elected, and that cannot be regarded as otherwise than a far-sighted situation in respect of a question of the importance of amalgamation. —From a leading article in The Bulawayo Chronicle.

The main of the preventive and curative sides of the Medical Service in Kenya is actually an operation, and although it has been precipitated by economic conditions, it marks a stage in the evolution of the Service which has long been contemplated by those responsible for medical policy. —The East African Medical Journal.

The consensus of opinion among medical practitioners who have spent many years in the country is that the epidemic prophylaxis has proved its worth, but in view of the continued and increasing toll exacted by malaria, including malarial fever, the epidemic source of the malarial parasite is Sir D. Knighton, The Proceedings of the Society of Northern Rhodesia, Vol. 1, 1932, p. 120.

George Beresford Craddock, a chemist manager in East Africa since 1906, was of the Uganda Company, Ltd., was President of the Uganda Chamber of Commerce in 1932 and 1933, President of the Uganda Cotton Association in 1933, a member from its inception of the Government Committee for Native Agricultural Production, and a member of the Committee appointed in 1933 to investigate the Cotton Ordinance. Thus he has borne his full share of public work in the country of his adoption.

He is a good amateur, particularly a keen and able musician and a well-known amateur composer, who will be heard in Nairobi in the near future. He is keen on tennis and before the War played a great deal of hockey and "rugger." Among the War he served with the Royal Garrison Artillery, was invalided out of the "Gummers," and was awarded a 57th Lieutenant on the Chemical Warfare Service.

After demobilisation he joined as Chemical Director the largest Dundee company of the Industries of Scotland, which he visited periodically in the U.S.A., Canada, and Mexico. He has also travelled in South Africa and the Far East. Then for two years he was based in India at the Bikaner Pure Petroleum Company, resigning from that office to accept in the Sales Department of the newly-created Imperial Chemical Industries. He combines high technical qualifications with a business experience which has proved both astute and sound.

SOCIALISM'S THREAT TO THE COLONIES

Considered Theories of Africa

COMMENT is made in the Matters of Moment section of Problems of a Socialist Colonialism by Sir Stafford Cripps and other contributors. Here we deal with the Colonial aspect, which suffered by contrast with the Socialist aspect of T. T. T. Rabbin, a well-known lecturer on the working class audiences. He admits that the British Empire offers us no practical foundation for the building of a Socialist Commonwealth, but there is quite a lot of hope for us. He nevertheless, that should not lead us to ignore the fact that the Labour Party aims at building the Socialist Commonwealth on the ruins of the British Empire and that demolition always precedes rebuilding.

Mr. Horrabin rules out a socialised British Empire as impossible, and adds, somewhat optimistically, that "the Empire—of part of it—will still be in being when the power of capitalism is broken in England" and on this supposition he thinks that his Party will inherit certain responsibilities which it cannot shirk. As "Capitalism to-day bases its principal policy on a theory of 'life development', it is obvious that there can be no sort of continuity between capitalist and socialist policy on the Empire. The strange case of many of the ideals aimed at by Mr. Horrabin are precisely those for which capitalist Britain is working. He is creating his opponents' thunder, in fact, with the difference that he gives no clue as to where he would find the money for the pursuit of these aims.

A "socialist" Government would start with a flat denial of the right of any British Government to possess overseas territories without regard to the desires of the inhabitants. We should at once begin to assist the Native Africans both with the practical and economic administration of their territories, and to give them a practical voice in the central legislative territory.

"We should cancel whatever surplus was produced and forego it for financing a system of education, freedom of any religious propaganda, which would aim at fitting the people for self-government. Such education would not aim at turning Africans into bad imitations of Europeans. It would take the best that is in African culture and combine it with a knowledge of European science on the basis of an education fitted to enable all people to stand as equals with Europeans.

This last seems rather contradictory to a remark about avoiding "imitation Europeanism" but perhaps this is clear to Mr. Horrabin, who finally does not want to offer us a kind of stewardship to "the predominantly capitalist League of Nations" but would do so gradually to socialist Internationalism. He does not seem to go to the lengths that he would wish to go to in the matter of religion, but that the golden rule is to have that he would inherit; for the complement of the fee is beneficiary, and if he had his own, there would be no beneficiaries in Africa. Africans have a heritage as well as Englishmen, and it is less that heritage is freedom from political and religious, such as those. Who are we to over-suecessors on them?

A GOOD YARN WITH A DISTINCT FLAVOUR

THE Wings of the Moon by Mr. C. J. Stoneham (No. 38) is a sequel to Kings of the Jungle. The reader is in no way handicapped by not having read the earlier work.

Mr. Stoneham believes that lions are not the enemy of man but tolerant and even well disposed. It is not conceivable that man might be accepted as a friend. It is a plausible theory, and in the story he tells how two lion friends with a really lovable lonely old lioness, and how, after she gets a son, the lioness and had good hunting with him and his pack. The author shows much knowledge and skill in the greater use of lion psychology. His local colour is good, and the story is so full of thrills that it wants to be read in a sitting.

But as it necessary for the sake of a plot to have as the white members of the cast those extraordinary features so common in African fiction and so unknown in real life, who sink to unappealing personalities, then living in the wilds? I have known old ivory hunters, cattle dealers and rubber traders, and I have stayed with Portuguese prize owners, but nowhere in Eastern Africa have I even heard of any who sank to anything approaching the level of Da Costa and Gordon Grant. To many readers it is Kaspera, and like with Dingo, that will seem so incredible, but to be man who knows Africa, who knew it in the old lawless days, these derided whites are more than possible and unnecessary.

This is a good yarn all the same, and Dingo is a wonderful character. Only hope that some day Mr. Stoneham will try again without pandering to a certain public by introducing this fictitious element of beastliness. He emphasises how the misconceptions of the majority of the lion has been ingrained and perpetuated by the writings we have read from childhood. We should not help to perpetuate a belief in a type of white man that Africa never knew.

EAST AFRICA IN THE PRESS

THE GREETING OF THE CHIMPANZEE

SIR HENRIetta BELL, the former Governor of Uganda, who is an ardent admirer of Miss Jim, has written most entertainingly to The Times, suggesting that the Eastist claim that their name is derived from the 'Ro' is may be an index statement of the fact, she says:—

When I had taken the chair of Uganda, only twenty-five years ago, the order of one of the kingdoms of that Province, Mityima in Toro, known that I was making a full collection of wild animals, at Government House kindly sent me a very fine full grown chimpanzee. The poor fellow had been captured in the dense forests bordering on the Congo and had started on his fourteen day journey to Entebbe in a wicker cage carried by porters. He was very fat and showed great fierceness of temper, and his appearance was such that he had soon made a wreck of his cage.

The porters, who were much afraid of him, had finally after the unfortunate creature to a pole to which, as by the time he reached me, he was a mass of sores and cuts. His temper had completely been ruined, and after being placed in the large cage which had been prepared for him he roared with rage almost continuously. The sight of a Native, especially infuriated that many were placed before he could tolerate the noise of a gun.

It only takes me to write about a chimpanzee in the collection is remarkable, not only in regard to its nature, but also in its habits. It is very intelligent, and it is very cunning. It will advance towards me, uttering a soft, low cry, and when I approach it, it will raise its head in the most aggressive manner, and will often utter a loud, hoarse cry, which is a warning to me to keep away.

It is very curious to find that the chimpanzee is so far from being a savage, as is often said, that it is very friendly to man, and will often come to the door of its cage to see me, and will often come to the door of its cage to see me, and will often come to the door of its cage to see me.

CRITICISM OF SETTLER LEADERS

The new Northern Rhodesian emergency constitution, which was drawn up by the elected members to replace the threatened emergency in poll tax, has apparently not met with the approval of all the constituents. For instance, Mr. Marriot of Broken Hills, says in a letter of disagreement to The Times, Sept. 11th:—

Without hesitation I say that the appointment of persons to an advisory committee, the present members in the Chamber of Commerce, who have been present by the Government, and who have been resisted by every means in their power, of the elected members of the group, is a most serious matter. We now have a situation which seems to me to be a most serious one, and I am sure that the Government will be forced to take steps to remedy the situation.

It is very curious to find that the chimpanzee is so far from being a savage, as is often said, that it is very friendly to man, and will often come to the door of its cage to see me, and will often come to the door of its cage to see me, and will often come to the door of its cage to see me.

Colonel J. A. Maxwell, General Manager of the East Africa Railways, is quoted by Central African of Cape Town, who is hereby stated that the railway is to be built to the Congo.

The railway is an interesting country, but it is very difficult to introduce English capital. It has been built by the Government, and it is very difficult to introduce English capital.

ANOTHER LIBEL ON EAST AFRICA

East, East and West is the title of a little tract like the one in every one news-papers. When a sub-editor in a newspaper badly, we try to be tolerant; but when an editor, the contributor of a feature article, who is naturally regarded as an authority, confuses East with East Africa, it is time for us to give notice.

The Birmingham Post has published a tele-gram, 'Wage Locked', which is a libel on East Africa, and is a libel on East Africa, and is a libel on East Africa. It is a libel on East Africa, and is a libel on East Africa.

The Birmingham Post has published a tele-gram, 'Wage Locked', which is a libel on East Africa, and is a libel on East Africa, and is a libel on East Africa. It is a libel on East Africa, and is a libel on East Africa.

Invalids and delicate children thrive on VIROL

Virol contains the vitamins, either well-known or important nutritive elements, in a perfectly balanced form which can be easily absorbed by the most delicate digestions. Thus, for 10 years Virol has been the means of saving the lives of delicate infants, delicate children and invalids.

