

Chancellor tours Department of Veterinary Pathology Microbiology and Parasitology.

The Chancellor, University of Nairobi, Dr. Vijoo Rattansi, made an extensive tour of the College of: Agriculture and Veterinary Sciences. During the tour, Dr. Vijoo had an opportunity to visit various College units, sampling some of the Colleges facilities and activities in place. The Department of Veterinary Pathology Microbiology and Parasitology was one of the units she had the opportunity to visit.

Dr. Vijoo, who was visiting the Colleges for the first time since her appointment as Chancellor, was accompanied by the Chairman of Council, Dr. Idle Farah and the University of Nairobi management team lead by the Vice-Chancellor, Prof. George Magoha. At the Department, she was received by the Chairman, Prof. P.K. Gathumbi and introduced to the academic and technical staff and taken through the displays of various activities of the Department. All units of the department were included and at each station, the professors and doctors in each section explained the activities in the various sections. At the end of the tour, the Chancellor was shown a display of books authored by various members of staff in the department. A donation of a book on Camel Husbandry authored by Dr George C. Gitao and the Departmental brochure were presented to the Chancellor, the Vice Chancellor and the Chairman of the Council, The Chancellor also signed the visitor's book.