

ABSTRACT

The gross and histopathological findings in a sheep infected with Dicrocoelium hospes are described briefly from Kenya. The animal had ascites and a severely necrotized liver with scattered haemorrhagic foci. The flukes were so small as to be seen only under the microscope.