In cases of illness or debility due to heat, Virol is specially valuable for its power to increase strength and vitality.

For Nerves and Sleeplessness

Virol & Milk, a combination of Virol and pure full-cream Devonshire milk, is by far the most successful food for exhausted nerves. No added sugar required—simply add hot water to the golden powder.

WEST AFRICAN MARKET REPORTS

Product markets have been generally steady recently, with wheat brokers making a distinction in price between German and French wheat. The London market is a little firmer for the Brazils, but not the Argentine, which is quoting at 360/- for the Salamat, 350/- for the Santa Ana, and 340/- for the Santa Rosa. The London market for the Brazils is 340/- for the Salamat, 330/- for the Santa Ana, and 320/- for the Santa Rosa. The London market for the Argentine is 320/- for the Salamat, 310/- for the Santa Ana, and 300/- for the Santa Rosa.

Cotton—East African rather poor, quotations being 40/- to 42/- per 50 lbs. and 38/- to 40/- per 100 lbs. The London market is 40/- for the 100 lb. weight and 38/- for the 50 lb. weight. The London market for the 100 lb. weight is 40/- and for the 50 lb. weight is 38/-.

CREATING TRADE IN AFRICA

The idea we referred to in the last issue of the magazine is put into practice by the Kenya General Mining Co., Ltd. in the form of a "Travelling Shop". The idea is to put into circulation a large quantity of goods, such as flour, sugar, and other necessities, to create a trade in the interior of the colony.

The idea is to put into circulation a large quantity of goods, such as flour, sugar, and other necessities, to create a trade in the interior of the colony. This is done by distributing goods to various points in the interior and allowing them to be sold at a profit.

Adaptation of the above idea to local conditions would be a necessary step in putting the local products in a form which would be acceptable to the general public. This would involve the creation of a market for the products and the establishment of a system of distribution.

OPENINGS FOR ENGINEERING WORK

An interesting article on openings for trade in East Africa is published in The Engineer.

The article discusses the need for engineering work in the region and the potential for growth in this sector. It highlights the importance of infrastructure development and the role of engineering in creating a more modern economy.

The article also mentions the need for skilled labor and the importance of training in engineering. It suggests that the government and private industry should work together to create opportunities for young engineers.

Kenya Gold Mining Undertaker Ltd.

At the annual meeting of the Kenya General Mining Co., Ltd., Mr. J. G. Cole, the chairman, announced that a lease for gold mining has been granted for the area having the potential for large quantities of gold.

New Rhodesian Aviation Company

East Africa learns that a new aviation company is to be formed in Southern Rhodesia to take over the air services between Bulawayo and Salisbury. The company is expected to start operations soon.

EAST AFRICAN RAILS

The East African Railways and Harbours Commission has announced that it is considering the possibility of extending the railway network to other parts of the region. This would include the construction of new lines and the improvement of existing ones.

KENYA

Britain's most attractive colony for settlement

A Home in Kenya

Kenya is the ideal place for the settlement of those with the right men who are contemptuous of making a dull and unexciting life in any "civilized" country. The advantages offered are:

- Healthy climate
- Seasonal variation in the light variation
- Reasonable living costs
- Good social amenities
- Good schools

From all respects, Kenya is the best place for the hard-working pioneer settler with a wide range of opportunities. The climate and general conditions are exceptionally favourable to the production of Coffee, Tea, Wheat and Cereals, fruit growing, sugar and stock raising. The Government and the Kenya Airways facilities leave nothing to be desired.

The opportunity is waiting for any pioneer settler or investor with a wide range of pensionable and who is interested in public and social work, and in the settlement of his family, and who is desirous of his retirement, either as a member of an independent business or as a public servant.

SPORT and TRAVEL

Kenya is a country which can be enjoyed by all. The climate is the same in all parts and the country is so beautiful that it is a pleasure to visit it. The Government and the Kenya Airways facilities leave nothing to be desired.

The Government and the Kenya Airways facilities leave nothing to be desired. The Government and the Kenya Airways facilities leave nothing to be desired.

MANDATES COMMISSION AND CLOSER UNION

The thorny problem of a lingua franca has come to the fore in Nyasaland, the Government of which has decided, after careful consideration, to encourage the Chinyanja as the official language of the Protectorate. It is henceforth to be a necessary qualification for admission to the Native Civil Service, and after 1934 the teaching of the language will be one of the conditions to be fulfilled before a candidate is paid to a mission school. As was to be expected, the decision has met with considerable opposition. The Rev. W. P. Young, for instance, a nominated member of the Legislative Council, has pointed out that Chitumbuka in his part of the country has survived the African invasion and has displaced that language; he also asserted that in only ten years' endeavour to encourage Chinyanja has proved a failure, and that its compulsory adoption would cut off the natives' very life. The Times also strongly object, and consequently the local newspaper suggests that there might be less likelihood of tribal discontent if English were introduced. It is, indeed, a very difficult problem, the principal aspects of which concern all the East African Dependencies. All the numerous dialects can obviously not be preserved, for they are an unbearable drag on education. English, with all respect to our contemporary, is impracticable, the language differences being too great for mass assimilation. On the other hand, the adoption of a language as a lingua franca naturally arouses tribal (national) feelings of great depth, which should not be ignored unless our oft-voiced wish to respect native customs is to be given the lie for language. The all-wise notion of a lingua franca is part of the fabric, connected with the radical idea that the earth—the part of it that matters, home—is peopled by the living and the dead. Thus to impose the language of a hostile tribe is sacrilege.

In Uganda, where this question has recently been fought out, there was much more opposition to the proposal to introduce Luganda into the primary schools than in the teaching of Swahili. Luganda was considered as it was not a lingua franca in question, but the official language of the nation, and the official language of Swahili has been adopted as the secondary language for all schools. In the Education Report for 1932 we read: "A final settlement of the long drawn out controversy on the medium of instruction has been attained. The local vernaculars to be used as a medium for instruction in elementary schools for all subjects except arithmetic, which is to be taught in Swahili outside Uganda, and Lugoga, which is also a lingua franca since they rapidly, and is easily learned by all the African tribes, and it can be read and thoroughly understood after a month's study, whereas it would require at least six years to understand a book of the same difficulty in English. It is difficult to understand how one could hope to develop an African system of education with English as the medium of instruction." It is by no means certain that rapidly improving communication may not take Swahili even into Nyasaland and Northern Rhodesia in the next ten or twenty years. Meanwhile there is a growing realisation that the objection to the forced adoption of a neighbouring dialect is not merely sentimental but carries with it the danger, at times, of the whole structure of Native Education being to be incurred until education itself is a plain and development rendered it impossible.

Once more a trial of lawless for acts resulting in the death of persons caused of witchcraft incenses public attention on the question of our administration in East Africa. HOW LONG? On the subject of the law on this subject. On the subject of trial and conviction of seventy-one Natives at Mwanza we must defer judgment until details are available, but we seize the opportunity to return to our suggestion that our law needs drastic alteration. These sensational cases differ in no way from the daily occurrences of witch-accusations, the large majority of which are never brought to the administration, and those that do come into court are generally in out-of-the-way places devoid of newspaper representation or lack the news value that ensures extensive cables and resultant headlines. Occasionally, however, a case assumes such proportions that it does attract notice, and for this we can be grateful because nothing but publicity will ensure a certain miscarriage of justice. If the cry goes up: "How long? how long will we continue to sanction the inhuman Shikwa by our codes and standards in such matters, punishing them or taking the only course open to them to rid themselves of what they consider a terror beyond our comprehension and an anti-social menace—the answer is quite clear. So long as the Colonial Office and the Governments of our East African territories are guided in these matters solely by the Law Officers, who are inevitably so prejudiced in favour of our law that they cannot see its African justice, nor appreciate the fact that the injustice is working directly against ourselves and against any genuine co-operation between Africans and governed, we are bound to present the success of Indirect Rule. It is high time for the Imperial Government to rise above prejudice, to get unbiased assistance in devising a law that will be based on a living ground and will be just and sympathetic to the African shadow that darkens the African's life from birth to death. Africa is not free so long as an error exists, and our present attitude towards her of false pride is a denial that we mean to liberate her. We shall pay lip service

Time was when jokes were made about the British in Africa's impatience motto. "Justice is slow, but it comes." The law is the best thing that it should be changed. IMAGINATION, PATIENCE, AND FORESIGHT. A little done so much to do. The Annual Report for 1932 of the Forest Department of Uganda has at its head a quotation from a speech by His Majesty the King in 1920: "It is a peculiar difficulty of forestry that when a man has more imagination, more patience, and more foresight than any other industry, it is realised that the generation of trees or trees is all things in the world. It is the case of these qualities, in the forest, that is the most important. It is not so much how essential the three virtues of imagination, patience, and foresight are in Native administration, but that the man who has the ruler can dream dreams, he will not have the patience to see the day with the ruler, which is a completely different approach to the subject, and to contend with Africa is a year in gear can be needed the patience of the Forest Officer, for the Government needs a vision. It were better than the Shikwa virtues were ascribed to the ruler, a Shikwa homo, or indeed, where the ruler is working at the evolution of the state. Those who say so working, and especially the young men and women who are beginning to work in Africa will at least do well to inscribe them in their hearts."

EAST AFRICA

The Rev. G. J. Stander, of Barbican, was recently motoring through the National Park with a quantity of meat tied to his car. When he began to follow his car, and the meat started to tear the paper off the car, Stander was able to accelerate and get away.

