

UNIVERSITY OF NAIROBI

INSTITUTE FOR DEVELOPMENT STUDIES

2012 ANNUAL REPORT

January 2013

INTRODUCTION

The Institute for Development Studies (IDS) is a premier development research institute in the Eastern and Southern Africa region. Established in 1965, the Institute has been carrying out research on development in the region and has increasingly influenced policy thinking and policy making in the region and Africa in general. In addition, IDS has collaboration and linkages with many research institutions and universities across the world. IDS has engaged in a rich variety of research projects relevant to Kenya's development agenda. It uses seminar series, workshops, and publications to disseminate and get feedback on research results. The publications include policy briefs, working papers, discussion papers and finalized research papers.

IDS has a faculty status which enables it to offer postgraduate studies in development studies. The Institute builds capacity for the analysis of development issues through the Master of Arts in Development Studies and PhD programmes. The Institute also encourages intellectual exchange between researchers and scholars on one hand and institutions on the other by undertaking collaborative research and welcoming research associates.

The Vision of the Institute is to be the leading centre of excellence for development research, teaching, training and advisory services on issues of practical and academic concerns in the public and private domains. IDS, therefore, seeks to promote development knowledge and debate and encourages the utilization of research findings in postgraduate teaching and training and also in shaping the growth of development thinking, theory and practice.

THE MASTER OF ARTS IN DEVELOPMENT STUDIES

The Master of Arts in Development Studies was launched in October 2000. It targets students who desire to join the academic profession as well as policy makers and development practitioners who aspire to improve their project conception, planning and implementation skills. The programme prepares students to deal creatively and effectively with development problems. All courses take a multi-disciplinary approach, combining theory with application. The programme is organised into five course modules:-

1. Technology and Natural Resource Management
2. Development and Change in African Societies
3. Human Resource Development
4. International Development
5. Planning for Development