We regret to learn of the death last week of Mr. H. G. B. Morris, formerly District Officer, Superintendent of the Tanganyika Railways who came home on retirement a few years ago. He had served in the Gold Coast Colony and Nigeria for many years before coming to Tanganyika.

The official life of Sir H. H. Stander, the African explorer, being written by Mrs. Cecil Cook and will be published shortly. Among the hitherto unpublished material in the work will be the correspondence of King Leopold of the Belgians, throwing fresh light on the relations between the Belgian Congo.

Mr. Bartholomew, formerly Captain of the ship of Durham, is forming a modified farm in Kenya, which is operating over the white Colony. Last year seventy-two hives were established and a batch of 60 operation through a central headquarters, as in the English conditions, and rapidly to improve them.

We greatly regret to record the death of Esther Wolters, of the Rubira Roman Catholic Mission, near Kampala, who died of plague contracted when administering the Last Sacrament to a number of Natives suffering from the disease. She was sixty years of age and had spent thirty years as a missionary in East Africa.

Last week we reported to the arrival in the country from Kampala of Captain Walter Graham M.P.E. We now learn with deep regret of his death in Glasgow a few days later, following an aneurism. He had been for many years in East Africa and for the last twenty-five years had been at plants in the Eastern Province of East Africa.

Mr. Colin Carothers, Director Kenya Medical Service, of Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Carothers, of the Beckingham, and Miss Joan Baghall, daughter of the late Mr. John Baghall and Dr. Mrs. Baghall, Bexhill, in Essex, were married at London last week. They afterwards left for their honeymoon in the East and will leave for Kenya in November.

Miss Fuller was fishing in the Aranyu River, near Mong New, in the Hunan province when she heard what she thought to be the stampede of a herd of buffalo. She went upstream, she saw five buffalo stampeding down a gorge, leaving her and the other anglers, and she saw another party as the water came down. She heard that its original lead.

Mrs. Chad Norris, the wife of the late Mr. Norman Norris, a Rhodesian M.P., was badly bitten recently when she was walking in a park with a tame monkey. Luckily, Mr. Norris was at hand and was able to rush her to the hospital in Brook Hill, where she was given injections. The animal was destroyed and the brain sent away for examination.

We regret to learn of the death in this country of Mr. C. G. Wallis Ross, who was at one time Resident in Mwanza, and who after he retired joined Mr. Alex. Dou in the tobacco, and Ross developed tobacco estates at Cholo, Blantyre, and Lilongwe. Although he left the Protectorate some three years ago he never ceased to take a deep interest in its progress.

Lieutenant Colonel Arthur Stephenson, C.M.G., D.S.O., M.C., and Mr. Stewart Carpenter have been appointed members of the Vidua Road Board. Prior to his splendid war career, Colonel Stephenson was in the Postal Department of Northern Rhodesia, and after the war became Commandant of the Police, but relinquishing which post he was, for some time, the head of the Native Labour Organisation.

Outward passengers by yesterday's air mail included Mr. P. R. Morgan, Mr. Housstians, Brindisi to Juba, Mr. Adams, Eirely, Paris to Juba; Mr. Higgins, London to Paris; Mr. M. Lavington, London to Kisumu; Mr. R. C. Ford, London to Nairobi; Mrs. Hudson, and Mr. South, London to Mombasa; Mrs. and Mr. South, Brindisi to Salisbury, onward passengers on Saturday included Mr. Vipingo, Mrs. Bower, and Mr. Walker, from Salisbury; Mr. Holliday, from Brooker Hill; and Mr. Nathan, from Isarmitia.

An exclusive announcement by East Africa, E.R.H. the Duke and Duchess of Abrant are to be entertained in November by the African Society at Claridge's Hotel in H.W. The Prince of Wales, Patron of the Society, will be present and H.E. the Belgian Ambassador and the Secretary of State for the Colonies will be among the Society's guests. The Duchess, the President, will preside. Early application for tickets should be made to the Secretary of the Society at the Imperial Institute, South Kensington, S.W.7. CATTLE POLICY IN KENYA COLONY

An Appeal to the Elected Members

To the Editor of "East Africa"

SIR, Now that the agitation question has been settled, in any rate in the immediate future, it would seem that the elected members will devote their energies chiefly to the economic side of affairs, as they tend to do at the time of an election.

Perhaps the most serious matter, and one which appears to be receiving less attention than it deserves, is that of cattle policy. Either as a branch of the central industry of a highly advanced farming district, or as a branch of any area which is suitable should be made safe for high grade of breeding cattle without delay. Where the majority of farmers wish their districts to become centres, there should be facilities for giving effect to their wishes and security in this matter should be given for at least five years, if not ten.

May I suggest that the risk of creating a precedent, this matter should be considered as a single issue, and not as a subject of other matters with any other of them. There is no reason whatever why attention should be fixed up for the new Resident's Native Labourers Ordinance.

I am, Sir, yours faithfully,

SERPENT PSYCHOLOGY

Views of an Expert.

To the Editor of "East Africa"

SIR, In reply to the request of "Rufiji" contained in your issue of August 1st, I am glad to endorse the one view which holds with regard to snakes, i.e. an immediate treatment that the majority of cases of snake-bite result from persons interfering with snakes—usually by attacking them. Unless startled or menaced, African snakes, with the exception of the mamba, only do not do harm, and all possible speed from the presence of their enemy man.

The experiences related by "Rufiji" are entirely credible. The only extraordinary incident in the free-snake incident was the cobra which was displayed. I am at a loss to explain the slapping of the shirt by the own suggestion of the snake, all is more probable. I think that the cobra was probably one of the harmless "spotted snakes" of the species Chlorophis, if however there were any specklings upon it, then a spotted wood snake (Echis planiceps). The other alternatives would be the tree cobra (Dendroaspis) or the baslang (Bispheoides) but if the latter "Rufiji" would probably have remarked on the very oblique nature of the scapular.

The lead-colored black mamba, which he understood during the attack, was almost certainly a spitting cobra (Naja nigricollis). I could relate an even more astounding exhibition of tolerance on the part of one of the snakes. It was introduced during the campaign when the West African Mounted Rifles were occupying the old German camp on Mt. Longido. On rising one morning General von Foerster, on his way to a collection of water, drew a slaying knife and stabbed at the snake, cutting it slightly, whereupon the snake added to the intensity of the wall against which it was crawling and then conducted later in a way which was completely unexpected and by holding its jaws blanketed its head. This one more of the leading. It was supposed to be a harmless snake, but by winding round its head and liberating it, it was horseshoe, a was able to induce it to raise its head and remain in its position to the entire satisfaction of the soldiers.

I am, Sir, yours faithfully,
A. H. ...

CROCODILE'S HEART BEATING AFTER DEATH

An incident in the Zambezi

To the Editor of "East Africa"

SIR, I am pleased to hear Mr. W. L. Steer-Webb has written and describes how a crocodile's heart beat for twenty hours after its death. I can corroborate this account, for I once shot a medium-sized crocodile while travelling by canoe on the Zambezi, when the vessel had stopped at a wooding station. The Native on the canoe wanted to fish to and had the net suspended on the hot iron spike which the attached to the boat and alongside. From the lower passengers took above and others saw it as a pitying all that afternoon a slow rate. Next morning had been found in the water and I mention the incident in my books, but cannot at the moment find the reference.

This shows that the crocodile is a cold-blooded creature, and has great tenacity of life, which is a great argument to anyone who has shot a number of them.

RELIGIOUS CONVICTION IN AFRICA

A Greater Need than Education

To the Editor of "East Africa"

SIR, May an old-fashioned missionary send a brief note in reply to the letter you published in a recent issue on "Paranquancy" in Tanganyika? As a matter of fact, I have a reasonable amount concerning saturis and as far as those days there was practically no other way of getting about.

Having now watched events in England for the last twenty-five years, always with a remembrance that Africa had the same claim on my thoughts, I am more and more convinced that the subject with which the "paranquancy" letter deals is not one of education, but of moral and religious conviction. "Education" in its modern sense is a newcomer which is its birth possibly in 1870, certainly not earlier. Nothing like the present type of education is to be noted in the history of the past. The modern type does not tend in the direction of putting God first as the author and giver of all good things.

To enlarge upon this is outside the scope of your valuable paper, but I should like to close with an earnest appeal to every reader. I could ask: "Is knowledge the only thing to be? Is that not an inner and undeniable something which the glow can give us that is the knowledge Africans and needs daily to-day. Further, her teachers should be those who know personally what this is; they should be the kind and winner whose lives are a living testimony to the things to know."

Many's been a man. Many people, manual and under the English educational scheme. I know of one in the north of Africa, the black shepherds, who are given the same title to which I refer in the paragraph. Remember in England scholars like Tyndale and Erith, both of whom had Erith deny this gift of God. Remember the man who suffered in the Mangasy Christian in 1868, who, when consolation was refused, said a little later the Ba-Ganda martyrs, some of whom were roasted alive, but who were a great and a man. Rufiji interested. Yours faithfully,
Yours faithfully

AVOID DRASTIC CHANGES in native institutions

In the editor's copy of East Africa

On Saturday morning the Times established place in which I thought a recent column seemed to have a particular bearing for Africa. As in its present state of confusion, it stated that "Christ" advocated no drastic changes in institutions which held that "each of the new states" - in other words, Africa - might be evolved.

In Africa, I am sure, it is suggested that mission schools to be reformed, a very able, professional, primary, and secondary I had not realised that Christ was the greatest revolutionary who ever lived. I admit having been partially stupefied and now, after the lapse of many years, comes what seems to be a complete answer, and a useful guide not only to teachers, but also to Governments full of educational zeal. I do not respect existing institutions, not trying unduly to reform them, but concerning more on adapting the same to his new setting, and thus creating a better type of manhood.

You have made many helpful contributions on this and other subjects, so I feel that I should try to help with a brief letter.

Yours faithfully,
Luton,
Iwan S. SIAURI

STANDARDISATION OF AFRICAN NAMES

Since your campaign for the successful outcome of East Africa's campaign for the standardisation of names, tribes and place names. Your continued efforts have been noted and upon a matter which had not previously received attention, no amount of time and now seem certain to have the necessary results. A notable example is the name which would have been numerous if it had not been serious.

You have yourself pointed out two Departments of the same Government sometimes with the name of a given tribe is two or three, and, if memory does not betray me, I have instances of two different renderings in one and the same official document. That was absurd but not unusual and it is surprising to know that specific nomenclature has now been made to the East African Governments from two different authoritative bodies, one in London and the other in East Africa itself. And for the United Kingdom, it is surprising to know that the matter has never been considered in the past 15 years, and by that time the names would have become worse than mud.

Though you have succeeded in other campaigns of a more general nature from the standpoint of the general reader, this must be reckoned an exceedingly useful service to the continent as a whole.

Yours faithfully,
London, W.C.2

GOOD WORK FOR NYASALAND.

Mr. Hess Reports to the Chamber of Commerce.

The Nyasaland Chamber of Commerce has received a report from Mr. Hess, their delegate to the Congress of the Federation of Chambers of Commerce of the British Empire, who gave the following opinion:

The desire Great Britain is both to have her colonies develop and export her Empire trade, and without neglecting her foreign trade. A concrete example is to be found in the London Convention of 1904, which provided for the readjustment of the general resolution regarding the duties on tobacco. It was decided that it should not be politic to come out into the world with a further increase in the duties on tobacco. The sympathy of the British attitude there seems a real danger of losing the substance for the shadow.

On the question of tobacco Mr. Hess voices an oft-repeated opinion. He says: "The tobacco consist has no been a success in the Empire product, and this means that the tobacco and cigarette are kept on a back seat. They are sold strictly on demand."

We disagree with him, however, when he says that nearly every smoker smokes an Empire blend, and hardly ever tries a foreign package. It would be easy to name many people who, without persuasion, and with no special interest in Empire products, have tried some foreign tobacco, chiefly on account of the price being lower, and have found a brand they like and stuck to it, and would not change back again, even if their pockets were not benefited.

One man we know, with a small piece of tobacco who has to budget very carefully, made the change simply and solely to save a few shillings in a year to pay his golf club subscription. It was Empire tobacco, no better for him. Now he gets both his golf and his game, and he is his present smoker of the old one.

Mr. Hess complains very much of the quality of the tobacco product is not as well used substantially. Addressing a potent and essential, and the Empire trade, as Rhodesian and Canadian tobacco, which are extensively exported, have satisfactory sales. The ordinary man may be smoking a mixture that is not the best, but has no idea of the fact.

The ignorance, says the delegate, in regard to Nyasaland's trade possibilities, proved to be a ground for the most startling ignorance in regard to Nyasaland's geographical position, and absolutely nothing was known of its trade possibilities, either export or import.

At session after session of the Congress we know that Mr. Hess was the sole delegate from any of the African Dependencies, though Chambers in territories other than Nyasaland nominated representatives. He is to be commended for the work he did during his leave at Home.

FIFTY YEARS' SERVICE IN AFRICA.

Bishop Guillemin's Fine Record.

On September 24 Bishop Mathurin Guillemin, of the White Fathers, a great Apostle of Africa, completes fifty years of a missionary in Africa, most of which time has been spent in British territory. Known for years as a charming old man, Bishop Guillemin has endeared himself not only to his thousands of African converts, but to all Europeans also. He landed in 1882, he came to Africa in the following year, and after working in the Congo for a while, joined Bishop Lavigerie in Northern Rhodesia in 1890. They were known as the Brethren Mkhubwa and the Brethren Mkhobeni. He moved to Nyasaland in 1902, and then was appointed Vicarius for Tanganyika, working in the capacity of Bishop of Belgian Congo and in Central Africa (as it then was). In 1911 he was appointed Vicar Apostolic of Nyasa, in which diocese he has three central schools, an industrial school, a normal school and a minor seminary. The Catholics under his care number 31,647, and the natural increase by births in Catholic families averages 1,500 annually.

He witnessed the terrors of the old slave trade, and himself rescued 1,500 slaves. He saved Chipu Tib in Tabora, and from him obtained the original manoes which were planted at Kavambi Mission in 1897. He saved Kasama.

He has seen Africa, but never a back number! He has seen the things, and is strongly alive to the problems of today, and has written quite recently one of the most thoughtful and practical books on communal life by natives seeking work on the mines. One of the Grand Old Men of Africa, we wish him all that he can wish for himself on the occasion of his jubilee.

ORANGE PEEL BAIT TIP FOR ANGLERS.

A wise friend suggests that those who and the fish of Nile perch a bit shy might try orange (or lemon) peel. His method is to cut a small piece of peel, cut it up in a Archer spinner, and then to use it, using an ordinary spinning reel, to get busy and water resolve. This idea has been declared a great success, and has well shown on the Spey and elsewhere, and might well be a good work in African waters. We should be glad to hear results from any who try the tip.

Film off teeth is dangerous!

Germs are glued to teeth by an ever-forming film.

Millions of germs, 100 times and more than we can see, are on our teeth. Among them are Lactobacilli—the "germs of tooth decay." They feed on the particles of food that cling to teeth and give off lactic acid which dissolves tooth enamel. Lactobacilli appear in countless numbers. In fact, the film scraped from a single tooth may contain millions of living organisms. The only way to remove germs from teeth is to remove the protective film in which they live and multiply. This is done thoroughly and safely all ordinary ways of brushing. What is new, the Pepsodent laboratories have always centred their attention on the special cleaning properties of their tooth paste. Now these laboratories have developed a new and revolutionary cleaning material for removing ugly, stubborn film. It is twice as soft as the material commonly used in tooth pastes, yet it is extraordinarily effective in removing film and giving brilliant polish to teeth.

Now try Pepsodent Tooth Paste and see what a difference it makes to your teeth.

EAST AFRICA IN THE PRESS

TRIBAL CHIEF OF THE SWAHLI!

Some newspapers and news agencies have long maintained a high level of public opinion that their lapses are unusually painful, are treated by us with leniency, both on the continent and some favour number of the staff, but temporarily in charges have added, and will have been completely annihilated by his scorches.

In the last few months, however, we have calculated several strange East African stories of which we have withheld comment, but one is and last Friday in the form of a cable from New York is so ridiculous that it must be belittled.

Within an hour of its appearance in the London evening newspapers, sufficient human telephone calls to ask if we had seen the latest in realistic effort about East Africa. No wonder, for this is the top-of-column story to which they refer.

King John Kelly, a hot dog vendor in Central Park, New York, has been made a tribal chief of the Swahili. Now in British East Africa they feverishly speak of him as Bwana of King Kelly. His African honour is a reward for having taught two Swahili hunters how to use the axe and fork.

Two years ago the hunters came to New York from Africa with a shipment of baby gorillas. They stayed in charge of the gorillas at the Central Park Zoo and kindly taught them the American mode of life.

Now they have returned home with the gorillas, and as a token of hospitality that they have visited him, a throne by acclamation.

When this notice came, the manager of his newspaper to hide the fact that King Kelly had returned for his wife.

Journal has so old and well deserved a reputation that its responsible officials must have written to the such lapsoedic printed over the name of the agency they honour and serve.

POOR PUBLICITY FOR EAST AFRICA

It is a surprise to find so good a friend to East Africa as Country Life devoting early a page to a colourless article called "Kenya Colony and Uganda," headed by a most unattractive picture of a man in a soldier's uniform. The old type of the "to go round." The contribution, which is unsigned, also contains a few errors. In the assertion that "Endebe is a short distance from Kampala, the capital of Uganda," and that the Uganda Railway was for thirteen hundred miles unbridged. There is no Endebe. Kampala is not the capital, and the original line was 77 miles and was never unbridged. This kind of work does no good to Kenya or Uganda.

KIRUYU'S FINE NEW CATHEDRAL

News of the fine new cathedral at Kiruyu, the details of which was reported in our East Issue, are given in the Standard, which holds that the Rev. Canon St. John M. M. M., the preacher of the Church of Scotland Mission, was transferred to Daguerre in 1868. The writer continues:

Since 1911, worship has been conducted in an improvised open-air place of meetings. The site, on the Wood, where on occasions over three thousand people have gathered, on Sunday, September 10, 1933, the new church was dedicated.

The architect, Mr. Basil Lavender, designed a simple, strong building, rectangular in shape, after the simple style of the aisles, on each side, by numerous arches to a green glass vaulted roof. The south transepts are being closed against the prevailing winds, one hundred and forty feet long and hundred feet broad in the transepts and fifty feet in the nave and aisles, the building is really a cathedral, with accommodation for about two thousand people. Massive beams of local Kenya timber and rafters made in Nairobi, with copper sheathing, complete a building which walls are composed of dressed stone.

Scottish master mason, one of the old ones, Mr. John Gordon, has produced this handsome building; he has been assisted by two hundred Africans, which he has treated mainly to dress stone, but to make with it a building worthy of comparison with the best stone work anywhere.

THE PROBLEM OF SOIL EROSION

This problem continues to exercise the Union of South Africa, and East Africans would do well to follow discussions in that country for South Africa's trouble today will inevitably be East Africa's to-morrow unless steps are quickly taken to forestall it. The following, by the way, remarks have been made by a correspondent of The Farmers Weekly:

"We do not know more than until people cease to care part of what we do not for the purpose of washing the best of our soils to the sea."

But more extremely useful things for conserving water, but no costly for conserving water. The day our grandfathers will be seen to see the soil, increased in the rains, costing nothing to do. The Irrigation Department."

Mr. H. Peyret, writing in La Tribune Industrielle, thanks Great Britain is likely to join the V.S.A. from its position as the leading export market. He quotes Sir Russel Blackett's opinion that if the world consumption of copper is to be increased, the producers of Rhodesia and the Transvaal will control the situation. Mr. Peyret holds that the production of a standard like copper is not possible without a reasonable degree of free exchange.

THE PASSING OF THE E.M.P.

Comments from East Africa

Our contemporaries in East Africa appear to have waited until news came of the actual decision to end the Empire Marketing Board before joining in the protest and appeal which have been vigorously made on this side.

The Nairobi Standard says—

"It is a great pity that this amazingly successful and useful body could not have been saved. The Board was processing mainly an organization created by men and women who were not only specialists but had that rare quality of enthusiasm for the Empire which gave a special character to their work."

The Panganyika Standard remarked that "the most disturbing news that Tanganyika has received for some time is the announcement that the Empire Marketing Board is to be abolished. All the East African territories have been particularly interested in the Board, which has assisted in a great variety of ways in the better exploitation of their natural resources and in the marketing of their products. It is impossible to measure in terms of finance its real value to East Africa, but its abolition at a time when we are just beginning to realise the first fruits of its work will be deeply deplored."

The Natal Standard Times says that "the popular catchword of the day is 'Economy.' To subscribe to it helps the politician to hold office, and it does not matter very much what is lost so long as public opinion of the moment is pandered to. In the following issue of the same paper Mr. G. Cheston, of Zomba, wrote a letter to the Board, in which he said that in losing the Board in the course of which he said that it was an asset of considerable value. It is almost inconceivable that all the Empire Marketing Board, the E.M.B., be created for the expansion of Empire trade should be wasted for lack of the co-operation of the Dominions."

If only such strong opinions, backed by protest from public bodies throughout the Colonies, had been made before the decision to abolish the Board was made, the danger of death might never have gone forth. The belated demands now general remind us of the many men who receive scant recognition in their lifetime but only an obituary notice and panegyrics when they die.

FILM OF THE AFRICAN AIR ROUTE

Possible and Probable Omissions.

"CONTACT," a film of the Empire air routes is a photographic record of the air routes to East and South Africa and to India. It contains some beautiful and unusual "shots" taken in central Africa by Mrs. Paul Scofield, and among the scenes which will interest East Africans are some excellent close-ups of crocodiles, taken by a diver when crocodiles are obviously to be seen on all sides.

But good as the photography is, the film might have been much better, for it fails to do real justice to the great African air route, the outstanding success of which is the organising power and technical skill of Imperial Airways. Quite rightly, they realise that the cinema can be of great value to them in showing the public the results of their great enterprise. It is regrettable that "Contact" falls short of its purpose.

Had, for instance, the picture included some views of the flower gardens in Wadi Illala, Khartoum from the air; the great elephant herds near Kor; the wonderful Tussock Falls, Kampala, with its two great Canals on the hill tops; the beautiful botanical gardens in Entebbe; Kisumu, Mount Longonot, the extinct volcano which rises 3,000 feet above the floor of the great Rift Valley; some street scenes in Nairobi, and in the mountains of Kilimanjaro, the highest mountain in Africa, to name only a few obvious omissions—the passenger who has done the East African trip by air, would have found this film immensely more interesting, while thousands of cinema-goers would have been taught more of Africa and more of the splendid achievement of the company operating a service which is influencing African development in a truly remarkable way. ROYAL EMPIRE SOCIETY - EAST AFRICA

• Travelling Commissioner of forthcoming Tour.

Commander R. M. Reynolds, B.A., K.C., (ret'd), Senior Travelling Commissioner of the Royal Empire Society, is to visit East Africa during the coming winter and spring to make better known the work of the Society and to recruit new Fellows. He will arrive in Mombasa on November 17, and after a few days, stay will proceed to Nairobi, where he will stay for a week. Thence he will motor to Nanyuki, and on the way back to the Kenya capital will visit each of the intervening townships. He will then journey to Darhda, to Naivasha, Sakuru, Eldoret, and Kitale, reaching Juba on December 15 and Kampala on December 19. At Entebbe he will board one of the Lakes steamer, visiting Bukoba, Mwanza, and Unywe before returning to Mombasa via Kisumu. He will afterwards visit again Dar es Salaam, Beira, and on to Blantyre and Zomba, reaching the latter place towards the end of February. Commander Reynolds will doubtless meet many old friends in Kenya, for he is the Marine Superintendent on the Uganda Railway for over twenty years, having returned about seven years ago.

The East African Frigate, with Mrs. K. V. McEntee as the pilot, is being produced in Nairobi from a script by the Royal Agricultural Society and the film which will be taken in the next few months will be a period

EAST AFRICA'S INFORMATION BUREAU

East Africa's Information Bureau exists for the free service of subscribers and advertisers, desiring the Editor's aid on any matter. One of its principal objects is to contribute to the development of the whole of the continent of East and Central Africa, and any information which is offered for publication will be cordially welcomed.

Telegraphic cables have been opened at Kakamega. Tanganyika exported 5,170 tons of sisal during August.

2,000 Natives visited the recent exhibition at Mwanza. A total of 7,000 tons of sisal was planted with cuttings in Uganda.

Twenty-six settlers in the district of Kenya are now growing coffee. For the first time in the history of the colony, 300,000 lbs. of cotton were collected and valued to £1,010.

It is expected that Belgium Congo will this year produce nearly 20,000 tons of cotton seed, compared with 20,000 tons last year.

Thirty-four photographs of coffee and sugar plantations in Kenya are being shown this week in the cinema at the Imperial lectures, 200, Kennington Road, W.7.

At the end of July about 1,000 claims had been established in the Kenya goldfields by registered holders. 3,700 of these claims were official.

The Milk and Farmers' Union started out the Southern Forest Reserve, where the Milk Union is not allowed to proceed very desirable to milk producers.

The Milk Union stated that from October 8 the production will be given to holders and not to the Milk Union. It is hoped by this means to simplify collection for the holder.

Milk production in the district of the Forest Reserve is expected to be about 100,000 gallons per week. The Milk Union is expected to be able to supply the district with milk.

An Indian store-keeper named Masani Ali Gursi Khan has been murdered at the store near Ohoro Park Station, on the Thomson's Falls branch line.

Further developments of the experimental transmission line from the Salisbury Broadcasting Station are expected towards the end of the year, when a medium-wave transmitter will be available.

The Shipping Exhibition in Olympia last week showed that the Castle Steamship Company exhibited a model of one of their 20,000-ton motorships engaged on the South and East Africa service.

During 1932 the East Africa Power and Light Company sold 6,522,691 units, an increase of 174,500 units over 1931. The small improvement in the production is due to an increased factory consumption of no less than 822,110 units.

Net home consumption in imports into Kenya during the first five months of this year amounted to £1,222,242 compared with £1,559,508 in the corresponding period of 1932. Domestic exports over the first six months of this year amounted to £1,272,553, as against £1,531,020 in 1932.

Under the provisions of the Oil Production Licence (Kenya) of 1922, an exploration licence has been granted to Mr. James Maxwell, Mr. James Robert Maxwell, and Mrs. Kate Maxwell for an area of 56 square miles in the Machakos district. The licence is for one year from July 1, 1933.

Through tickets to stations on the Imperial Airways African service are now obtainable from Ellerslieville from which feeder air service runs to Broken Hill. Fares from the Belgian Congo to London are as follows: To Broken Hill, £12 10s.; to Cairo, £10s. 10s.; to Cairo, £12 10s.; to London, £12 10s.

The favourable promise of the holding of the 1933 East Africa exhibition is similar to the last successful one at Mwanza. The District Commissioner of Mombasa and I have spent their time in the district of Lake Province in order to obtain an impression of the organization. It is the sincerest form of flattery.

HERE IS AN IDEA

for those who want to give a present and simply don't know what to buy says the "Daily Mirror."

Writing in the SPAN BOOK SUPPORT the "Daily Mirror" says: "If you are the habit of reading in bed the SPAN becomes almost as necessary as the book of the bedside and once you have tried it. The book can be read in any position which suits your light and the angle you lie in bed or sit in a chair. With this book-reservingly ill patients are able to read comfortably without any effort."

The cheapest, lightest, and most adaptable Book Support ever invented. It presents aching arms and can be used in any reading position whether reclining or sitting. Particularly useful to residents in the tropics. Splendid for use on voyages and invaluable to invalids.

KENYA

Britain's most attractive colony for settlement

A Kenyan Homestead

Kenya offers unlimited scope for the settler, and those with moderate means who are contemplating going to the East should carefully consider the many exceptional advantages offered.

Healthy climate congenial surroundings
 A light taxation reasonable living costs
 good social amenities good schools.

Farming prospects, too, are good for the less working pupil or settler with adequate capital. Climatic and general conditions are especially favourable to the production of Coffee, Maize, Wheat and Tea, mixed farming, and the growing, cattle and sheep rearing. Labour is cheap and plentiful. Transport facilities leave nothing to be desired.

The man who is retiring from any profession or business with an assured income or pension and who is interested in peace and quiet work will find in Kenya an opportunity of enjoying his retirement, either in solitude or in participating in local government affairs.

SPORT and TRAVEL

Sports of every description can be enjoyed in the territory. Big game, birds and smaller wild animals are to be found in plenty, whilst there are ample facilities for the enjoyment of all home games.

Travelling is thoroughly arranged, standard hotels and comfortable roads, and the railway, lake, river and motor services that serve all parts of the country.

EAST AFRICA'S IMPRINT IS THE GUARANTEE OF A GOOD BOOK

ELEPHANT

By Commander D. E. Blinn, M.C. (Retd.)

There is nobody, be he scholar or naturalist, who does not appreciate this wonderful book. It is the only one in his field of knowledge to be written in his own words. It is the only one in his field of knowledge to be written in his own words. It is the only one in his field of knowledge to be written in his own words.

THE COMPANY OF ADVENTURERS

By John Boyce

A compact mass of good yarns deftly told in a style that is as offset to the well-known times of the South as it is to the times of the North. It is a book that should have a wide appeal to all who appreciate the strong, flavoured yarns of the South and the sphere of the North. It is a book that should have a wide appeal to all who appreciate the strong, flavoured yarns of the South and the sphere of the North.

ANGLING IN EAST AFRICA

By L. Hatch and Hugh Corley

Two of Kenya's best known fishermen have written this valuable and amusing book for the devotees of the sport. It is the only one in its field of knowledge to be written in his own words. It is the only one in his field of knowledge to be written in his own words.

SUN, FIRE, AND RAIN IN UGANDA

By Gladys M. Day

With a foreword by H. M. Stanley, who writes: 'This is a most interesting and valuable book. It is a book that should have a wide appeal to all who appreciate the strong, flavoured yarns of the South and the sphere of the North.' It is a book that should have a wide appeal to all who appreciate the strong, flavoured yarns of the South and the sphere of the North.

Some Statements Worth Noting.

The Empire Marketing Board has been killed, but its soul goes marching on. — The Observer.

The richest jewel in Africa is the capacity to take all things as they are. — Safari Sam, by Geordy Wakepeace.

Native peoples who have become the colonists' fellow countrymen. — P. H., in a leading article in The Living Stone Mail.

I often think we missionaries need to be taught by our Africans the lesson of patience. — Canon Stanton, speaking in Lanncoston.

Labor's Empire Policy is the theory of Fascism disguised in Gladstonian rags. — Reginald H. Reynolds, in The New Leader.

The leopard is a very important part of the natural heritage of our continent. — Mr. H. Champion, in The Angles in Sunlight and Shadow.

The course was all so beautiful that I forgot I was on my way to a war. — Colonel Denys Reitz, describing the East African Campaign, in Trekking On.

Nine tenths of the trouble between white and native in this country is due to ignorance of the language. — Colonel J. B. Brady, D.S.O., in an election speech in Bulawayo.

The best way of raising coffee prices on the London market is by a careful rationing of supplies thus preventing accumulation of stocks. — Mr. Kenneth Archer, speaking in Ruiry.

Unless started or menaced, African snakes, with the exception of the mamba, only desire to depart with all possible speed from the presence of their enemy, man. — Mr. Arthur Loveridge.

A modern woman can do for her four ounces of clothes about £200 worth of gold ornaments and out appearing ornaments. — Mr. R. G. Grayling, Mining Commissioner, in Address in Tanganyika, speaking in Dar-es-Salaam.

Mbeves lies in one of the most glorious parts of the world I have seen. It is in the Great Rift Valley, where the walls of the mountains about 40,000 feet high on one side and 2000 feet on the other. General routes interrupted by the Malindi-Singur Star.

We have a local market for tea, and its value is increasing because of the Native increasing his production of tea. It is, I think, his only cash crop. — Mr. J. H. B. Field, Acting Director of Agriculture, in Address in Dar-es-Salaam, Chamber of Commerce.

A such factor of cost and some of which, which can be produced in a way which is wholly uncontrolled by a small controlled by Government. — Mr. J. H. B. Field, Acting Director of Agriculture, in Address in Dar-es-Salaam, Chamber of Commerce.

It is said that an old African proverb says: "A man cannot collect stones, and a woman cannot collect stones." — Mr. J. H. B. Field, Acting Director of Agriculture, in Address in Dar-es-Salaam, Chamber of Commerce.

WHO'S WHO

172.—Mr. Robertson Fyffe Gibb

By night, "East Africa."

Mr. Gibb is one of a most remarkable record than Mr. Robertson Fyffe Gibb, who on September 1st, 1911, made his fourth year of service with the Union-Castle Steamship Company, of which he is now Chairman. Beginning as a junior clerk at the age of fifteen, Mr. Gibb has risen to his present position by sheer merit. A hard worker and a keen observer, he is extremely popular.

Mr. Gibb joined the Union Steamship Company in 1901, shortly after the incorporation of the Publicity Department, and was appointed head of the Passenger Department, and was appointed manager of the company's office in Southampton in November, 1911. Six months later he became Joint Manager and of shipping, and the chairmanship of the company in 1920 he was appointed chairman. He is also chairman of Bullard, King & Company, Ltd., African Lands and Hotels, Ltd., and Durban Navigation Companies, Ltd., a director of several other companies, and a member of the Council of the Chamber of Commerce of the United Kingdom, the Council of the Shipping Federation, and the Chamber of Commerce of the Cape Colony.

Each year he is elected captain of the ship "East Africa" and is a member of the "East Africa" Club, and is an industrialist.

PERSONALIA.

Mr. Frank Buguid, recently won the Lawley Cup Golf Tournament in Beira.

Major E. G. Brandis has been elected President of the German Club in Tanga.

Sir Eugene Ramsden, who was in Tanganyika a few years ago, is visiting Denmark.

Mr. Oliver Baldwin, who visited East Africa some time ago, is now film critic of the B.B.C.

Sir Edward J. Buck, formerly Renter's agent with the Government of India, is now in Kenya.

Dr. D. A. Skan, the Tanganyika Medical Officer, has been transferred from Dar es Salaam to Morogoro.

Mr. Body and Mr. Nicholson have been appointed members of the Tanga Port and Harbour Advisory Board.

Major and Mrs. Danton, of the Imperial Tobacco Company in Nyasaland, have arrived home on holiday.

Mr. B. V. Mehd has been appointed a member of the Departmental Organisation Committee in Uganda.

Mr. R. K. Mill, Chief Inspector of Police in Tanganyika, has been transferred from Tabora to Kilima.

In the passing of Mrs. J. Jilima, Lusaka loses one of its members, for she entered Northern Rhodesia in 1904.

Mr. A. J. Wakefield, who has been acting as Director of Agriculture in Tanganyika Territory, has arrived home on leave.

Mr. H. B. Watels, the new Director of Agriculture in Kenya, was married in Betchworth last week to Miss Inez Mary Lloyd.

Mr. R. M. Sanders, formerly secretary of Messrs. Birds Co. (Africa), Ltd., has joined the staff of a firm of Stock Exchange brokers.

Miss Mailes, daughter of Mr. Maximo Mailes, who recently met with a motor accident in Nairobi, has now recovered from her injuries.

Mr. H. May, son of Mr. H. W. May, the sports outfitter, is leaving London almost immediately to rejoin his parents in Kenya.

Nanyuki Church is to be consecrated by the Bishop of Mombasa next Sunday. The Bishop will be assisted by the C. of E. Chaplain, the Rev. B. W. Gordon.

Lieutenant-General Sir William Gordon, G.C.B., who died in London last week, served in the Sudan in 1885, and was present at the Battle of Atbara.

We are glad to hear that Mrs. Christine Thorne, who recently underwent an operation at the War Memorial Hospital, is making good progress.

Mr. M. F. J. Lefebvre, manager of the Dar es Salaam Branch of the Banque du Congo Belge, has arrived home on leave. Mr. Wasem has relieved him.

Sir Joseph Byrne, Governor of Kenya, is expected to sail in the "Arundel Castle" on October 13 for South Africa, and may complete the journey to Kenya by air.

Mr. A. Hamilton, managing director of Messrs. Mitchell, Goss & Co., Ltd., who have extensive interests in East Africa, has just concluded a business tour of the territories.

The sympathy of all their East African friends will be extended to Lady Corson and to Mr. James Worthington on the death of their mother, Mrs. J. C. Worthington.

Mr. S. Haller, the Northern Rhodesia Provincial Commissioner, is expected home very shortly from Kawama. He has served in the Protectorate for the past twenty-five years.

Mr. J. W. Downie, High Commissioner for Southern Rhodesia in London, has accepted an offer of his Government to extend his period of office by one year, to October, 1934.

Mr. S. S. Murray, M.P., formerly Assistant Secretary in Nyasaland, has been co-opted as a member of the Executive Committee of the East African Group of the Over-Sea League.

Mr. James Baker Smith, the Assheton advocate, has been appointed an unofficial member of the Tanganyika Legislative Council during the absence of Captain the Hon. D. E. Ross.

Mr. G. Grant, who captained the East Indian cricket team which toured England during the summer, is we hear a possible candidate for the post of Chief Justice of Southern Rhodesia, to replace Russell.

Canon H. M. Grace, Rector of St. Paul's, Kampala, Uganda, has been recommended as a successor to the Rev. A. G. Fraser, Principal of Acharya College, who is shortly due for retirement.

Mrs. F. K. Wilson, founder of Wilson's Airways, Ltd., is shortly leaving England for Kenya. She is flying as a passenger in a new Puss Moth machine which will later be added to the company's fleet.

F. A. Cooper is this year President of the League of Chambers, Associated with Messrs. Sonnie & Co., Ltd., of London. The chairman, Commissioner of Customs, Mr. J. W. Williams, is also present.

A new church is being built at Budaka, a bandar for the Mill Hill Mission, by the Rev. C. Kirk, C.B.E., who first arrived in Uganda thirty years ago. Another bandar, O'Hara, is going to be built there.

Dr. H. L. Gordon of Nairobi has been invited to give a paper at the Royal Society of Medicine, giving the results of his research work into the Native mind, on which he has been employed for the past five years.

MR. WETHERELL'S FILM EXPEDITION.

A Fine Opportunity for Sound Facilities.

Mr. M. A. Wetherell, the producer of "Living Stone" and other well-known films, is leaving shortly on an ambitious and interesting film-making and play-acting expedition to East Africa.

He hopes to start in the latter part of December or early January and to be in Nairobi about March next, after which he will visit Entebbe and other centres, and proceed southwards to the Rhodesias and South Africa. During his trip he told a representative of East Africa he proposes to film the story of "The Silent Reacher," by Gertrude Page, figuring a fight by the Victoria Falls, another African novel the name of which cannot yet be disclosed, and six "shorts" showing the industries of Rhodesia and Africa, but not including a store-builde in person. It is to be hoped that Governments will consider whether he might not be asked if he could fit with his work, something that would show the prominent features of life in East Africa: work on plantations, home life, school life, mining, water-road development and so on, in other words to make some arrangement with a man who understands the business to assist in taking some shots that could be used for public and educational purposes.

Traveling Theatricals.

The second side of Mr. Wetherell's expedition is the production of plays en route. He has acquired the African rights of certain plays, the success of which he will produce in the different "camps" he visits. Besides helping in this way to defray part of the cost of his expedition he should give a good deal of pleasure to many who hardly ever see a play acted, and he should be assured of a generous sale along the line.

It is good to know that not only has this enterprising producer been assured of a highly financial backing, but that he has also obtained complete distribution of a well-known film company. We wish the best of luck for anything that helps to put the real East Africa with all its attractions better known as to the world.

Plans Commemorating Abolition of Slavery.

Plans commemorating the centenary of the death of William Wilberforce and the abolition of the slave trade in Sierra Leone, Ceylon and the Cape of Good Hope, are in progress, which will be held in the next few months as from October 1. The anniversary of the day when the shackles on the field and slave were broken, the shackles of Africa are attached to the nations, showing a new path for the time and of a new path.

Good Mine on Grass of Charcoal.

An interesting fact has been made on a gas-equipped car, the engine of which was driven by Rickard, who travelled from Nakuru to the grass of charcoal in a number of hours. The distance was 200 miles and he had a good haul of charcoal for the whole trip, and had no trouble with the engine and the running of the car, and that was everywhere a good result of a good engine.

Kenya Rugby Tour.

A Rugby tour of Kenya is to be made in December, and will be organized by the University, when the tour will include the following: Nairobi, Ruiru, Eldoret and Malindi. It is the intention to make a tour of Kenya from the north to the south.

Co-operation in the Nile.

Trans-Africa has been established to co-operate in the Nile. It is the intention to make a tour of Kenya from the north to the south.

KENYA GOLDFIELD DEVELOPMENT

Practically Allotments.

The output of gold in Kenya in 1932 was the highest for many years yet recorded and amounted to 1,120 oz., of which 203 oz. was reef gold.

The Government announces after applications exclusive prospecting licences over 2,000 square miles in the southern savanna known as Nos. 3 and 4 Areas, that the Kitulo report subdivided into plots, even sections ranging from eight square miles to one square mile, of which five sections are available for sale ground. The applicants include representatives of the Holden Consolidated Gold Mines, Canada, The T. D. Hurst (P) Level Company, West Africa, Kenya Consolidated, which is connected with a Johannesburg group, and Kenya Development, which is understood to be associated with the Anglo-Siam Exploration Company, Kenya Development, and a number of applications by local syndicates. Simultaneously the Government announces the confirmation of the grant of an exclusive licence for the sale of No. 1 Area, Tanganyika Concessions who have exercised their option as recommended in the Kitulo report.

The Government has anxiously considered the situation of the gold fields and the position of the mining industry, which is guarded and satisfying the mining industry. The measures are believed to be sufficient to the adoption of a policy of free sale of the land, and the Government should negotiate the sale of the land to the mining industry, thereby preserving the principle of free sale of the land.

Tanganyika Concessions announce that they have secured an option over 200 hundred acres of gold fields in the neighbourhood of Baringo Reef, south-west of Lake Victoria, while the Dorset Mining Syndicate has purchased the Kohogo mine, near Kakimayo. There is every confidence in the future of the industry.

WHO INTRODUCED TROUT INTO KENYA? ESTIMATION OF PYRETHRUM IN KENYA.

As a result of statements made in "Angling in East Africa," by Messrs. Hately and Copley, published by East Africa, there has been a good deal of controversy on our pages regarding the introduction of trout into Kenya.

We have had to go further than we are indebted to the Earl of Denbigh, who owned the fishery in South Wales, from which Kenya secured its first trout, and his assistance in the Lords' new terms of the trade from a letter written to him by a Mr. Deighton, his cousin, and was sent at the time. He is an expert pisciculturist and Lord Denbigh believes it was he who sent the ova to Kenya. Mr. Deighton writes to Lord Denbigh:

"I have no recollection of having had you write the first to dispatch trout to the East. I should have the clearest recollection of shipping them. I think you had a photograph of the shipment before it was put into a tin. At the same time and on the same day we had a tin in Exeter and the Argentine Republic. I do not think the shipment had quite slipped my memory, but I have a faint recollection that it was the intention of the completion of the railway between Mombasa and the East. It must be over three years ago. I recall a letter in your name and the only one I can remember was from one who wished to have a definition for the fish, and the answer was given taken in Mackay and Singapore. We discovered that they had not been in the water, just in the point of incision."

It is true that the fishery books cannot be traced to the fisheries in South Wales and some ten years ago.

TANGANYIKA'S GOLD DEPOSITS

Where they may be found.

A recent intimation of an important gold deposit in Tanganyika was given recently by the Hon. Mr. Arthur Compton, Minister of Mines, when he addressed the Day of the Salaries of the Chamber of Commerce.

The discovery of the deposit was made during the course of a geological survey conducted in the district of the Tanganyika coast, and it is hoped that during the next few years considerable progress will be made.

The deposit is situated in the district of the Tanganyika coast, and it is hoped that during the next few years considerable progress will be made. The deposit is situated in the district of the Tanganyika coast, and it is hoped that during the next few years considerable progress will be made.

SUGAR CANE AS A STOCK FEED

Recommendations from South Africa.

Mr. S. W. Willan, of Subukia, Kenya, writes to the East Africa (South Africa) that he has found a good feed for his cows in the form of a cane. He writes that the cane is a good feed for his cows, and it is hoped that during the next few years considerable progress will be made.

It is being shown in the collection in East Africa that the pyrethrum plant from which the flowers are made, both in the form of a liquid extract, which acts as a contact poison for many insects, while being harmless to man and domestic animals.

Pyrethrum is already being produced in the highlands of Kenya on a small but rapidly extending scale, and the economic value of the Kenya-produced flowers is considered to be as high as that of the flowers grown in Malaya or Japan, whence come the bulk of the world's supplies. The cultivation of the plant in East Africa has, however, not been proceeded long enough for the accurate estimation of really possible crops.

The first year's crop is first year, and improves in the second and third years, then reaching its maximum production, which is maintained for two more years; then the yield starts to fall off again and the seventh year after which it is not worth while maintaining the plants, replanting being necessary.

Light, well-drained soil at an elevation of about 4,000 ft. has been found most suitable in Kenya, and a crop of about 300 lb. per acre may result. It is not expected that there will be an exportable crop before 1945, if then.

Provided that the whole of the flowers are sold on the internal market, the price should be found about 10/- per lb., but at the moment export begins some of the local authorities expect the price to fall to about 5/-. World production is not likely to affect the Kenya market before 1940, but in these days of rapid production it is very difficult to predict, especially as the price to which pyrethrum products are being put are being expanded, thus causing increasing demand.

JAPAN STILL GAINING GROUND

Increasing export of Cotton Piece Goods.

Japan's export of cotton piece goods to Kenya and Uganda increased from 267 million yards in 1931 to 30.18 million in 1932, while Lancashire's sending only 2.2 million yards. Tanganyika's Japanese goods were from 15 million yards to 10 million. For the first five months of 1933 the exports of Japan to Kenya and Uganda increased to 22 million yards as compared with 17 million yards in the corresponding period of 1932.

SIR JOHN SANDEMAN ALLER IN UGANDA.

New Scheme Outlined.

Addressing a meeting in Kampala last week, Sir John Sandeman Aller, chairman of the new East African Board, said that a new official channel of communication with the Colonial Office was desirable.

Sir John outlined a new scheme suggested by the K. A. B. for the present in The Times, in which Sir John would first examine proposals. These would be considered before consideration by the Executive. All ideas initiated in London would be communicated to East Africa, and then considered the same procedure, thereby ensuring the fullest consideration of East African technical details. It was said, most important that there should be the Customs and Excise for East Africa, as the territories were the large economic unit. Touching the Congo Basin, Sir John said there was a strong feeling to "bring the decks" to the Congo Basin. Sir John declared that the Mandate had not Britain in government was permanent.

New Copper Development Association.

The Copper Development Association has been formed in London, its objects being to concentrate on development of the extended uses of copper rather than research work. The honorary presidents are the Rt. Hon. Sir Auckland Geddes, B. A., Chester Beatty and Sir Harry D. McGowan, while the council will be directed by Mr. D. Owen Evans, M.P., as chairman, and Lieutenant Colonel the Hon. R. M. P. Hirst, D.S.O., as vice-chairman. The product of defined business will be vested in a management committee, of which Mr. A. D. Storie will be chairman, and in which most of the important copper interests, including the trade associations, will be represented. The other members are Mr. H. S. Barclay, Mr. Thomas Bolton, Mr. J. S. Budd, Mr. G. W. Mulhens, Mr. F. Pain, Mr. C. H. Schneider and Mr. A. J. Snowy. Mr. D. P. C. Neave has been appointed general manager and secretary.

Colonial Propaganda in Germany.

Transfer of Entomological and Mycological Institutes.

It is officially announced that the administrative and financial control of the Imperial Institute of Entomology and the Imperial Mycological Institute are to be transferred to the Executive Council of the Imperial Agricultural Bureau as from October 1. Earl Buxton, who has acted as Chairman of both Committees since 1922, has received a letter from the Rt. Hon. Ramsay MacDonald expressing his thanks for the service which the members of the two committees have voluntarily rendered during those years. The transfer has taken place following a recommendation to that effect by the Imperial Committee on Economic Consultation and Co-operation.

Kenya Land Bank Policy.

Criticising the policy of the Kenya Land Bank, the Kuiru Planters' Association has adopted a resolution stating "that this Association is against the limits placed on loan transactions by the Land Bank as they exist today are a distinct impediment to agricultural enterprise, and in particular the Coffee Industry under present conditions, and urges Government to introduce legislation to abolish such limits at the earliest moment." Concerning the policy of the Land Bank, the Association unanimously resolved "that in view of the change in world conditions and in local circumstances, since the passing of the Land Bank Ordinance, this Association believes that the maintenance of existing agricultural enterprise should not be regarded as the sole aim of the development by new means in the country as well as the prime functions of the Land Bank, and that the Board should frame its policy accordingly."

EAST AFRICA'S BOOKSHelves

THE SALVATION ARMY IN AFRICA.

Four Books on a Big Subject.

BANNERS IN AFRICA by Arthur Copping (Hodder and Stoughton, 1937) gives pictures in journalistic style of different parts of Africa including Kenya and Northern Rhodesia as seen by a touring member of the Salvation Army. The book of 150 pages may bring in grist to the mill and though doubts may be felt by some people as to the Salvation Army's method being the best for tropical Africa, that mill undoubtedly does do much good work.

As a contribution to African literature however the book is negligible. There are some quite good descriptive paragraphs, but the utility of some of the remarks is outstanding, even if a globe-trotter's jottings, and unfortunately the author features that the man who knows the country is certain to listen. Purged of such features, the book would probably not sell; with them it tends to offer to readers a picture in the wrong place. This is not a new problem in the publication of books of Africa, but a good example of it.

AMAS

A WANDERER'S LIFE IN EAST AFRICA.

Saints' Lives. Oliver Vignettes.

SAM SAM, whose life and sayings are recorded by Gordon Makenzie (Hodder and Stoughton, 1937) is not a story, but a book of vignettes put together by Mr. Makenzie because Sam walked into his newspaper and said "I'll tell you what he had said and wanted a good story." The first narration seems to lack cohesion, but it leaves the impression that the author has chosen the right things as a collection of sayings would have involved padding, while in the form we get the matter is digested.

When a man starts from his own at the age of twelve and keeps it up for some fifty years, and the Mau Mau Rebellion and the campaign in the Ken East thrown in, meanwhile wandering from the Cape to the Sudan, he must collect much interesting experience and a few good stories, and these are told casually, roundly and bluntly, which runs right through the book, although it can have occupied only a few months in the long years, the author spent in the Sudan and German Central Africa, called The Godwin. Those months of local association with the man must have made a life-long impression on Sam, so he learned to think in the wilds. As he says:

"Dan told me that he had bitten hunter in the wilds and his constant association with that man has made him a more receptive man than the city-folk who has to negotiate Godwin the week-end - and often less than there. It is

His character studies are good, if very brief. I can vouch for the picture he gives of Yank Allen. "Yank's" Yank said to me, "is very like women. If yew don't know anything about 'em, leave 'em alone, I say! If yew don't, they'll sure get yew in the end." But I wish I could identify the lantern-jawed cloth-hunter whom he met at Abercorn. "I can imagine him spending eternity on a never-ending trail after elephants," says Sam. "If there's ivory in heaven, that man's damn it."

Such are the many sayings and presents to it. There are no women in the book, for, like Yank Allen, Sam did not love them, although he says he can think about them with his box! (Oh! Sam; love the box!)

Making a woman take taking a shot at Sam's fist. It's quite a thrill, but Sam is in dangerous country. It is the first white woman that set foot in the country for when the country had nothing more than ordinary risks and a few white men, a white man was generally able to look after himself. It is a pity that the same is not the whole story.

Some of the book's value is about animal fights, for Sam kept his eyes open and was a good observer. For a ghostly and a ghost's singularly free from the blemishes of mispellings and misnomers that might be expected. I have noticed only one minor error, a reference to the saddle antelope's "antlers". The half-himneyed with the book is priced seems hardly justified, and a lower price might have proved better selling. Still, the book should be popular for it is good reading. KIKOKO.

WITCHCRAFT IN FICTION.

JOHN LAMBOURNE is a clever writer and a good Africa: his descriptions of Natives are good, as good as those that he gets of the backwater of Kenya. His knowledge of witchcraft, or of the things that go with it that natives have a genuine fear of, is not lacking when finishing. The Unmeasured Plains (John Murray, 7s. 6d.) and this book have been better written.

It is a strong meat for most people. The real and imaginative stay at home may dismiss it as too fanciful to be realistic. Those who have had it at proximity to witchcraft and to "things" which were regarded as being brushed lightly aside, so that it must inevitably be horrible, so horrible that, if you have read it, had better not have been written. If you have read "The Island of Dr. Morano" you will know what I mean. This book is worse. It has a horror of things like this in Africa from natives who believe in them implicitly, but when the writer is a white man, to read long since (for she was a child in the thirties in 1782), at the very least, from when the chief character in such a story drama is well, just a Native. I have never read any of my reviews of the book, but I think that the average reviewer will feel about it as I do. To him it will be what the publisher's blurb calls it, "a story of witchcraft and evil magic brilliantly portrayed by a master novelist." To me, however, Mr. Lambourne seems to have the terror of Africa unconsciously near home, and although I have often wished that people at home could grasp what this terror means to the people of Africa, yet when it is done it leaves one feeling unclear.

There is many a false word written on a jacket, but that "this is a story that will long haunt the mind" is terribly true. So if you read it, do not say that you have not been warned.

A preliminary crop report for the 1932-33 season in Kenya gives the following information: Maize.—Owing to the drought, the maize crop is in a very backward condition...

The latest crop report from Tanganyika gives the following information: Northern and Tanga Provinces.—It is estimated that the current coffee crop from Arusha will exceed last year's by 25%.

The monthly trade cables received by Barclays Bank (C.A. & C.) include the following figures concerning East Africa.

Arusha.—Coffee trees are recovering well, but there is a considerable proportion of high stems affected owing to the present drought. The local market has been steady with comparatively small offerings.

Kenya.—Light rains were fairly general at the end of August, but owing to the dry cotton plantings has been seriously retarded. The local trade has been dull, but the improvement is associated with the circulation of the news of the better cotton crop.

Uganda.—The improved weather conditions have brightened the outlook for food crops, but the marketing of a quantity of a quantity of a quantity is drawing to a close and the bulk has been shipped.

The fair weather the barque may make good progress, but it never rivals in speed the "ocean grehound". In the doldrums the sands becalmed, and in the storm it goes where the wind takes it—whilst the liner pursues its steady course. The advertised product, like the liner, has its own power and direction. The cabins of scientifically evolved sailing apparatus, its farago and compel consumer acceptance. It is not it pieces undisturbed through the calms of depression and rides the economic storm.

KENYA

Britain's most attractive colony for settlement

Kenya House Nairobi

Kenya offers unlimited scope for the settler, and those with moderate means who are contemplating home-coming, should carefully consider the many exceptional advantages offered.

Healthy climate exceptional surroundings light taxation reasonable living costs
 good social amenities — good schools

Farming prospects, too, are good for the hard-working settler with adequate capital. Climatic and general conditions are exceptionally favourable to the growing of Coffee, Maize, Wheat and Tea; mixed farming, fruit growing, cattle and sheep rearing. Labour is cheap and plentiful — transport facilities leave nothing to be desired.

The man who is retiring from any profession or business with an assured income or pension and who is interested in public and social work, will find in Kenya an opportunity for enjoying his retirement either in farming or in participating in local government affairs.

SPORT and TRAVEL

Such a variety of recreation can be enjoyed in the Kenya Big Game and all smaller wild animals are to be found in the country. There are ample facilities in the country for all sports. Kenya can be thoroughly enjoyed under healthy and comfortable travel conditions by the motorist and the traveller. Air and motor services are available all over the country.

Enquiries are invited and can be dealt with by the Kenya Government. Illustrated Handbook can be obtained on application.
